FALL MUST GO TO JAIL; MAY SERVE NEAR HOME

Judge Suggests Incarcerating Former Secretary of Interior Somewhere in the West Instead of in Washington.

PARDON BY HOOVER, SEEMS UNLIKELY

His Doctor Recommends That Convicted Bribe-Taker Be Imprisoned in the New Mexico Penitentiary.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Albert
B. Fall, President Harding's Secretary of the Interior, met final defeat today in his long struggle to escape a jail sentence. Justice Bailey in District of Columbia Supreme Court refused to suspend sentence because of Fall's ill health.

Fall was convicted in October, 1930, of accepting a bribe of $100,- 000 from Edward L. Doheny to procure the lease of the Elk Hills oil field to a Doheny company. Fall was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $100,- 000. He has not asked for a presidential pardon. President Hoo-ver's censure of the men who "betrayed" Harding was taken as an indication that any appeal to him on Fall's behalf would fail.

Two things only remain to be settled before Fall goes to a cell.
One is whether he will be sent to have his sentence changed to a year and a day in a penitentiary. This would give the Attorney General the power to send him to a prison where the climate is better for him than that of Washington.

Suggestion From Judge.
The suggestion that the sentence be modified came from Justice Bailey. He said physicians who had predicted a prison term might have saved Fall's death apparently felt much of the danger would grow from his transfer to Washington from the dry air of the West. Fall has latent tuberculosis and chronic pleurisy, in addition to heart trouble and hardening of the arteries.

Frank Hogan, who has defended Fall since his indictment in 1924, said he would have to consult his client. He promised to communicate with him at once, adding he expected the answer before Monday. The vacation period for Justice Bailey's court will begin Tuesday and the judge said he wanted to dispose of the case before the break.

Dr. J. H. Gambrell of El Paso, Tex., physician, today recommended to Hogan that Fall be imprisoned in the New Mexico State Penitentiary rather than in El Paso County jail.

Confinement at Once Likely.
Fall opposes modification of the sentence. Justice Bailey on Monday is expected to order that he be placed immediately in the District of Columbia jail.

The chance from a jail to a penitentiary sentence would not cause Fall to lose his rights as a citizen in the opinion of the Department of Justice. He would be eligible to parole in four months.

Fall was exposed by Senate investigators soon after his resignation as Secretary of the Interior in 1930. He was the only person involved in criminal charges arising out of the oil leases. He has never paid the $100,000 fine and has said recently that legal expenses and other reverses had left him a poor man.

Fall Refuses to Comment on Where He Will Go to Jail.
EL PASO, Tex., July 11.—An editorial in the El Paso Herald-Examiner today provided the big break in the case of Albert B. Fall here to the District of Columbia Supreme Court has ruled the former Secretary of Interior must serve a year in jail. Mrs. Fall here today with Mrs. J. J. Elliott and Mrs. C. C. Chase, Fall's daughters, said their thoughts were whether confinement in jail would seriously affect his life.
On being told by Mrs. Elliott at the end of the day.

22,000 KANSAS OIL WELLS TO SHUT DOWN

Operators So Agree at Meeting
—30,000 Men to Lose Jobs.

By the Associated Press.
WICHITA, Kan., July 11.—Immediate shutdown of Kansas oil wells, estimated to number 22,000, was agreed on by about 300 independent operators at a conference here late today to consider a remedy for low prices for crude.

Speakers declared that present prices of 10 to 12 cents a barrel prevented the producers from under the cost of production.
In joining the producers' strike under way in other states of the Mid-continent area, the operators estimated the suspension in Kansas would throw 30,000 men out of work.

The wells affected by the shutdown agreement have a daily production of about 192,000 barrels.
The suspension will not apply to wells subject to introduction of water. They will be permitted to remain on pump to prevent destruction.

Although the suspension agreement is to become effective at once, another meeting of the producers will be held to complete final arrangements of details.

Blames "Stupid Congress."
The vote followed a speech by Thurman Hill, member of the Kansas Public Service Commission, blaming a "stupid Congress" for the plight of the industry. "Perhaps the proration law could be strengthened," he said. "But without that benefit producers without a tariff and limited embargo? The first remedy is a special session of Congress."

Hill praised the Kansas operators for their orderly production, adding they "should have been rewarded with a price increase rather than having their bread and butter taken away."

CURTIS JOINS HOOVER FOR WEEK-END ON RAPIDAN

Vice President Recently Back From Kansas; Chief Victims of Accident Inquire.

By the Associated Press.
LURAY, Va., July 11.—Vice President Curtis joined President Hoover today for a week-end on the Rapidan. Curtis, just back from his home State of Kansas, arrived at the President's Virginia camp before lunch time.
In addition to the Vice President, his sister, Mrs. Edward E.
Gann, and the President had as guests Secretary Lamont and Mrs.
Lamont, Dr. Julius Klein, Asst.
Secretary of Commerce, Seth Richardson, Assistant Attorney General, and Mrs. Richardson.
Thomas Healey, Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, and Mrs. Healey.
During the morning President Hoover had Capt. Joel Boone, the White House physician, make inquiries at Emergency Hospital in Washington as to the condition of Mrs. Frank Connor, wife of the correspondent of the New York Herald-Tribune.

3 KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS; ONE IN AN AMBULANCE

STREET CAR RUNS INTO EMERGENCY VEHICLE

Patient Dies of Injuries, Driver and Policeman Hurt in Collision at Lef-fingwell and Laclede.

Three persons were killed in accidents in the city last night. Two of them, a three-year-old child and a woman, were struck by automobiles as they attempted to cross the street, and the third was a man who had taken poison and was being rushed to the hospital in an ambulance, when it was struck by a street car.

Thomas Morrison, a laborer of 1318 Marcus avenue, was being taken to City Hospital from his home, in company with John Jack of the Deer Street Station, with Joseph Leahy, 4516A Page boulevard, driving the ambulance.

As the ambulance, with its siren sounding, attempted to make a left turn from Leffingwell avenue into Laclede avenue, it was struck by a westbound Laclede street car.
Morrison suffered a skull fracture, of which he died a few hours after reaching the hospital. The officer suffered head injuries and Leahy, who was thrown through the windshield, was severely cut.

The motorman of the car,
Carley Moyer, of 1863 South Thirteenth street, was held for not giving right-of-way to an emergency vehicle and careless driving.

The child, Norma May Sack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Sack, 2918A Caroline street, was struck by an ice truck in the street near her home. She ran across the street to meet her father, returning from work, and was hit by the truck despite his efforts to save her by running in the street.

The driver, Gilbert Johnson, 1123 South Grand boulevard, said that he was going at a slow rate of speed and did not see the child before she darted out between two parked cars. His statement was corroborated by other witnesses.

The woman, Mrs. Mary Murphy, 55, of 1805 Nebraska avenue, was killed at 8 o'clock last night at Pennsylvania and Lafayette avenues by a car driven by Chester Abrecht of 3301 Caroline street, 15 told police that she stepped out from the curb and, apparently becoming confused, walked directly into the path of the car.

NAUTILUS LIKELY TO LEAVE REPAIR DOCK NEXT WEDNESDAY

New Cylinder for Engine and Other Parts Arrive for Polar Submarine.

By CAPTAIN SIR HUBERT WILKINS.
ABOARD SUBMARINE NAU-TILUS, DEVONPORT, England,
July 11.—Repairs on the submarine craft that is to carry us under the ice to the North Pole progressed so far today that we confidently expect to be out of dry dock on Wednesday and en route to Bergen Norway, by the end of next week.

The new engine cylinder is aboard and a new armature was installed today. The engine room staff and electricians have been expecting to have the new equipment ready for test soon after the dockyard shipwrights replace and remove hull section and superstructure.

The splendid co-operation of the White Star Line at Southampton made it possible for the cylinder to be loaded on a truck immediately after the Homerio came beside the pier. It was brought here within six hours. Our crew and British naval officials kindly gave us their Saturday night to help get it on board. The other work on the exhaust system, the drills, periscope, trailing arm and buffer is proceeding satisfactorily.

DR. WILLIAM J. SPILLMAN DIES

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Dr.
William J. Spillman, 67, one of the leading economists of the Agriculture Department, died in a hospital here today after an operation.

He was a native of Lawrence County, Mo. The widow and a son survive.

PARIS-TOKYO FLYERS HOP OFF; HOPE TO SET STRAIGHT LINE RECORD

By the Associated Press.
LE BOURGNET, France, July 11.
(Sunday).
JOSEPH LEBRIX and Marcel Doret hopped off from Le Bourget Airdrome at 4:46 a. m. on their non-stop flight to Tokyo, Japan.

The motor of their plane the "Hyphen" was started at 4:40
a. m. and after a short warming up, the plane started down the runway, lifting slowly after a long run, under its heavy load of fuel. They hope to reach Tokyo in about 62 hours. Rene Messin, mechanic, accompanied them.

The straight line flight record is held by Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, who flew 4909 miles from Paris to Moulart, China, in 1929. The distance from Paris to Tokyo is 6000 miles.

MAN IS KILLED BY TRAIN NEAR HOME IN COUNTY

A. A. Tucker, Former Vice President of Rosenthal-Sloan Millinery Co., Found Dead on Right-of-Way.

Almond A. Tucker, former vice president and secretary of the Rosenthal-Sloan Millinery Co., was killed last night when struck by a Prisco train near his home in Oakland, St. Louis County.

There were no witnesses to the accident. His body, over which the wheels had passed, was found on the right-of-way.

It was noticed first by J. A.
Moran of Springfield, Mo., a division superintendent for the railroad, who was riding on the observation platform of a train which passed Oakland about 9 o'clock.
When the train stopped at Valley Park Moran telephoned to Orville Alexander, a section foreman, and sent him to investigate.

Tucker's son, Robert, said he had seen his father sleeping on a couch at their home shortly before 9 o'clock. When it was noticed that he had left the house members of the family assumed that he had gone for a walk.

Later they saw a crowd gathering at the railroad tracks about a block and a half north of the home, and learned then that he had been killed.

Tucker was 61 years old. He lived at 5 Schulz avenue, Oakland.
Until last July he was actively connected with the Rosenthal-Sloan company.

His widow, Mrs. Bertha Tucker, and three sons, Robert, Ervin and David, survive.

CLOUDY WITH SHOWERS TODAY; MOSTLY FAIR TOMORROW

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, July 11.—The growing seriousness of the German economic situation was watched in Great Britain tonight with increasing concern. It was learned today that Prime Minister MacDonald, the Foreign Office and banking circles were keeping in closest touch with Berlin.

Particular concern was expressed at the figures of today's withdrawal of capital from Germany, Berlin advisers stating the total at nearly 30,000,000 marks (roughly $22-000,000), which is nearly double the withdrawals Friday.

Monday, it was thought here, may be a critical day in the history of Europe. On that day, it was said, there will be a further meeting of Dr. Hans Luther, Reichsbank president, and European financiers assembled at Basel for the directors' meeting of the Bank for International Settlements. Upon the outcome of that conference the stability of Germany and the future of her present Government may rest, according to the English view.

The withdrawal of foreign capital from Germany might have been averted, in the English view, if the Hoover proposal had been unanimously accepted as soon as it was made.

But delays—cautioned against by Washington at the time—and the uncertain situation which still continues, have brought Germany once more to the brink of a chasm, England believes, and even now there is no assurance that President Hoover planned may be necessary to save her.

U. S. FINANCIAL AID FOR GERMANY UNDER DISCUSSION

Unlimited Credit to Reichsbank by Federal Reserve or Private Banks Is Suggested.

HINT THAT HOOVER MAY INTERVENE

Government, However, Could Not Act Directly—Cabinet Officers in Touch With Berlin Situation.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 11.—Mobilization of American financial power to bulwark Germany, as one way to alleviate the distress of that country, has become the subject of discussions in which high administration officials are participating.

President Hoover and Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department were at the President's Rapidan camp in Virginia. Both State and Treasury Departments kept in close touch with the acute situation reported to be confronting the Bruening Government.

Some officials expressed the private opinion Mr. Hoover would undertake some action to prevent a disastrous result in Germany. The American Government itself cannot act directly, and there was no indication of what course the President might consider he could take.

Three possible methods of assistance were outlined unofficially by financial experts of the administration. These are:

Unlimited credits by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to the Reichsbank, either by direct credits or the honoring of drafts; a massing of credits to Germany by private bankers; indirect credits to Germany through the Bank of England.

The Federal Reserve system is an organization independent of the executive branch of the Government. Whether the President would feel called upon to suggest that it assist Germany is not known.

Acting Secretary Castle said some-days ago, the President could, if he desired, make suggestions to the Federal Reserve Board as to a course of action in emergencies.

So far, officials point out, the powerful influence of American bankers has played little or no part in the efforts to alleviate the situation in Germany. State and Treasury Department officials said that the bankers, they had found, were not in touch with the President's sentiment behind the President's efforts. There was no doubt in their minds that the bankers would respond if called upon. The re-establishment of confidence appeared tonight to be the thought uppermost in the minds of American officials.

GERMAN CABINET, IN NIGHT SESSION, DEBATES WAYS TO AVERT FINANCIAL CRASH

Net Effect of Moratorium On Budgets of Germany And the Creditor Nations

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Bldg.
WASHINGTON, July 11.

FROM authoritative sources, the Post-Dispatch has compiled herewith the latest available figures on the scheduled war-debt and reparation payments and receipts of the various countries concerned, for the period July 1, 1931, to June 30, 1932. This is the period of the Hoover moratorium. The table shows, therefore, so far as can be foretold in advance of the final adjustments by an international committee of experts, the net effect of the moratorium on the budgets of Germany and the creditor nations.

The German budget is seen to be relieved of a burden of $394,400,000. This is exclusive of the service on her loans of 1924 and 1930. The German annuity of $15,700,000 to the United States is on account of costs of the American Army of Occupation, together with mixed claims arising from the war.

The net contribution of the United States to the relief of Germany is $262,300,000. France gives up $78,000,000, Belgium $21,000,000, Great Britain $17,500,000, Italy $7,300,000 and the other countries involved $8,300,000.

France's net of $78,000,000 takes account of the fact that she was scheduled to pay the United States this fiscal year $50,- 000,000, as against $40,000,000 the previous year.

The figures in the table cover German reparation payments, the German agreement with the United States, the Belgian war claim settlement, the funded debt agreements with the United States, and the funded war debt agreement with Great Britain and France. The debt agreements included for Great Britain and France are only those taken into account in the Young plan.
Some of the settlements among the nations are highly intricate, involving numerous details to be worked out by the committee of experts. The table gives the picture of the intergovernmental debts in broad outline:

LAWS TO RESTRICT SPECULATION IN GRAIN SUGGESTED

Democrats Want Congressional Investigation With Changes in Futures Act in View to Curb Selling.

LITTLE RESULT FROM APPEAL EXPECTED

Presidents of Exchanges Deny Knowledge of Activities of "Shorts" and Blame Farm Board.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 11.—President Hoover's denunciation of wheat speculators was followed today by demands for legislation to restrict their activities.

Two Senate Democrats and department officials joined in the condemnation of speculative short selling a transaction which Mr. Hoover said was intended only to depress prices and serve to deprive farmers of their rightful income.

Meanwhile, Chicago prices closed a half cent lower than yesterday, influenced partly by forecasts of a 1931 production of 862,013,000 bushels.

The troubles of the wheat farmer have been brought into prominence through the efforts of administration leaders to amend Farm Board policies.

Would Publish Names.

A congressional investigation preliminary to forming legislative proposals for curbing short sales was demanded by Democrats of the Senate. They could see no hope in Mr. Hoover's appeal to speculators' patriotism and urged new legislation to stop this type of trading in times of stress.

Senator Fletcher (Dem.), Florida, proposed the grain futures act be amended to make it possible to publish the names of speculators.

Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, also said, "I don't get it at it is by legislation rather than by appeal." He recalled the bill by Senator Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas, to this end, which has been pending for some time.

Agreement with the President's denunciation was expressed by Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, head of the grain futures administration, who also reiterated his advocacy of legal restrictions.

Excessive Selling Denied. In Minneapolis, Charles T. Stevenson, president of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, took issue with the President and said the trouble "is not too much speculation, but too little." He added the huge stocks of stabilization wheat controlled by the Farm Board "are exerting a depressing effect on world prices."

Presidents of grain exchanges denied knowledge of excessive short selling.

Blames Farm Board Rather Than Short Selling.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, July 11.—Joseph P. Griffin, former president of the Chicago Board of Trade, in a statement issued today said that unwise marketing policy of the Federal Farm Board, rather than short selling, was to blame for declining prices of commodities. He said:

"Short selling has never been the cause of permanent declines in commodities, although it has helped to depress prices. The short does not add one bushel or one bale to the available supply of wheat or cotton, but he does create two buyers, one at the time he makes his short sale and again when he himself covers his short contracts."

"The prevailing low wheat values are caused by overproduction. Current prices of wheat in Chicago closely approximate Liverpool values and at the moment Chicago is about 15 cents per bushel above the normal parity with Liverpool. We are now harvesting one of the largest crops of winter wheat ever raised. The carry over of wheat in this country and Canada from the 1929 crop is unusually large, and the holdover roughly will satisfy about 75 per cent of our probable exports during the 1931-32 crop year. The Farm Board holds in excess of 200,000,000 bushels of old crop wheat which it is now selling in competition with the American farmer's new crop."

"This huge accumulation in my view reflects an unwise marketing policy on the part of the Farm Board and if they had not attempted during the last crop year to artificially peg prices much of the present burdensome carryover

might have been sold at a profit. ## AIR DIVISION INSIGNIA

MULE INSIGNIA FOR GUARD

AIR SERVICE APPROVED

Design Painted on Planes of Thirty-Fifth Division of State Troops.

The new insignia of the Thirty-Fifth Division Air Service, Missouri National Guard, centered around the head of a Missouri mule, has been approved by the War Department, Maj. Philip R. Love, commanding officer, announced yesterday.

The insignia is based upon a golden eagle on which are superimposed two crossed telescopes, emblematic of the function of the squadron as an observation outfit, and the head of a mule in blue and the head of the mule in natural colors. The insignia, designed by a student of the Washington University School of Fine Arts, has been painted on all the planes of the squadron.

TWINS MADE ELIGIBLE AS U. S. CITIZENS THROUGH TRIP TO CUBA

East St. Louis Woman Circumvents Threat to Bar Her Children as Scot Immigrants.

The 2-year-old Wallace twins of 514 North Twenty-sixth street, East St. Louis, Mildred and Arthur, who were threatened with return to their native Scotland under the immigration laws, are eligible to United States citizenship because their mother, Mrs. Mildred Slocum Wallace, took them to Havana, Cuba, June 28, and brought them home yesterday as Cuban immigrants.

Mrs. Wallace, a native of Alton, went to Scotland with her father, Elmer Slocum, in 1916 and was married there in 1927 to Arthur Wallace, a British subject. She returned to the United States with her babies in January, 1930, by means of a purported letter of consent from her husband. She obtained custody of the children with a divorce from Wallace, May 23, but the children remained in the classification of British subjects.

As such they were liable to return to Scotland with the expiration of their permit as nonquota immigrants on July 1. By July 1, however, they were in Havana with their mother, establishing a residence there.

TWO HURT WHEN ENGINE HITS AUTO ON SOUTH SIDE

Accident Occurs at Ninth and Dorcas; Two Others in Machine Uninjured.

A man and woman suffered slight injuries last night when their automobile was struck by a switch engine at the Manufacturers' Road crossing at Ninth and Dorcas avenues. Irby Spencer, 1301 Sheridan drive, University City, suffered abrasions of the body and probable fractured ribs, and Miss Josephine Cantalan, 2921 Belt avenue, was cut on the head.

Two men, riding in the rumble seat, were uninjured. One of them, George Scott, 2245 Howard street, reported at the hospital, but police were unable to find the other man or learn his name, as he left the scene.

Spencer, who had been drinking, according to physicians at the hospital, was unable to say how the accident happened. The crossing is protected by a bell signal and a flashing light.

It would have flowed into consumption channels. These enormous holdings of wheat are acting like a wet blanket over the entire world's wheat structure and is a constant menace to values.

Would Advertise Quality to Get Back Markets. NEW YORK, July 11.—Herbert L. Bodman, president of the New York Produce Exchange, today issued a reply to President Hoover's appeal to "a limited number of speculators" to cease selling short in the wheat exchange and commodity markets under present economic conditions.

"What we need is some honest, persistent sales effort, some good world advertising for our wheat and its quality and less talk about the seriousness of the situation," Bodman advised in the statement.

Says Farm Board Killed Speculation and Hurt Price. MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 11.—Charles T. Stevenson, president of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, today took exception to President Hoover's condemnation of short wheat sales by speculators. He said, "The trouble today is not too much speculation but too little."

He said that the Federal farm marketing act "has been successful in but one thing, and this is minimizing speculation—a matter of fact, it has practically eliminated it."

DEARMONT BOOM FOR GOVERNORSHIP BEGUN AT DINNER

Southeast Missouri Democrats Urge State Senator to Make Race—He Avoids Commitment.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CAPE GIRARD, Mo., July 11.—The candidacy of State Senator Russell L. Dearmont of Cape Girardeau for the Democratic nomination for Governor was inaugurated here tonight by several hundred Democrats from 16 Southeast Missouri counties at a dinner at which Dearmont was the guest of honor.

Responding to resolutions urging him to announce himself a candidate, Dearmont refrained from making a definite commitment. If, however, his speech left no doubt that he was actively in the race against Francis W. Wilson, the nominee in 1928, who again is a candidate.

This showing of friendliness of the people of my own section of the State makes it difficult for me to refrain from announcing now that I shall be a candidate," Dearmont said. "I do not believe any man should seek the nomination unless he has the support of his friends and neighbors near home. That is apparent here tonight."

Dearmont said he was in the race in other parts of the State, then it will be difficult, indeed, for me to remain out of the race. I may say that some indication of that interest is shown by letters and telegrams from Democrats in all parts of the State, which have been received and read here tonight.

"I hold the opinion that no man in seeking nomination for such a high office should be guided simply by personal pride and ambition. He should show by his deeds a sympathy with the people and should honestly and sincerely desire to do something worth while in their interest."

"During the two sessions I have been in the State Senate I have had an opportunity to obtain an insight into the operation of the State Government. While I have no intention at this time of outlining even generally my views on public affairs, I will say that the danger of the State is that we are too prone to go into too many things which would better be left to private endeavor. Congress teaching out into new fields, however, just and good they may be, can only lead to burdensome taxes."

"In general, it is my view that the less government there is, and the more of individual opportunity, the better it is."

Stephen B. Hunter, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic State Committee presided at the dinner, which was held in the Marquette Hotel. Loud speakers were installed to enable an overflow crowd in the hotel lobby to hear the speeches. In addition to Hunter, the speakers were Robert L. Ward of Caruthersville, Senator Ralph Wammack of Springfield, Representative Langdon Jones of Kennett, Carl Abington of Poplar Bluff, and Albert M. Spradling of Cape Girardeau. A number of others were called upon for two minutes each.

The resolutions urging that Dearmont seek the nomination were drawn by a committee of which Charles C. Oliver, editor of the Bloomfield Vindicator, was chairman.

SENTENCED FOR STEALING BANK ROBBERY PROCEEDS. George Tucker, 22 years old, of St. Charles, was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary yesterday by Circuit Judge Woolfolk there for stealing $20 from Mrs. George Koelling, wife of a man under sentence for participating in a bank robbery at Old Monroe, June 12 last.

Mrs. Koelling testified Tucker, a family friend, entered her house in St. Charles last night and stole the money. She said she was searching for the loot which her husband had hidden and which had escaped detection by the Sheriff. She found it in a shoe, she said, and as she spread the money on a table Tucker grabbed $20 and ran out.

German Cabinet Seeks To Avert Financial Crash

determined that Germany shall not open the door to what they term "political dictation."

Dares Not Accept French Offer. The Government's feeling is that the acceptance of foreign credit under the conditions suggested by France would be such a blow to national pride, particularly at the present moment, that the Cabinet responsible for it would no longer remain in power.

The Government, it was said, was not opposed to discussing such matters as the suspension of "vest-pocket" cruiser construction if they are brought up at the proper time and in the spirit of international equality. The Cabinet feels, however, that what it terms the pinning of a disarmament demand upon a purely financial transaction would be deeply resented in Germany, the more deeply because it is felt that President Luthers' hasty trip to London and Paris in search of credit would not have been necessary if the Hoover plan had met speedy acceptance in Paris.

French Conditions. The conditions attached to the granting of the foreign loan, Dr. Luthers was said to have reported to the Cabinet on his return from Paris, are:

Suspension of the program for building "vest-pocket" battle cruisers. Abandonment of the proposed Austro-German customs union.

Further credit restrictions in Germany. Renunciation of measures to prevent the flight of capital.

Creation of a "Locarno of the East," or in other words, formal relinquishment for all time of any hope of regaining Danzig and the Danzig corridor.

Soviet Methods Broached. The question of placing all German exports under a Government monopoly was also said to be one of the measures the Cabinet met to consider. Such a step would be sensational. It would amount to putting German currency and exports on what might be termed a "Soviet basis." The reason the Cabinet felt compelled to consider it, it was said, was that the Reichsbank's gold reserve was now so low as to cause a fear that Monday's demand for foreign currencies would sweep the few remaining millions of gold out of the bank's reserves in a few hours.

On Tuesday the Reichsbank's gold coverage for currency still amounts to 1,421,000,000 marks ($355,250,000), of which 600,000,000 ($150,000,000) consisted of borrowed money—the gold discount credit and the redcount credit from abroad.

On Wednesday the demand for foreign currencies was 35,000,000 marks. On Thursday 50,000,000, and on Friday another 10,000,000. Today's run figuratively knocked the bottom out of the bank's monetary barrel.

While considering measures to be taken if Monday arrives without definite assurance of aid from abroad, the Government lost no time in advising Great Britain and the United States, through diplomatic channels, of the gravity of the situation.

Rather than submit to the French demand, it was learned from reliable authority today, not only Chancellor Brüning but President von Hindenburg himself would resign.

Press Bitter Against France. The first press comments on Dr. Luthers' return last night, with few exceptions, were characterized by an unusually bitter attitude toward France. The general tenor of the comment was that it is scarcely understandable how, in the midst of such a critical situation, threatening not only Germany but the rest of the world, France could seize an opportunity to demand political concessions of Germany, the nation, it was said, which would be hit worst by a crisis.

The Democratic Boerser Courier. The fact that the United States will not be represented directly at the Basel meeting added to the opinion that the directors of the World Bank would meet with difficulties.

Germany's attitude against the conditions which France is reported to have placed on coming to her financial assistance had a rapid reaction tonight. The Government was silent on the developments in Berlin but Edouard Herriot, former Premier and Radical Socialist leader, made the situation the theme of a speech at a dinner in his honor in his home town, Lyons, France. Herriot said, was ready to go the limit to help the German Republic, but wanted to be sure this would not mean helping reactionaries in Germany. The Echo de Paris said Germany must first take severe measures to prevent the flight of German capital from the country before it could expect to check the present crisis.

La Volonte calls attention to the fact that Germany made heavy reparations payments regularly for six years which, it said, was partly responsible for the present crisis. The newspaper begged Frenchmen not to forget this fact.

Italy to Attend Moratorium Conference in London. ROME, July 11.—The Italian Government announced tonight that it had accepted the invitation to attend the conference of financial experts at London July 17 to discuss putting the Hoover reparations moratorium plan into effect. The Government also announced that it had decided not to ask for the reparations installment due from Germany July 15 and had informed the World Bank for International Settlements and other Governments of this decision.

Reichsbank's Purchase of France. PARIS, July 11.—A slight fall in the value of the dollar and pound on the French market today, the newspaper Le Matin explained tonight, was due to the sale of dollars and pounds by the Reichsbank in Paris to obtain francs, which were needed in Berlin. Calls on the Reichsbank for foreign money during the week, Le Matin said, were 80 per cent for dollars, 30 per cent for pounds and about 10 per cent for francs, but the demand for francs increased at the close of the week. The dollar descended, the paper noted, from 25.5325 to the dollar on Monday to 25.4725 Friday. The mark descended on the Paris market from 6.6025 on July 3 to 6.6475 on July 10.

White House Knows Nothing of Message to Berlin. WASHINGTON, July 11.—Secretary Castle said tonight in a statement issued through the White House: "The President has not exchanged any message of any kind with Germany today."

Castle's statement was issued from the President's Rapidan camp after the White House had been informed that leading German bankers had been called to confer with the Cabinet in Berlin over a message reported to have been received from Washington. It was added that no communication had been received today from Ambassador Sackett the American envoy to Germany.

Castle's statement said: "The President has had no request of any kind from the German Government in connection with the present financial difficulties. They have not asked him to interfere with the Federal Reserve Bank."

"In this connection it is well-known that in any case the executive has no authority over the Federal Reserve Board and does not attempt to influence it. We know nothing of a message from Washington."

SEEKS PRESIDENCY ON WET PLATFORM

Ex-Senator France, Maryland, Out for Nomination as Independent Republican.

By the Associated Press. PORT DEPOSIT, Md., July 11.—Liquidation of war debts, repeal of the eighteenth amendment, a curb on presidential powers and revival of the 1920 concert of nations proposal were urged by former Senator Joseph L. France here today in launching his independent campaign for the Republican nomination for President.

Before a crowd on lawn of his Mount Ararat dairy farm, Dr. France, one of the League of Nations irreconcilables in his 1917-1922 Senate term, outlined his platform. The meeting was announced as the opening of a front-porch campaign for the nomination.

President Hoover "is to be congratulated upon making a move toward even a temporary moratorium in repaying and debt interest payments," said Dr. France. "If the proposed moratorium is a measure of expediency for mere temporary relief, it cannot be productive of permanent good and it may be followed by unfortunate consequences. There must be a final settlement of this whole question."

"The debts of nation to nation must ultimately be charged off to profit and loss. It should be done as promptly as possible but such cancellation must be conditioned on full disarmament and the establishment of a new order of international relations."

"No President should turn aside from his high and responsible duties to manipulate politics for his own re-nomination by appointing chairman of party committees, and seeking to be a dictator of his party organization."

Calling for a repeal of "autocratic Federal statutes," France declared that during the World War "we abandoned democracy and established a virtual autocracy," and said economy and efficiency in Government "cannot be secured without a thorough, drastic reorganization of the executive departments."

Stating that "a prohibitive tariff is destructive," he said that "many of the schedules in the present law are unreasonable and require revision."

"The argument, presented before the Supreme Court, that the eighteenth amendment is not an amendment but a statute enacted by a new, unconstitutional and perilous method of legislation remains unanswered and is unanswerable," France said in calling for immediate repeal.

St. Louis Gangster Accused With Two Other Men, One of Them His Intimate, 'Cocky' Leonard.

RETURN IN GRAND BANK CASE REFUSED

Colorado Prosecutor Sure He Has Airtight Case — To Demand Stiff Penalty for Store Robbery.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, July 11.—Henry W. Bostelman and "Cocky" Leonard, two gangsters from St. Louis, and their little pickpocket pal, Abraham Ellis Levin—Abie Levin to his friends—are scheduled to go to trial here Monday on charges growing out of the holdup of the Golden Eagle department store May 10.

Assistant District Attorney Ralph Cummings of Denver made it very plain yesterday that he would insist on trying the three for the holdup and refused the personal appearance request of Assistant Circuit Attorney Joseph Lennon of St. Louis that Bostelman and Leonard be sent to St. Louis for trial in the $100,000 Grand National Bank robbery of May 25, 1930.

Bostelman already has been indicted for participation in the holdup. Leonard, Bostelman's boon companion, is said by St. Louis police to have been one of Bostelman's companions in the holdup.

To Seek the Maximum.

In declining the request of Lennon, Cummings made it plain that the State intends to exact the maximum penalty of Bostelman, Levin and Leonard for their temerity in going to rob the downtown Denver store, and for Bostelman's action in trying to fight his way through police who surrounded the place when the burglar alarm sounded.

The Denver indictment carries three charges, burglary without force, burglary with force and burglary with a high explosive. The first two carry maximum penalties of 10 years in the State Penitentiary, the third, the State's trump card—a minimum of 25 years imprisonment and a maximum of 40.

During his conference with Lennon, Cummings conceded it was impossible to get the Grand National robbers punished, but he was insistent that the aroused public indignation of Denver against the St. Louis gangsters be appeased by their trial and punishment.

Under Colorado procedure, the final jury passes on guilt or innocence of defendants and the Judge fixes the penalty within the limits prescribed by statute. This is particularly true in the case of Bostelman and his pals. All are ex-convicts and news dispatches since the Golden Eagle robbery have given every detail of their careers in crime. Bostelman served a prison term for burglary, Leonard for a mail holdup and Levin for peddling narcotics.

Certain of Conviction.

In the opinion of Cummings there is no possibility that the men can be acquitted. Already the State has declined an offer by the three to plead guilty and take penitentiary sentences of ten years each.

During the last week friends of Bostelman, Levin and Leonard have been busy circulating propaganda that they are not dangerous gangsters or killers. In support of this, they point out that when Leonard was trapped in the store he had eight one-ounce bottles of nitroglycerin in his pockets.

With these, they continue, he could have wiped out the police by tossing the powerful explosive among them. Instead, he peacefully and the lot of them on a bundle of blankets before he was arrested.

Denver authorities are not entirely convinced of "Cocky's" generosity on this point, however. A bullet through his pockets or a bottle of the explosive dropped nearby might have killed him along with the policemen in the holdup.

Store Employee Wounded.

Bostelman, trapped on the second floor, screened himself with a watchman as he descended the stairs during the robbery, then dropped behind a counter and began firing at the policemen. NEW CHIMPANZEE ON EXHIBIT AT ZOO

Animal Has Recovered From Severe Case of Travel Sickness.

A young sunburned chimpanzee, purchased by the zoo as a playmate for Yonnoh, the new gorilla, has recovered from a severe case of travel sickness and is on exhibit at the monkey house.

Being assistant to a gorilla is not an onerous position, it developed yesterday when Yonnoh and the chimp were put together for the first time. Except at meal times, they played together happily. But the young chimp was a great deal more formal, administered a severe beating to her companion for presuming to eat before she had finished.

However, when Zoo attendants took the chimpanzee out, Yonnoh fussed and cried until they put him back again.

The chimpanzee cost $650. When he arrived, ill from travel on boats and trains, it was hoped he would improve and develop as a member of the new performing troupe of young apes, now being formed. But the chimpanzee has a bad disposition and it was decided he was not worth training.

A playmate was necessary for Yonnoh, because gorillas are as temperamental as they are rare, and without a playmate, they move and die. And so the sunburned one, failing of promotion, is fulfilling the destiny for which he was acquired.

Washington-Bogota Flight Planned

BOGOTA, Colombia, July 11.—The newspaper Mundo Al Dia announced today that its New York correspondent, Puyo Delgado, would fly from Washington to Bogota, July 15, carrying a message from President Hoover to President Olaya. The flight is expected to require three days.

Glad to See Lennon.

The three gangsters appeared glad to see someone from St. Louis and greeted Lennon cordially when he visited them yesterday.

"Hello, Joe, how's everything?" the near-sighted Leonard called as the Assistant Circuit Attorney stopped in front of his cell.

"All right back home," said Lennon. "I suppose you know I am out here to try to get you back to St. Louis for the Grand National Bank robbery."

"Yes," said Leonard, "but you will have to see my attorney about that."

Bostelman said, "We don't want to talk about that bank job. We are already in enough trouble out here."

SHOT BY WOMAN ON FIRST DAY OUT OF WORKHOUSE

Theodore Stankiewicz Quarrels With Mrs. May Burnley Over Caller at Her House.

Theodore Stankiewicz, 1829 North Ninth street, was shot under the heart and in the right hip last night by Mrs. May Burnley, 6333 Hancock avenue, when he went to her home soon after being released from the City Workhouse and threatened her when another visitor called.

The other visitor, Edward Bell, 1514 Geyer avenue, was shot in the right arm by Stankiewicz. Mrs. Burnley said, after Stankiewicz wrestled the revolver from her. Both men were taken to City Hospital.

Mrs. Burnley, arrested and taken to the Mounted District, admitted shooting Stankiewicz, according to police, stating that she seized a revolver and fired twice when Stankiewicz became enraged at Bell's presence and advanced toward her in a threatening attitude.

"Stankiewicz came to my home in the morning, left and returned about 5 o'clock," Mrs. Burnley told police. "We had been talking about 15 minutes when the bell rang and I admitted another man to the front room. Stankiewicz jumped up and said, 'So this is why you didn't come to the Workhouse or send me money?'"

"He started towards me and I went back to the dining room and grabbed a revolver and shot him once. He kept coming and I shot again. He grabbed the revolver and ran after Bell, who had gone out the front door."

Stankiewicz admitted shooting Bell, according to police, but said it was Bell who had shot him. Bell said he went to the residence to see Mrs. Burnley's husband, Angelo, on business. The husband was absent.

Police records show that Stankiewicz, who is 24 years old, has been arrested 10 times, mostly on peace disturbance charges. He was sentenced to three months in the workhouse April 14 for assault with intent to kill last November, when he stabbed a man in an altercation. Bell's sentence was fined $100 for an attempt to intimidate a witness. He was fined $100 for peace disturbance in 1930 and $500 for a similar offense in 1931.

Mrs. Burnley, 35 years old, is the mother of two children, Dolores, 10 years old, and Richard, 8.

AUTO HITS MOTHER AND THREE CHILDREN ON SIDEWALK

Two children, an infant in a baby buggy and their mother were knocked down by an automobile yesterday when the car, after a collision, ran up on the sidewalk at St. Ferdinand avenue and Whit-tier street. All were treated by a neighborhood physician who said apparently only the mother had sustained possibly serious injuries, and were taken to their home.

The injured were Ruth, 8 months old; Jack, 2 years, Robert, 11, and Mrs. Marie Jost, 4625 Maffitt avenue. They were struck by the automobile of Carl Roberts, a salesman, 1731 Ohio street, East St. Louis, which had just collided with a car driven by Clifton Jones, Negro, 2524 Cozens avenue.

ASKS TO SEE RINGS, STEALS $272 DIAMOND FROM TRAY

A diamond ring valued at $272 was stolen from a tray at the Kramer Jewelry Exchange, 4467 Easton street, early yesterday afternoon, by a man who had asked to see rings the store carried in stock, and then seized one.

Henry Kramer, the proprietor, at first showed him a tray of rings with small stones, but the man asked to see the larger gems. The ring he stole was in a tray with diamonds all more than a carat in size. He escaped by running out of the store.

Kramer's wife, Mrs. Irene Kramer, reported to police on June 30 that she had been held up on Olive street downtown, and robbed of $4300 in jewelry which was her personal property.

JEFFERSON DAVIS OPPOSED PROHIBITION, LETTERS SHOW

Messages Found in Old Trunk Disclose His Attitude Toward Dry Legislation.

By the Associated Press. LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 11.—Letters written by Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, in which he expresses his views on personal liberty and prohibition of intoxicating liquors have been brought to light here by the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform.

Some time ago Miss Gene J. Brashear, Louisville, wishing to aid a destitute family, asked if they had anything they could sell. From an old trunk was pulled a scrap book, which Miss Brashear purchased. The letters were recently found between the leaves. The first, dated Beauvoir, Miss., June 20, 1857, is addressed to Col. F. R. Lubbock, who had urged the former Confederate President to express an opinion on a proposed law in Texas to prohibit sales of liquor.

"To destroy individual liberty and moral responsibility," the letter says, "would be to eradicate one evil by the substitution of another, which it is submitted would be more fatal than the evil which it was offered as a remedy, the abuse and not the use of stimulants, it must be confessed, is the evil to be relieved."

"Why not pronounce drunkenness itself to be a crime? If it be true that juries could not be empaneled who would convict so degraded a criminal as a drunkard? It necessarily follows that a statutory prohibition against the sale and use of intoxicants would be a dead letter."

15-MONTH-OLD CHILD INJURED BY STREET CAR

James, 15-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James McKown, 4021 Boulevard avenue, suffered lacerations of the scalp and a probable skull fracture last night, when he was struck by an east-bound Compton street car in the 4000 block of Shenandoah avenue.

His parents said they did not notice he had wandered into the street until they heard the street car approaching. The motorman, Rolly Howard, 6155 Columbia avenue, said he did not see the child soon enough to bring his car to a full stop.

James Henson, 1907 Montgomery street, a supervisor for the People's Motorbus Co., suffered a skull injury yesterday when struck by the rear end of a street car which was making the loop at Washington boulevard and Third street. Henson had been examining brakes on a bus. He was treated at St. John's Hospital and taken home.

Man Tells of Buying Clothes for Pair at Their Request.

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 11.—The two convicts from the Missouri State Prison, who ejected Harry Williams, a guard, here today, from a commandeered motor car, were reported to have speeded south out of town.

Police obtained a description of the probable attire of the two men, R. E. Miller and Harry Wellman, from Emil Talley, who they said, told of buying blue shirts and overalls for the pair as they drove into Kansas City near Eighty-third street and Topping avenue.

The officers reported Talley told them the car stopped near him and a man who he said he recognized as an acquaintance named "Chuck" got out, gave him money and asked him to buy the clothing. Returning with it and asking the reason for the purchase, Talley said he was told by the man he knew as "Chuck" that a prison escape was in progress. Talley then reported to headquarters.

GATESWORTH RECEIVER IN SUIT OVER BONDS

S. B. Jeffries Seeks to Be Made Sole Trustee of Issue of Securities.

The Gatesworth Apartment Hotel, 245 Union boulevard, is in charge of a temporary receiver pending the determination of a suit filed in Circuit Court by Samuel B. Jeffries, an attorney, asking for authority to act as sole trustee under a bond issue. Jeffries was appointed receiver by Judge Roskopf March 30. Jeffries' suit is directed against the Gatesworth Investment Co. and the Atlanta, Ga., Trust Co. He and the trust company are named as trustees under a bond issue aggregating $1,050,000 executed by Gatesworth Co. April 15, 1926. The bonds are secured by a deed of trust against the hotel property. It is alleged that there is still outstanding $946,000 and that monthly installments to pay part of the principal and interest on bonds falling due have not been deposited with the trustees.

Jeffries alleges that the Atlanta Trust Co. is not authorized to serve as trustee in Missouri, here having been licensed to transact business here. His suit is designed to protect the interests of bondholders, as the Gatesworth Co. has acknowledged its inability to correct the defaults, and the petition states.

M. H. Rodemeyer, who was appointed receiver in Federal Court for the Cytron Mortgage Co., has filed a motion to vacate the receivership of the Gatesworth Hotel. He avers that the Cytron is the holder of some of the bonds, which brings the property under the protection of its receivership. The action in the State court was taken without notice to him, he avers.

BRITISH PARTY LEADERS PLEAD FOR DISARMAMENT

Premier MacDonald, Laborite, Stanley Baldwin, Conservative and Lloyd George, Liberal, Speak.

BROADCAST OVER BRITAIN AND U. S.

Baldwin Declares Absence of U. S. From League of Nations Handicaps Its Effectiveness.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 11.—Through the leaders of her three great parties, Great Britain tonight dedicated herself to the task of persuading the nations at the disarmament conference in Geneva next spring to reduce "the enormous and disgraceful burden of arms."

Speaking from the same platform in Albert Hall, Prime Minister MacDonald, Laborite; Stanley Baldwin, Conservative, and Lloyd George, Liberal, declared their unanimous support of disarmament.

Ten thousand persons heard and applauded them. The audience was almost unanimously enthusiastic, although at the beginning of the meeting a woman created a disturbance by throwing a stench bomb at the rostrum. Later on a few hecklers interrupted the speakers.

Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, chairman of the meeting, set the keynote by calling for "a real reduction in the armies, navies and air forces of the world." He said he had spent 50 years in the study and practice of the arts of war and confessed that "war hurts everybody, benefits only the profiteers and settles nothing."

The Albert Hall audience was only the nucleus of the crowds that heard the leaders of the three political parties sink their differences in the cause of disarmament. Across the street under the platform of Hyde Park there was an overflow meeting of nearly 10,000. In addition, the speeches were broadcast throughout Great Britain, and to America.

A peace parade nearly a mile long wound through London from the Thames embankment to Piccadilly and Hyde Park before the meeting. Each of the 64 nations which will participate in the negotiations at Geneva was represented by a section of the procession.

In the front row in Albert Hall were gathered the diplomats of all countries accredited to the Court of St. James.

Stench Bomb Thrown. The disturbance at the beginning of the meeting caused by the tossing of a stench bomb at MacDonald, Baldwin, Lloyd George, Lord Robert Cecil and other prominent personages on the platform was quickly put down and the woman responsible for it was hustled out of the hall.

The hecklers too caused little difficulty. Lloyd George answered one of them, who urged an organization of international police to maintain world peace, advising the interrupter to be satisfied with "one thing at a time."

MacDonald, who showed no trace of his recent illness, was moved to unusual eloquence.

"Unless we reduce men, guns, ships, air destruction; unless we can reduce armaments of the various nations to less than what they are now, we will not have done our duty at Geneva," he said.

Precept and Practice. The audience gave each speaker an ovation but that of Lloyd George was the most prolonged. Waves of applause rolled round and round the great circular auditorium as he stood, his long white hair shining under the glare of bright lights.

With a seeming touch of cynicism he traced the world's efforts for disarmament during the past dozen years, telling how each new treaty and pledge had resulted only in increasing the armies and navies of the world.

But he concluded with this note: "You will never disarm, you will never effect real disarmament until you renounce war not merely on a scroll of paper but in the hearts of men."

"But let us take every step, let us make every effort to teach and influence the minds of men in that direction. When that is done the pact to renounce war will be a reality."

Says League Misses U. S. Baldwin repeating his frequently expressed contention that the hope of Europe is in the League of Nations, asserted that the work of that organization was hampered by the absence of Russia and the United States.

"It is not for us to cajole or advise the United States to get into the League," he said, "yet I tell you that every international problem since the Versailles treaty has been made impenetrably more difficult because of the absence of the United States from the League."

He mentioned the possibility that the European Powers some day might impose an economic blockade against some country and he wondered what the American attitude would be in that event.

That was one reason among a host, he said, why Great Britain wanted the help of the United States in reconciling national interests and disarmament.

As for air force estimates, "Ours are slightly lower than they were six years ago," he said, "but in other countries—I shall name no names—they have gone up as much as 150 per cent over those of six years ago. We have sunk to fifth place."

Vision of the Next War. In the event of another war, said Premier MacDonald, "the great Armageddon struggle would come at last and the end of it would not be defeat but the uniformity of exhaustion. Mankind would be almost wiped out."

MacDonald declared: "People seeking safety by arms are like people seeking safety under trees in a thunderstorm. They are at the point which is the first to be struck when the storm breaks." He said that the British delegates were going to next year's disarmament meeting at Geneva, determined, by appeals to pledges, to history and to common sense to persuade the nations to reduce "this enormous and disgraceful burden."

Accused of Killing Father.

By the Associated Press. GOODMAN, Mo., July 11.—The County Prosecutor is preparing to file charges against Joe Morgan, 24 years old, for the slaying of his father, Floyd Morgan, at the supper table last night. A coroner's jury today found the elder Morgan had been murdered. Members of the family testified the father rebuked his son for not working. They said the son suddenly left the table, returned with a shotgun and fired at his father.

RUTH MIX DEMES SEPARATION

By the Associated Press. FORT WAYNE, Ind., July 11.—Ruth Jane Mix, daughter of Tom Mix, movie cowboy and circus performer, today denied reports that she had separated from her husband, Douglas Gilmore, screen actor. She arrived in this city today with her father.

"I left Douglas at New York City Wednesday night and there is absolutely no trouble between us," Mrs. Gilmore said. "I have not separated from him. I don't intend to and I will not file a suit for annulment. I am going to be with my father during the summer while my husband is working on several pictures, but I intend to return to New York City in a short while."

Mrs. Gilmore, who is 18 years old, was married to Gilmore in June, 1930, eloping when her mother objected. Her father approved the marriage.

Liquor Ring Case Collapses. By the Associated Press. NEWARK, N. J., July 11.—A jury which has been trying the Atlantic Highlands liquor ring case today acquitted the 17 defendants remaining of the 29 who went on trial nearly three weeks ago. Twenty-two men were freed earlier against them.

One friend shows another this road out of debt

EVERY month more than five thousand new customers come to the Household offices for loans at the recommendation of old customers and friends.

Of all the evidences of appreciation of the family finance business, we account this compliment the greatest.

It is praise based not on idle speculation, but on actual experience; not empty words, but the sincere recommendation of one friend helping another.

The former customers of Household know what it is to face sickness, misfortune, and other emergencies that pile up bills marked "past due."

They have learned that stocks, bonds, or other collateral, which they do not possess, are required for a loan from banks.

They have gone to Household, borrowed $100 to $300, cleaned up their bills and repaid the loan in small monthly installments.

They have been served with courtesy, dignity, privacy, and an appreciation of their self-respect... the only signatures required were those of husband and wife.

Having found the road out of their debts, they gladly point out the way to their friends.

It is only on the foundation of customer satisfaction that the great Household organization could have grown until now 139 offices serve 81 principal cities in the United States.

It is only through the resulting volume of business that it has been possible to render this high standard of service at the low rate of 2 1/4% a month allowed by the Small Loan laws of this state.

The tangible resources shown on the Household Financial statement are insignificant when compared to that far greater asset—the good will of those whom Household has served.

MONEY MANAGEMENT FOR HOUSEHOLDS, a helpful booklet on budgeting family income, leading to the happiness of financial security, is offered without charge to all. Telephone, call, or write for a copy.

DENMARK DISPUTES CLAIM TO GREENLAND

Sends Protest Against Norwegian Occupation to Court of Justice.

By the Associated Press. COPENHAGEN, July 11.—A complaint against the Norwegian occupation of Eastern Greenland was addressed to the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague tonight by the Danish Government.

The complaint alleged that Norwegian hunters, in flying the Norwegian flag over this section last month, and the proclamation of occupation from Oslo, constitute a violation of Danish rights. The note pleads that the occupation be declared null and void.

At the same time the Danish representative at Oslo instructed the Danish Government and instructed the Danish Government to protest to the Norwegian Government and in Eastern Greenland was telegraphed today to Lange Koch, leader of a Danish exploration expedition there.

The Government does not intend to recall the Danish Minister from the Norwegian capital, but Premier Stauning told the newspaper that the Danish Government will not recognize the Norwegian claim.

The complaint alleged that Norwegian hunters, in flying the Norwegian flag over this section last month, and the proclamation of occupation from Oslo, constitute a violation of Danish rights. The note pleads that the occupation be declared null and void.

At the same time the Danish representative at Oslo instructed the Danish Government and instructed the Danish Government to protest to the Norwegian Government and in Eastern Greenland was telegraphed today to Lange Koch, leader of a Danish exploration expedition there.

The Government does not intend to recall the Danish Minister from the Norwegian capital, but Premier Stauning told the newspaper that the Danish Government will not recognize the Norwegian claim.

DENMARK DISPUTES CLAIM TO GREENLAND

Sends Protest Against Norwegian Occupation to Court of Justice.

COPENHAGEN, July 11.—A protest against the Norwegian occupation of Eastern Greenland was addressed to the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague tonight by the Danish Government.

The complaint alleged that Norwegian hunters, in flying the Norwegian flag over this section last month, and the proclamation of occupation from Oslo, constitute a violation of Danish rights.

The note pleads that the occupation be declared null and void. At the same time the Danish representative at Oslo was instructed to protest vigorously to the Norwegian Government and inform it of the complaint made to The Hague. Police authority in Eastern Greenland was telegraphed today to Laue Koch, leader of a Danish expedition there.

The Government does not intend to recall the Danish Minister from the Norwegian capital, but Premier Stauning told the newspaper Berlingske Tidende that Norway's proclamation of occupation, based on the fact that a group of hunters and students had planted the Norwegian flag on the territory in question, had effected a break between the two countries.

It was pointed out that Denmark had not considered her sovereignty questioned until recently and that Norwegian traders always had been treated in a friendly fashion and had received every facility in Greenland.

It was learned that the line to be taken before The Hague tribunal by the Danes is that Norway in 1921 relinquished all claims and that the agreement in 1924 which gave Norwegian hunters and sealers access to Eastern Greenland was tantamount to Norwegian recognition of Danish sovereignty there.

'LOST' SAME BAG 17 TIMES
New York Man Collected $5100 in Insurance.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Albert M. Kresner, an insurance broker, today told United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill that he lost the same black leather bag 17 times and collected $5100 in insurance against its loss.

He is held in $5000 bail for the Federal grand jury on a complaint of using the mails to defraud. The bag was insured for $300 on each of the 17 occasions when it was lost.

$21,690,000,000 VALUE OF RAILROADS, I. C. C. HOLDS

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Fixing a new basis on which to calculate the income needs of the railroads, the Interstate Commerce Commission today announced a tentative valuation of $21,691,000,000.

This figure, based on previous valuations in Eastern $10,370,000,000, Southern $9,550,000,000 and Western $1,771,000,000, includes all class one railroads, their nonoperating subsidiaries and switching and terminal companies. It was issued together with figures showing income, expenses and other statistical items of use to persons and organizations expected to participate in the forthcoming hearings on the railroad petition for a 15 per cent freight rate increase.

The net book value of the roads as compiled from annual reports was fixed at $23,518,000,000 without working capital and $24,078,000,000 with working capital included. It also was explained that the net book value contained property in Canada operated by United States railroads.

The commission's tentative valuation as of Dec. 31 showed the Eastern carriers to be worth $9,318,000,000; Southern $9,550,000,000 and Western $1,771,000,000. The net book valuation without working capital was fixed at $9,565,000,000 for Eastern lines; $9,550,000,000 for Southern roads and $9,998,000,000 for Western roads. With working capital figured in the tentative values adjusted to Dec. 31 last includes all class one railroads, their nonoperating subsidiaries and switching and terminal companies. It was issued together with figures showing income, expenses and other statistical items of use to persons and organizations expected to participate in the forthcoming hearings on the railroad petition for a 15 per cent freight rate increase.

ONE ROBBER CONVICTED; THREE PLEAD GUILTY

Sentences Range From Five Years for Howard Hogan to 12 for Negro.

One robber was tried and convicted by jury in the criminal division of Circuit Court last week, while three others pleaded guilty and got prison terms.

Howard Hogan, 21, was found guilty and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for holding up Arlie Gatlin, 2736 West Pine boulevard, in front of his home on Jan. 1.

Those who pleaded guilty of robbery were Charles Bishop, 29, and Cephus Eckford, 24, Negroes. Both had previously been convicted of felonies. Bishop received concurrent 12-year penitentiary terms for robbery and an additional three-year sentence for assault to kill. Eckford got 10-year concurrent terms for the same robberies and an additional two years for assault to kill. Bishop was more severely punished because he carried the pistol. The pair robbed Harry Glassman, grocer, of 506 South Garrison avenue, of $35 on April 17, and Abe Daniel, an employee of a drug store at 424 South Jefferson avenue, the following day. In the latter robbery $85 was taken. On April 21 they attempted to hold up Sam Thomas in his restaurant at 3330 Franklin avenue, shooting him in the right arm, but running away when Thomas threw a butcher knife at them.

Theodore Heldorn, 24, received a five-year penitentiary sentence when he pleaded guilty to robbing Walter Casteel, 4018 Marfitt avenue, in O'Fallon Park when $10 was taken.

Others who entered pleas of guilty and their punishments, follow: James C. Logan, drawing check on bank in which he had no funds, two years; Oliver Tusant, petit larceny, three months; Paul Hill, common assault, year; Albert Jones, petit larceny, three months; Will Rothchild, enticing female to house of ill fame, three months; Tead Anderson, carrying a concealed weapon, 50 days, paroled on payment of costs; Charles Barthett, petit larceny, 27 days in jail; Temelcoff, assault to rob, year; James W. Williams, petit larceny, six months; Roy Girthoffer, forgery, six months; James H. Gerson, larceny of automobile, six months, and George J. Pavelic, forgery, six months.

WARRANTS CHARGE THREE MEN WITH ROBBERY CHAIN STORE
Former State Witness in Bank Robbery One of Those Named

Warrants charging robbery under the Henry law, which provides a maximum penalty of death for robbery with a deadly weapon, were issued at Clayton yesterday against William O'Hara, State witness in the Overland State Bank robbery in 1929, Thomas McCauley and George Capelli.

The complaining witnesses, John P. Martin, 4801 Austria avenue, manager of a chain grocery at 8125 Gravois road, said the men took $39 from him, and forced him to accompany them to the store and there turn over an additional $18.

After testifying for the State in the Overland bank robbery, and being held in jail more than two years, O'Hara, a former service car driver, was permitted to plead guilty to a lesser charge, sentenced to two years' confinement and released. A murder charge arising out of the killing of Todd V. Phelps, the bank cashier, was dismissed as to O'Hara.

Census Bureau Smokers Freed.
By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Fourteen employees of the Census Bureau, including several young women, have been dismissed for leaving their desks to smoke outside the Bureau building. Smoking in the office, one of the Government's war-time temporary structures, is forbidden.

CLEVELAND RACKETEER SLAIN

CLEVELAND, July 11.—Liquor runners' guns, clearing the Sharon-Youngstown road for their cargoes, are thought by Cleveland police to account for the slaying of Dave Amdur, 30, and the wounding of Joseph Blank, 24, described as Cleveland racketeers.

The body of Amdur—the third Cleveland racketeer slain in the last three weeks—was found in a lane near the Youngstown-Sharon road, almost at the Pennsylvania State line in Trumbull County. Blank, wounded three times, is in a serious condition.

HURLEY TO MAKE 17-DAY STUDY OF PHILIPPINES

War Secretary's Intended Visit Follows Conferences With Quezon, Independence Leader.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 11.—A close study is being made by the administration and Congressional leaders on the long pending question of Philippine independence. The question undoubtedly will be one of the most important before the incoming Congress.

Besides numerous individual studies by Republican and Democratic members of both branches of Congress, Secretary Hurley will depart from a West Coast port for Manila Aug. 3 for a 17-day visit in the Archipelago. Brigadier-General Francis Lejau Parker, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, has been in the islands for some time studying the situation there.

Although Secretary Hurley, in a letter to Chairman Bingham of the Senate Insular Affairs Committee last May, maintained that immediate independence of the Philippines would not be feasible, the administration has continued silent on its intentions.

To Accompany Hurley. Special significance is being given to the War Secretary's trip in view of the conferences recently between himself, President Manuel Quezon of the Philippine Senate and Major-General Frank R. McCoy, territorial expert and army authority, who has discussed the matter with many members of Congress, probably will make the trip to Manila with Hurley.

Quezon came to the United States to head the campaign for Philippine independence, but the legislation was sidetracked in the last session of Congress. Advocates of Philippine independence received some encouragement last winter, however, when Representative Knutson of Minnesota was made chairman of the House Insular Affairs Committee. He has urged independence for the islands.

A large number of American farm organizations are in favor of granting the islands freedom so that tariffs may be imposed on sugar, coconut oil and other products imported duty free now in competition with domestic products.

Divergent Opinion. Among the Congressional visitors to the Archipelago this summer there is divergence of opinion on the independence question. Senator Patterson (Rep.), Missouri, came out against immediate independence before sailing a few days ago for San Francisco. Senator Hawes (Rep.), colleague of Patterson, is in favor of independence. Senator Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, also an independence advocate, is visiting the islands this summer.

Although there are many who would set the island free for economic reasons, to render their products subject to the tariffs, and others who favor independence for sentimental reasons, many are desirous of giving the Philippines a gradual opportunity to show their ability at self-government and to adjust their economic conditions under graduated tariff schedules. It is believed in some quarters the administration has in mind a plan embodying this general idea.

Senator Bingham recently predicted a bill for Philippine independence would be approved at the next session. Whether his statement can be taken as an indication of the administration's unexpressed position on the question is a matter of conjecture. Bingham has advocated a conference in Manila on the subject.

Last winter Secretary Stimson indicated conditions were not favorable for immediate independence. Senator King (Dem.), Utah, plans to reintroduce an immediate independence bill. Senator Robinson (Rep.), Indiana, Senator Odell (Rep.), Nevada, and Representative Gibson and Vermont and Dowell of Iowa, both Republicans, were among those visiting the Philippines shortly after Congress adjourned.

1500 SHRINERS TO DINE UNDER SHEIK'S TENT IN CLEVELAND

Elaborate Oriental Setting Made for 100,000 Visitors From Continent and Hawaii. By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, July 11.—A banquet set for 1500 under a sheik's tent 99 by 150 feet made of red, yellow and green artificial silk, a public square setting of giant palm trees, a stage 400 feet long set with an imperial palace amid an Oriental city, street dances and parades, including a parade at night lighted in colors, are some of the features to be seen starting tomorrow when approximately 100,000 persons from the United States, Canada, Mexico and Hawaii will arrive with 1200 members of the Imperial Council of the ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine for their fifty-seventh annual convention.

There will be choruses, bands and chautauqs, ballet dancers and Oriental animals, such as zebras, elephants and camels.

Tomorrow, the first day, will be given over to devotional services at the Cleveland Municipal Stadium, truck calling at the store.

ROBERT SPENCER, ARTIST, ENDS LIFE AT NEW HOPE, PA.

Strain Caused by Overwork Thought Reason: Won Many Awards for Paintings.

By the Associated Press. NEW HOPE, Pa., July 11.—Strain brought on by overwork is held responsible for the suicide of Robert Spencer, artist, who shot himself at his home today. He was 62 years old. Spencer was the winner of many prizes and had an international reputation. He is survived by his widow, formerly Margaret A. Fulton of Santa Barbara, Cal., and two daughters, Anne and Margaret. He was born in Harvard, Neb.

Among the prizes awarded Spencer for his work were the second Hallgarten, won in 1913, and the George James gold prize, in 1914. In October, 1926, he was twice honored by art juries in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. He received one of seven gold medals at the sesqui-centennial exposition in Philadelphia for paintings in oil by American artists and the International Jury of Award conferred on him the highest award for any of the 106 canvases in the twenty-fifth annual exhibition at Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh. In November, 1928, Spencer was one of nine prize winners for exhibits by the National Academy of Design in New York. He also won the Isidor medal for figure composition.

EX-CONVICT AND WIFE ADMIT PASSING 50 FORGED CHECKS

She Is Arrested at Store and He at House, Where Rubber Stamps Are Seized.

A man who said he was Edwin C. Elson, 29 years old, a printer and former convict, and his 23-year-old wife, were held yesterday after they admitted forging and cashing several purported payroll checks for amounts of $15 to $25. The young woman was arrested Friday afternoon after one of the checks had been rejected at a store at 4244 Manchester avenue, and her husband was found a short time afterward at a house on Maryland avenue. She had several checks with her when arrested, and checks, rubber stamps and other equipment were found in their rooms.

Elson is said to have told police he forged all the checks and had his wife present them at women's ready-to-wear clothing stores. He admitted serving a sentence in the penitentiary and three sentences in the Workhouse for forgery. Several proprietors of stores where they cashed checks have identified them. Elson told police they had cashed about 50 checks, some of which he had obtained at a printing place where he formerly worked, and some from a bank.

PAYS $10 FOR HIS JOKE

Building Commissioner Aegerter is congratulating himself on having last laugh as the result of a practical joke perpetrated July 4 by Harvey Bessa, at whose home in Normandy he spent the holiday. Bessa surreptitiously attached a note, "Finder return to City Hall and receive $10 from Building Commissioner Aegerter," to a paper balloon. Mrs. L. Davis of Ferguson found the balloon and returned it with the note, which was a complete surprise to the Building Commissioner. But the writing looked familiar.

Friday night he collared Bessa at Union Station ready to depart for a Shrine convention, confronted him with the note and took $10 from his wallet. Bessa grinned piteously up to the Building Commissioner. Aegerter mailed the money to Mrs. Davis with the explanation that some of his friends had provided it.

FATHER SAYS SONS BEAT HIM

Hyman Britton, 48, Taken to Hospital With Cuts and Bruises.

Hyman Britton, 48 years old, was taken from his home, 777 Walton avenue, to Missouri Baptist Hospital Friday night suffering from cuts and bruises which, he told police, were inflicted by his two sons.

Britton, who recently married a second time, told police he was sitting on the porch of his home when the two young men came by and quarreled with him. He said that they resented his remarriage two months after he and their mother were divorced. One of the sons was arrested.

GANGSTERS KILL WRONG MAN

Polic Think Brooklyn Hoodlums Sought Brother.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The third botched "job" by Brooklyn hoodlums within a week sent Irving Shapiro, 28-year-old racketeer, spinning to a sidewalk today with 10 slugs in his back.

He was dead when police arrived, but they figured out his assassination was all a mistake. The seven gunmen who lurked about his home for three hours and ended their vigil by pumping him full of lead were really after his brother, Meyer, a power in the shady haunts of Brownsville, Brooklyn.

Confession Held Up for $18

Henry Stehr, a confectioner, was held up in his store at 2942 Iowa avenue yesterday morning by three men, all of them armed. They took $18 from Stehr and $2 from Matt Haudestiel, driver of a bread truck calling at the store.

Big Shipment Indicates Renewed Buying Power and Maytag Popularity

BUSINESS is good in this territory. A full trainload shipment made necessary to take care of the June demand for Maytag Washers and Ironers.

The new trend in buying is thrift. The Maytag appeals to the greatest number of buyers because its superior quality and performance effect true economy. The Maytag is the cheapest washer to own because it assures the most satisfactory service for the longest period of time.

The Maytag is now in its eighth consecutive year of world leadership. Investigate the one-piece cast-aluminum tub and marvelous roller water remover before you choose a washer.

The New Maytag Table Ironer enables you to iron all your clothes sitting down wherever there is an electric wall plug. Only the Maytag Ironer has the Alakrome Thermo-Plate. It heats nine times faster than a steel shoe—does better ironing with less current.

PHONE for a Maytag washer or ironer or both on trial in your home. If the Maytag doesn't sell itself, don't keep it. Divided payments you'll never miss.

E. G. LEWIS TO GO FREE; MUST QUIT ALL PROMOTIONS

Parole of University City Founder Effective Sept. 1—Investors Lost $17,000,000 in His Schemes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, July 11.—The parole of E. G. Lewis, announced today by the Federal Parole Board, effective Sept. 1, is made conditional upon future abstention from his promotional activities, which, it is estimated, cost investors more than $17,000,000 in Missouri and nearly $10,000,000 in California.

Lewis, founder and exploiter of University City, Mo., and Atascadero, Cal., was sentenced in 1925 at Los Angeles to serve five years in the Federal penitentiary at McNeil Island, Wash., for using the mails to defraud. Charges concerned a personal loan campaign in which the prosecution alleged Lewis and associates obtained $1,000,000. Lewis became eligible for parole a year ago.

A fraud order forbidding his use of the mails was issued in 1927 when investigation by postal authorities showed that Lewis, in transferring his operations to California, had simply enlarged the scale of get-rich-quick schemes which caused issuance in 1905 of a similar order, which ended his promotions in St. Louis. His California ventures of many sorts, pyramided on two real estate developments, had gone into involuntary bankruptcy with liabilities of $10,000,000.

"$500,000 'Defense Fund'." Following their collapse, Lewis started a "defense fund," for which he admitted collecting $500,000, much of it from investors in poor circumstances who, despite contributions to his schemes, still had faith in him. He himself estimated that in his 30 years of promotions he had handled $100,000,000.

Lewis had fallen in Nashville, Tenn., as a promoter of insect powder sales when he invaded St. Louis in 1895 in an attempt to market a tooth powder and a foot powder. In 1898 a plan to sell watches on an "endless chain" contributions to his schemes, still had faith in him. He himself estimated that in his 30 years of promotions he had handled $100,000,000.

MORGAN GOING TO ENGLAND Will Cross Atlantic on His Yacht, Corsair.

By the Associated Press. GLEN COVE, N. Y., July 11.—J. Pierpont Morgan's power yacht Corsair, with her owner aboard sails next week for England on what may prove to be an attempt to beat his last year's trans-Atlantic time of nine days. But details of the voyage are shrouded in the Morgan tradition of silence.

Morgan's destination is his English home, Wall Hall, at Aldenham, in Hertfordshire. The yacht will return immediately, but Morgan will not come back to this country until November. While aboard he will celebrate his sixty-fourth birthday.

Says He Was Kidnaped.

By the Associated Press. JOLIET, Ill., July 11.—John Kinsley, pool room and saloon proprietor, walked into the Police Headquarters today and reported he had been kidnaped for $5000 ransom. Kinsley has been missing since Monday night. According to his story to the officers, Kinsley was taken by four men who demanded a ransom. After a series of automobile rides, and a stay overnight in a barn, Kinsley said he was released near Springfield and walked two miles to that city, where he remained another night and returned to Joliet by train Thursday.

RACKETEER MADE FELLOW PRISONERS PAY HIM TRIBUTE

Federal Officials Say Shake-down Scheme Worked as Well in U. S. Penitentiary as Outside.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, July 11.—A former racketeer, using strong-arm methods to enforce a shake-down scheme among his fellow prisoners at the Atlanta penitentiary, was reported by Federal prison officials as one of those behind the transfer of certain wealthy inmates to other institutions.

The man's name was withheld. It was asserted authoritatively, however, that he was known as one of "a tough gang of thugs," and had used force and threats to secure money from prisoners.

Federal agents are continuing to investigate the scheme uncovered at Atlanta, under which certain inmates, upon the payment of reputedly small sums to prisoners in "key positions," were transferred from the penitentiary to road camps and other places.

One Federal officer said such exhibitions of force within the ranks of large prison groups were not uncommon, and that often convicts had been known to carry in to prisons the practices for which they were sentenced. At the same time, James V. Bennett, acting director of Federal prisons, issued an emphatic denial of reports that a group of men convicted of smuggling, graft and bootlegging were enjoying comparative luxury and little, if any, work at the prison camp at Fort Wadsworth, N. Y.

He said five men, known to have paid bribes to obtain their transfer from Atlanta to the camp, were now en route back to the Georgia institution. The shake-down system under which they obtained transfer, he added, had been broken up. Three of the men to be sent back to Atlanta were Paul Rabkin, Solomon Rubman and Joseph Pearlman.

"Some of the prisoners formerly at Fort Wadsworth were willing to pay bribes to get there not because it would mean easy work and more pleasant living, but because they could be nearer their families in New York City," Bennett said. "Conditions are as rigid at the camp as in any of the New York City prisons on Riker's Island, Blackwell's Island or Governor's Island."

The acting prison chief said each prisoner was required to do eight hours of manual labor each day, and that they were quartered in ancient enlisted men's barracks that once had been abandoned. Guns are not used by guards at the camp, he said, because most of the men sent there were honor prisoners, often on the eve of parole, who would not forfeit their advantages to chance an escape.

He added that some additional liberty was allowed them in the matter of visitors.

Police Guard Strike City With Machine Guns and Gas Citizens of Central Falls, R. I., Seek to Eliminate Communist Agitators.

By the Associated Press. CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., July 11.—State and local police, armed with machine guns and tear gas grenades, guarded this city tonight while citizens, aroused by strike developments, took steps to rid it of Communist agitators.

Three times within 48 hours, the city was obliged to call all of its police resources and those of the State to fight back mob attacks on the property of General Fabrics Corporation, where a strike is on. Stones, sticks and debris were hurled by the crowd, while the police used their night sticks and tear gas.

Members of the textile strikers' committee failed to respond tonight to an invitation for a parley with the Polish-American Citizens Club, called to "rid the city of outside agitators." Emissaries sent to the strike leaders' homes learned that a Communist leader had been there before them and had warned the committeemen not to appear at the club.

Joseph D. Koszowski, president of the club, is going ahead with plans for a meeting of civic and political organizations tomorrow to form a citizens' committee to settle the strike. Leaders of the National Textile Workers Union also have called a mass meeting for tomorrow afternoon.

NOTED ARCHITECT IS KILLED

F. J. Fitzpatrick, Chicago, Struck by Automobile.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, July 11.—Francis W. Fitzpatrick, widely known consulting architect, was knocked down by an automobile and fatally injured early today.

A native of Montreal, Mr. Fitzpatrick came to the United States soon after receiving his college education. He practiced his profession for several years in Duluth, Minn., and then came to Chicago, where he became a pioneer in the fireproofing, steel and skyscraper construction. He also was well known as a writer on architectural subjects.

TELEVISION BROADCASTING STATION SOUGHT FOR CITY

Application for License Filed as Washington by Trav-Ler Manufacturing Corporation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, July 11.—A television broadcasting station for St. Louis was sought in an application filed with the Federal Radio Commission today by the Trav-Ler Manufacturing Corporation of Illinois, 1818 Washington avenue, St. Louis. Filed by C. R. Ogle, secretary of the corporation, the application states there are no licensed experimental television stations in or near St. Louis "due to the problem of synchronization." Television adds, "must be a local proposition."

The corporation, according to the application, is capitalized at $10,000. The station would cost $3000 and is to be completed within 30 days after receipt of authority. Images to be transmitted would be of the recognized standard of 60 lines with 20 frames per second. The transmitter would be of 500 watts power, and would be built by engineers of the company. R. O. Proehl was named as the chief engineer. The channels requested are 2300 to 2500 and 1750 to 2000 kilocycles.

STIMSON SPENDS WEEK END WITH GRANDI AT SEASIDE

By the Associated Press. ROME, July 11.—Secretary of State Stimson went today with Foreign Minister Grandi for a cool week-end of rest at the seaside at Castle San Gallo, where they will have plenty of opportunity thoroughly to review the problems of disarmament and economics.

Both Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Grandi have wished to show Stimson more attention than the Secretary desired. He banned public ceremonies on his arrival in Italy.

It was not expected Mussolini would see the Secretary before Stimson takes his train for Paris Tuesday, but San Gallo is only 40 miles away, and the Premier could motor there quickly.

BANK DROPS SUIT AGAINST WORTH INVESTMENT CO.

Action Grew Out of Failure to Pay $36,000 on Apartment House Bonds.

The suit of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. as trustee for bondholders against the Worth Investment Co., Leonard de Bore and the Leonardo Apartments, was dismissed before Circuit Judge Hogan yesterday at the instance of the petitioner. The suit grew out of failure to pay approximately $36,000 principal and interest due on bonds which were issued by the Worth company six years ago to finance the Leonardo Apartments, 4166 Lindell boulevard. The bonds, of which a total of $172,000 is outstanding, are protected by a deed of trust.

Among other relief sought by the trustee was a request for a receiver to take charge of the apartments, but its attorney, Thomas S. McPheeters, informed the court several days ago it was not intended to press this request. At the time he objected to similar action being taken on an intervening plea filed in behalf of Thomas J. O'Meara, a bondholder, and the answer of the Worth Investment Co. and its president, E. M. Worthington, consenting to a receivership. O'Meara also dismissed his plea.

According to McPheeters the matter can be handled so as to avoid the expense of receivership. He was supported in this view by Harry Troll, attorney for the estate of the late Marion S. Fuqua, realty dealer, who owned an equity in the apartments.

Here and There on The Air

Marion Talley Sings Tomorrow—Address by King George Saturday Morning—Sponsored Program to Have No Commercial Announcements.

By J. L. S.
Marion Talley, who retired from the Metropolitan Opera several years ago, is to sing an aria from "Mignon," "Comin' Through the Rye," "Silent On," by Denza, and "One Night There," by Danks, in a special over the WJZ chain, including KWK, at 8:30 tomorrow night.

Attempts will be made to pick up and rebroadcast over NBC chains within the next few days, as follows: Recital by Olive Groves, Cyril Smith and Peggy Cochran, at 2:15 Thursday over WLW, KWK and other stations; concert by a military band at 2:30 Friday, probably over KSD; recital by a quartet at 2:45 Tuesday afternoon, July 21, probably over KSD.

Welcome Lewis and Harry Sailer's orchestra will be featured in a series of "Melody Girl" programs over the CBS chain at 7:15 p. m. Thursdays, starting this week. The sponsor promises that there will be no commercial announcements during these broadcasts. The only commercial credit will be allusions to Miss Lewis as "The Melody Girl," by Ernest Chappell, who will play an incidental part. There will be no regular announcer. Sailer will play a violin solo during each broadcast.

An address by King George of England, when he opens a hospital near London, will be broadcast over the CBS network between 8:45 and 9:15 next Saturday morning, weather permitting. This will be his first broadcast at a time convenient for American listeners. Two previous addresses broadcast in this country have come at 5 a. m.

The CBS chain will broadcast two concerts by the Rochester quartet, from 2 to 3 p. m. Tuesday and from 1:45 to 2:30 Thursday afternoon. The first concert will bring music by Smetana, Von Weber, Herbert and other composers of about the same rank, while the Thursday program has works by Glazounoff, Rubinstein, Shubert, Delibes, Offenbach and Tchaikovsky.

The comedy series relating the adventures in Europe of "Bird" and "Ash," two small, naive American women, which was postponed from July 6, is now scheduled to open over the CBS chain at 4:45 p. m. tomorrow and to be broadcast daily, except Sunday, thereafter.

The roles of Mary and Bob in the broadcasts over KSD at a clock Monday nights are played by Nora Stirling and Cecil Secrest. Frederick Vittel, tenor, also continues on this program, shifted from the Columbia network on which it was a Friday night feature.

Announcement is made that the KWK station staff will appear at the Astor Theatre, taking part in the de luxe performances. Among those scheduled for stage appearances are Thomas Patrick Conner, president of the company; Herbert Berger, pianist and orchestra leader; Willis, pianist and orchestra leader; John Harrington, announcer; Del King, announcer; Bob Thomas, announcer; the Musketiers quartet; Diane Craddock, blues singer; Robert Taylor, Hy Fekinger, comedian; Frank and Ernest, comedians; and the Midnight Merry-makers orchestra. Also programs will be broadcast from a special studio in the basement of the Ambassador Building. The "Radio Derby," a KWK night feature, will be featured in the stage performances.

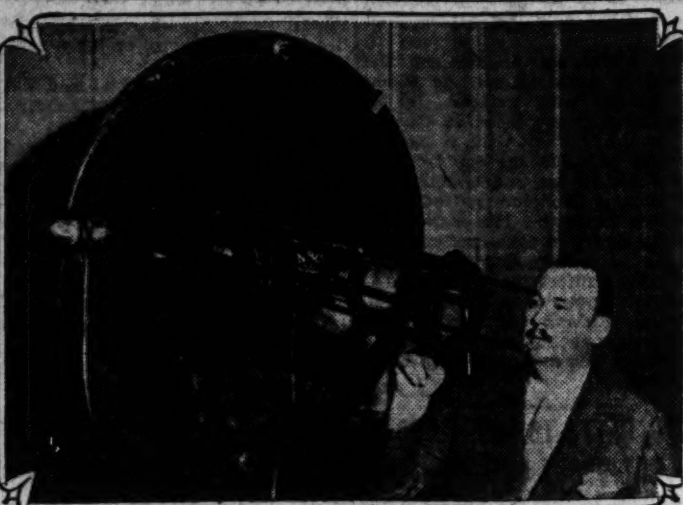

The singing Redheads, Dorothy Arzoo and Melvin Wilkerson, have returned to KMOX. They are scheduled to sing daily except Sunday from the station at 2:15 p. m. and also will broadcast at night.

The play Symphony Orchestra is to play music by Schubert in its concert over WENR and WLW from 8:45 to 9:30 tomorrow evening. KWK has a local program scheduled for the 6:00-6:30 period tomorrow. The overture to "Romeo and Juliet" will be featured in the "unfinished" symphony, and the "Marche Militaire" also programmed.

Toscha Seidel, the violinist, who turned from the world concert stage to radio; Theo Karle, tenor; the Souders quartet, and Sam Lamm's orchestra are billed for the first performance, at 8 o'clock Friday night, of a new Pageant series over the CBS chain, including KMOX. Seidel will play the "Meditation" from "Thais" and another piece. Karle will sing "The Message of the Violet."

Chopin's Nocturne in E-flat will be played by Schubert and two piano recital at 10:30 this morning. Examiner Walker of the Federal Radio Commission has recommended denial of an application by the Chicago Broadcasting Corporation, Inc., for a license to build and operate a 100-watt station on

The Newest in Microphones

Paul Whiteman and the new parabolic microphone which has developed by the NBO for better "pick-up" of orchestra and operatic concerts.

1200 kilocycles, the channel used by WIL, St. Louis.

Carabell Johnson, soprano, who has just returned from a concert tour in Europe, will sing in the concert hour over WLW at 9 o'clock tonight. An orchestra will play music by Gomez, Ibanez, Bizet, Lacombe and Strauss.

WLW has begun a series of "Fantasy" concerts by a military band at 6:05 Friday evenings.

Ten square miles of land are required for an international radio station. This is not because receivers and transmitters require so much space, but because antennas, particularly those used to send and receive messages across oceans and continents, need acre after acre over which to spread.

About everything in aerial construction is to be seen at the receiving station at Riverhead, L. I., and at Rocky Point, the sending station 16 miles away.

Long wave antennas ramble across miles of terrain, one in fact, being six miles long and aerials for short wave signals, most of which are of the directional type for sending or receiving in particular directions, are everywhere.

To support the antenna hundreds of masts of the telephone pole type have been put up, in addition to row after row of steel towers 150 feet high.

While the sending and receiving are done on Long Island, the station is handled by remote control from downtown New York, where operators pound keys and typewriters just as in a regular telegraph office.

Many of the messages are sent at such speeds, 250 words or more per minute, that it is necessary to use automatic machines.

"The Goldbergs," one of the more popular of the radio serials, will be broadcast as a sponsored feature daily, except Tuesdays and Sundays, over WENR, WWJ and other NBC stations, beginning tomorrow. The time will be 5:45 to 6 o'clock.

"Molly," the mother in the sketches, is the planner and philosopher of the family. "Jake," the father, is portrayed as an impetuous but lovable character. "Roe," the daughter, and "Sammy," the son, are supposed to be typical children of today.

Giuseppe Caruso will direct his orchestra, including the saxophone section, in a series of six concert recitals in place of the Dilly Jinks and Brille Hare broadcasts at 7 p. m. Fridays, starting July 24. Jones and Hare are scheduled to resume broadcasts starting Sept. 4. KWK is to carry the Caruso programs.

Eight weekly concerts at 7:45 Sunday night, beginning today, will be broadcast over KYY, WJR, WHAS, KOA, and WOAL. They will be played by the Chicago Philharmonic Orchestra led by Adolphe Dumont and will come from the stadium of Loyola University, Chicago. Tonight the orchestra will play Casella's "Italian Rhapsody." Alice Mock, soprano of the Chicago Opera, will sing the big aria from "Traviata" and "Scary Shadows," by Olga Menn, a Chicago musician.

WANTS INCOME TAX LAW ENFORCED IN RURAL DISTRICTS

St. Louis Chamber of Commerce Asks State Auditor Thompson What Measures He Has Taken.

OFFERS TO LEND ITS ASSISTANCE

Suggests Increased Force Will Permit "Combing" of Country as Well as of the Cities.

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce is seeking assurance from the State Auditor that the new State income tax law will be enforced as well in the rural sections as in the cities.

In a letter to State Auditor L. D. Thompson, Charles H. Morrill, chairman of the Chamber's board of directors, requests the auditor as to the means to be used to obtain from the rural counties lists of persons not paying Federal income tax who are subject to the State tax.

The new law provides that a copy of the taxpayer's Federal return be filed with his State return and an executive order of President Hoover provides that State officials may inspect Federal returns. The State law, however, applies to a group with incomes of $1000 to $1500 in the case of single persons and $2000 to $3500 in the case of married persons who are not subject to the Federal income tax and therefore would not be discovered by inspection of Federal lists.

"Our investigation shows that your department has already secured from the Federal income tax authorities a list of persons who are not paying Federal income taxes, which has been the unfulfilling old standby of State enforcement in the past," the letter states. "The big fellow in this case is easy to get, and always got, but let's apply the new law to some of the enthusiasts who were for it because law enforcement in the past has enabled them to escape it."

"Naturally, the cities will always have to pay in major proportion, but they will do so willingly if they feel they are not the victims of law application of the law elsewhere. It's a State income tax law, and should be applied as such, and not as a city income tax law."

"In the past, with the limited force of only 10 field men under your direction, collection of the State income tax has naturally centered around congested centers of the State. But, with the increase of 13 field men, as authorized in the new income tax law, you will have a force sufficient to comb the rural sections of the State, just as you have been able to comb the cities in the past."

"Naturally, the Chamber of Commerce has a friendly interest in the method of the State officials in collecting taxes from all who are subject to provisions of the law. If the Chamber can be of assistance to you in any way, I assure you that we shall be glad to help because we believe that every person subject to payment of a tax under the Missouri law, should be compelled to make a return and pay the State the amount assessed against him."

Soviet Farm Plans Still Hampered By Peasants

lage and yet could be trusted by the Communists.

At first this collective was formed of 16 families, who contributed to it only two cows and nine horses. It now contains 114 families, of which 14 were formerly bedniak (poorest type) and 40 were coreniks (middle type). The middle peasants in all brought 21 horses and four cows; none of them contributed any farming implements except plows.

The whole farm was a litter of filth, with the barn a foot deep in manure. The animals were evidently starving; most of these animals died of bones had been brought in by poor peasants, who probably joined the kolhos because they had been unable as individuals to obtain fodder. All the fodder the kolhos had, however, was a small amount just received from the Red Army. The horses had had neither oats nor hay in six weeks.

Women were doing the heavy work of cleaning the barns and caring for the cows. There were 30 calves and 33 pigs, in somewhat better condition than the larger animals, but the source of their food was now cut off because the Swine Trust had recently taken over all swill of the Moscow restaurants from which this kolhos had previously obtained it.

The crops to be raised included hay, potatoes, beets, radishes, carrots and cabbage. Though it was late in April, plowing had not yet started; but I was shown where plants were being cultivated under glass for the first time, and was told that an instructor from Moscow was coming regularly to give his help.

An old house of four or five rooms had been turned over to communal use. One of the rooms

Kansas Musters Forces for Gas Rate Reduction Fight

dition in a sensible way just isn't a good business man."

The Governor said that when the conference was concluded he thought he had made an impression on Doherty and that the rate reduction would be forthcoming. He took time to consider the matter, and then took more time, the period extending more than two months, and there was no reduction.

Eldorado Rate Case.

Meantime there had come up for action an application by the Doherty company for permission of the Public Service Commission to increase its rates slightly in the town of Eldorado.

Permission was refused and the case was taken into court by the company, the commission being sustained in its application for a dismissal of the action on the ground that the company had not produced evidence to show the reasonableness of the charge made by the pipe line company to the distributing company.

Previously the courts had invariably held that the commission has no right to go into the pipe line charges, but the Kansas court had a new decision to follow. It was written by Chief Justice Hughes of the United States Supreme Court in a telephone company rate case in Illinois. Justice Hughes held that it was the duty of the commission to inquire into the reasonableness of charges made by the Western Electric Co. to the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. for equipment, both companies being owned by American Telephone and Telephone Co.

In the Eldorado case, the Doherty company appealed from the adverse decision, which followed the Hughes decision in the Illinois telephone case.

Woodring's request for a reduction in rates having gone unheeded, the State began moving up its reserves for action on all fronts.

Four Avenues of Attack.

Attacks could come from four departments of the State government—the executive, operating through the Public Service Commission, the legal, through the Attorney-General, the Blue Sky Commissioner through his power to control security sales and the Tax Commission, with its power over assessments of utilities.

The Tax Commission already had increased the assessed valuation of Doherty properties in Kansas approximately $6,500,000 as a part of a general increase of utilities, except railroads, of $21,000,000. This, while not welcomed by the utilities, probably gave them little concern as taxes, being part of the operating expenses, are passed on to the consumers in the rate.

The first active step, then, was an order by the Public Service Commission directing the Doherty companies to appear Aug. 14 and show cause, if any, why gas rates to the distributing companies should not be reduced 25 per cent.

It is the expectation that the Cities Service Co., the pipe line company, will appear and again deny the right of the State to inquire into the pipe line rate and that the question will go to the courts for a long battle.

Next in order was the notification to the Cities Service Co. from Carl Newcomer, Blue Sky Commissioner, that he had withdrawn approval of the Cities Service stock, except first preferred, from the list of securities exempted from the application of the law.

A suit to enjoin Newcomer from enforcing his order will come up for hearing in the District Court in Topeka, Monday. If the commission's order is sustained, it will be necessary for the company to make application for permission to sell its stock, when he can pass upon the question of its value.

Matter of Broker's Licenses.

But the Blue Sky Department is not relying entirely on the statute involved in this case. The Doherty stocks are sold in Kansas through Henry L. Doherty, doing business as Henry L. Doherty & Co., which has a broker's license. The Kansas law requires that licensed brokers must maintain financial statements to the Blue Sky Department when called on.

Newcomer said today that he was used as a kitchen; in two rooms, one was the dining room, a fourth was used as an office and the fifth served as a book bindery, where one or two men were at work.

Everywhere there was evidence of confusion, fifth, equal and idleness. If this was a fair example of a kolhos of the type, there is a long road to be traveled to success.

Undoubtedly cultivation in Russia had directed Doherty to file such a statement and that it had not been filed, the department having received merely an unverified statement from an employee.

"If our demand for a sworn statement is not complied with," said Newcomer, "it will be necessary for us to cancel Mr. Doherty's broker's license, and then, of course, he cannot sell the stock."

In addition to these actions, Attorney-General Roland Boynton has directed assistants to conduct an investigation to determine whether receivership suits should be brought against the Doherty companies. Kansas has a statute passed many years ago during a fight to compel the Missouri Pacific Railroad to rebuild a part of its line in the State, which the Attorney-General believes is susceptible of application in the gas situation.

This statute provides that in case any corporation becomes insolvent or abuses its corporate powers, the Attorney-General may make application for the appointment of a receiver to conduct the business of the corporation, either to wind up its affairs or to conduct them until the wrong complained of is stopped and then to turn it back to its corporate managers.

Attorney-General's Plan.

"If we decide there is a basis for receivership suits," the Attorney-General said, "they will be brought against the gas distributing companies of the Doherty group."

"There, will, of course, be no allegation of insolvency, but the actions will be based on an allegation of abuse of corporate powers because of the contracts under which the distributing companies pay the Doherty pipe line company 40 cents per 1000 cubic feet, and on any other improvident contracts which may be found. It is our thought that a receiver could remain in charge until these contracts were canceled and others more favorable negotiated."

"It will be necessary for us to show that the 40-cent rate is excessive, and it is on that question that I am now having an investigation made. Under the law it will not be necessary to make this showing to obtain the appointment of a receiver, it being within the discretion of the court to name a receiver immediately upon the filing of the application."

The rates of the Doherty companies vary in different Kansas cities and in Kansas City, though the rates are virtually controlled by the 40 cents which the pipe line company receives from the distributing company in nearly every instance.

Kansas City Star's Fight.

The Kansas City Star, which has been waging a relentless fight for a reduction in rates, both in Kansas City and in the Kansas towns, has contended the 40 cents rate was shown to be unfair by the very practice of the company in charging only 15 cents for that portion of the gas used in industry.

The reports of the Kansas City Gas Co. for 1930, show that it purchased from the Cities Service Gas Co. $3,731,817,000 cubic feet of gas for resale to industries, and $2,297,600 for resale to domestic consumers for cooking and heating use.

For domestic and heating gas, coming from the same wells and the same pipe line as the industrial gas, the distributing company paid 40 cents and got a sliding scale of rates, depending on the amount used.

For domestic, or cooking use, the rate to the consumer is 75 cents for the first 400 cubic feet, that being the minimum charge; 90 cents per thousand for the next 1600 cubic feet, 85 cents per thousand for the next 48,000 and 80 cents per thousand for all above 56,000 cubic feet. For heating the rate is $2 for the first 2000 cubic feet, $1 per thousand for the next 2000 cubic feet, and 50 cents per thousand for all over 3000 cubic feet.

The Star has taken the position that the law in Kansas, through holding that the 40-cent gas bought by the company becomes 90-cent or $1 gas to the domestic and heating consumer, while the same gas for industrial sale is 15-cent gas when bought by the company and is sold at an average of 16 cents to the industrial consumer.

By small farmers is uneconomic and will give way to co-operative effort. Further, I believe that all collective farms now organizing on a voluntary co-operative basis will ultimately develop into state farms, which, from the Government's point of view, are a most acceptable form of nationalized agriculture.

The peasants who are pooling their holdings into collectives be-

181 UNSAFE BUILDINGS CONDEMNED BY CITY

Commissioner Compiles List Covering Two Years—44 Were Repaired.

A compilation by Building Commissioner Aegerter for the two years for which he has been in office, ending July 1, shows that his department has condemned unsafe 181 buildings. Aegerter was employed in the Building Division for eight years previously, under three commissioners, and he estimated that in that period an average of about 12 buildings a year were condemned.

As described by Aegerter, the city is catching up with the needs of doing away with unsafe buildings, and he believes it will be necessary to condemn only 25 to 50 annually hereafter. There are 22 building inspectors who make reports under which the condemnations are ordered.

Condemnation is resorted to where a structure is dangerous to life or limb. Aegerter said. Principal causes of such condemnations, he stated, are bulged or cracked walls, or walls out of plumb, sometimes as much as four inches to a foot. Other reasons include damage from fires or explosions.

About half of the 181 buildings Aegerter condemned were vacant at the time. The majority of them were flats of tenements. The largest structures were five of four stories each. Forty-four of the condemned buildings were repaired satisfactorily by the owners and remain in use. The owners razed 100 others. The city wrecked 20 of street widening or were on plan sites. The Building Division wrecked 13 structures where the owners did not take action. There were four recent instances where removals or repairs had not been undertaken at the time of the compilation.

Aegerter issued a detailed list showing each building that was condemned.

S. J. T. STRAUS JR., SON OF CHICAGO FINANCIER, KILLED

Two Companions Injured When Auto Blew Tire and Turned Over in Kansas.

DODGE CITY, Kan., July 11.—S. J. T. Straus Jr., 19, son of the Chicago financier, died in a hospital today following an automobile accident 15 miles east of here yesterday. Death was attributed to shock.

Two companions of Straus reported the automobile, in which they were riding blew a tire and turned over on a gravel highway. A. E. Davidson, 19, son of M. P. Davidson, New York City, a hired chauffeur, reported that he suffered an injury to his right leg. Robert Eichholz, 20, Philadelphia, also the son of a lawyer, was cut about the face.

The youths, students at Harvard University, reported they were driving to Douglas, Ariz., for a vacation and had left Chicago Wednesday.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Samuel T. Straus Jr., 19-year-old Chicago youth killed in an automobile accident at Dodge City, Kan., was a nephew of the late Simon W. Straus, founder of S. W. Straus & Co., was at Charlevoix, Mich., to celebrate his birthday with the news came of his son's death.

Virginia Clears Insurance Firm. RICHMOND, Va., July 11.—Proceedings were dismissed today by the State Corporation Commission against the Security Life Insurance Co. of America under a decision that the capital structure of the company was in satisfactory condition.

Have that they have a property right in them, but sooner or later the ownership idea will die, the land will lose its identity and the state will own it. The kolhos will then have become a sovchos, the peasant will be a hired hand, and the fiction of peasant ownership will have been forgotten.

The development of large-scale farming and the use of modern agricultural implements will doubtless increase production of grain and other crops and furnish a constantly increasing surplus for export. What will happen to the home life and religion of the peasants is another matter, and it is interesting to speculate whether this new and vast addition to the proletarian population will have the same wages, working hours, cultural advantages and social insurance benefits enjoyed by the factory workers in the cities. Certainly such provisions are far distant now.

WORK ON GIVENS HALL TO START TOMORROW

Washington U. Structure to be Second Unit in School of Architecture.

Ground is to be broken tomorrow for Givens Hall, the $300,000 building to be constructed for the Washington University School of Architecture as the second unit of the university's fine arts center.

The new building is to be erected on Forsythe boulevard adjacent to the first completed unit—Bibby Hall, the imposing structure of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts—with which Givens Hall and a Museum of Fine Arts are to be connected in the completed arts center.

Givens Hall has been designed by the university architects, Jamieson & Spearl, in the late English Renaissance style in Bedford stone to harmonize with the similar design and material of the art school.

Large and well lighted drafting rooms, lecture rooms and studios will provide a capacity of 350 students. The building is four stories in height, 220 feet long and 60 feet wide. Construction by the James Black Masonry & Contracting Co. is to be completed by next April.

The building represents part of the $850,000 gift of Joseph B. Givens, retired architect and contractor, as a memorial to his parents, Joseph W. and Kate Abbey Givens. Setting aside $300,000 for the building, he gave $100,000 for maintenance and $450,000 for a trust fund. When accrued interest increases the trust to $1,500,000, income is to be divided between scholarships and general endowment.

For additional endowment the School of Architecture has $250,000 which was offered by an anonymous donor prior to Givens' gift, contingent upon the raising of at least $250,000 for the building and $100,000 for endowment.

Givens, a bachelor, retired from business in 1895. His father, a leading figure in construction work in the 'Seventies and 'Eighties, built the university buildings at Seventeenth street and Washington avenue, working entirely under verbal agreement, years before the university was moved to its present location.

Southwestern Lines To Ask I. C. C. To Approve New Rates

Would Give Trucking Pickup and Delivery Service on Merchandise

Tariffs covering pickup and delivery service on merchandise, proposed by 11 railroad lines in the Southwest, are being prepared for filing with the Interstate Commerce Commission about July 25, to become effective about Sept. 15.

Preparation of the tariffs followed a meeting here recently of the traffic vice presidents of Southwestern lines, at which all phases under which the plan will be worked was discussed and agreements reached on details.

The railroads included in the arrangement were Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma and Kansas, west and south of the Missouri River. The pickup and delivery will be performed by local trucking companies under uniform contract. The service will be free at the present class rates within a radius of 100 miles. Beyond that limit, the service will be at the option of the owner or shipper, at an added charge of 10 cents for both pickup and delivery.

"Musketeers" New To Park

Prim's Musical Romance, Never Before Seen in St. Louis, to Start Last Half of Municipal Opera Season Tomorrow Night—Comparing the Local Enterprise With Chicago's Civic Venture, Which Shows a Huge Deficit.

WITH the final performance tonight of "The Countess Maritza" the Municipal Opera ends the first half of its thirteenth season in Forest Park and will start the latter six weeks tomorrow night with the first performance in St. Louis of Dumas' swash-buckling romance, "The Three Musketeers" set to music by Rudolph Friml. "A Wonderful Night," "Irene," "The Circus Princess" and "Rio Rita" are to follow with the closing show, for the week of Aug. 17 not yet selected.

Attendance this summer has not been up to last season's record but it has, nevertheless, been high and with good weather conditions the 1931 cycle will show a profit—probably one large enough to make up for last summer's deficit—for J. J. Shubert has kept the production costs well in hand.

That St. Louis Municipal Opera has accomplished its purpose of providing light summer entertainment for the masses at a price within the reach of everyone—to say nothing of the free seats—is, then, being proved again while, according to a report just issued, the Chicago Civic Opera last season had the biggest loss in all the history of operatic enterprises, namely $1,079,473 which is also one-third more than the millionaire guarantors previously agreed to make good, but the Chicago Music Foundation has stepped forward like a good angel and is paying what is necessary to make up the shortage. Last season patronage fell off and fewer performances were given than in the previous year, 89 as against 101. The prices of seats was cut from $4.02 to $3.99, but the average audience was 2338 as against 3,030 the previous year. The cost of the opera per seat among the patrons if paid in full at the box office would have been $8.01 for which the patron paid only $3.99 and the guarantors and Chicago Music Foundation the difference.

And, just in passing, it might be remarked, that the average price of seats in Forest Park is 70 cents.

THE coming week's show in the Park, "The Three Musketeers," ran for a solid year at the Lyric Theater in New York, where Florenz Ziegfeld first produced it. Municipal Opera will present it for the first time anywhere upon a revolving stage, and for the first time anywhere except under the personal direction of Ziegfeld. It has provided a fine cast, while the costuming and scenery is said to be the most elaborate ever shown in a Forest Park production.

Fast moving dramatic action complicated with intrigue and two charming love stories is reported to have been responsible for the successes of "The Three Musketeers" elsewhere. Dumas' classic is itself essentially drama for all its novel form and many successful plays have been made with it as a basis. And William Anthony McGuire who provided the book for the Ziegfeld version was not the least successful of the playwrights who have adapted it. He follows closely the Dumas story, deviating from it only for the sake of strengthening dramatic action. Rudolph Friml, collaborator in "Rose Marie" and the creator of the spirited melodies of "The Vagabond King" provided a musical score studded with such melody-gems as "My Sword and I," "Your Eyes," "The March of the Musketeers," "Queen of My Heart" and "Ma Belle."

IN the musical play, as in the book, D'Artagnan, cadet of Gascony, incurable boaster, incurable romanticist, splendid lover, and splendid fighter, sets forth penniless for Paris, with a letter to his father's old comrade, Captain de Treville, which he believes will place him at once in the service of the King of France as a member of the crack company of the King's Musketeers. His father has told D'Artagnan that he is the greatest swordsman, the greatest lover in all France. And the young Gascon doesn't hesitate to say so.

At the inn of the Jolly Miller, outside Paris, he runs afoul of the Comte de Rochefort, a spy in the service of Cardinal Richelieu, who is seeking the English Duke of Buckingham. The Duke loves Queen Anne of France, and his love is returned, but she is none the less loyal to her marriage vows. Richelieu, for political advantage, would compromise her. At the inn also, is Lady de Winter, lady in waiting to the Queen, but another of Richelieu's spies, who seeks a letter to the Duke which the Queen has entrusted to Constance Bonacieux. Also at the inn are Athos, Porthos and Aramis, three of the King's Musketeers, who have just been embroiled in a battle with the Cardinal's Guards, their bitterly envious rivals in the ranks of the army.

D'Artagnan, quick to a quarrel, inadvertently insults in turn each of the Three Musketeers, and eagerly accepts their respective challenge to fight them. He meets Constance Bonacieux, whom he loves, and when Rochefort halts Constance and annoys her in his search for the Queen's letter, D'Artagnan disarms him and helps the girl escape.

IN THE shadow of the walls of a convent D'Artagnan awaits the Musketeers, who arrive to keep their dueling dates. D'Artagnan insists that he will fight them in turn, but before they can engage the Cardinal's guard is upon them. The five guardsmen attempt to arrest the Musketeers whom D'Artagnan joins against them.

In the final scene the King of France at the plea of the Queen makes D'Artagnan a Musketeer, and Constance certain of the Gascon's love accepts his suit.

Leonard Ceiley heads the cast as D'Artagnan, with Hal Forde playing Richelieu, Gladys Baxter the Queen, and Greta Alpetier Constance Bonacieux. George Hassell plays Porthos, Archie Leach Athos, and Joseph Lertora Aramis, the three musketeers of the King. Jack Sheehan has a rollicking opportunity for his comic genius as Planchet, valet to D'Artagnan and Sybilla Bowhan is the treacherous Milady. Clifford Newdahl as the Duke of Buckingham, Victor Cassmore, Connie Graham, Robert Long, Marie Wilkins, Charles Chesney and other known Municipal Opera players are in the cast.

A week from tomorrow night the Municipal Opera will offer still another play new to St. Louis in "A Wonderful Night." This will be the second piece of the season from the pen of Fanny Todd Mitchell, a former St. Louisan, Mrs. Mitchell having adapted the book from "Le Reveillon" by Henry Melville and Ludovic Halevy. The music is by Johann Strauss. Gladys Baxter, Greta Alpetier, Clifford Newdahl, Doris Patston, Stephen Mills, Hal Forde and Archie Leach will head the cast.

Local Drama League Announces Officers

The Dramatic League of St. Louis announces the following officers for next year: Barton N. Grant, president; Frank M. Mayfield, president of Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, vice president; Sarah Gertrude Knott, executive director; Everett Paul Griffin, chairman of the board of directors. The Advisory Committee is composed of 31 well-known St. Louisans.

Edward G. Robinson in "Smart Money," at the Ambassador.

Mary Hart's Venture Into Cleveland Stock Falls Short of Mark

FROM Cleveland comes word that Mary Hart, who started the theatrical world with her great success in operating the Orpheum Theater here last winter as the home of her own stock company, has folded her tent and taken her organization out of that city. After making three productions in the Ohio town, Miss Hart decided that there was not enough business there, and closed up for a long rest preparatory to re-entering St. Louis next October.

Strange to say, the three pieces which Miss Hart offered in Cleveland and which failed to do business there were three of her best money-makers here—"Street Scene," "Command to Love" and "Apron Strings." None of them attracted sufficient patronage to indicate that the rest of the summer would prove successful. The first named play did only a small business for two weeks. "Command to Love," with Bert Lytell and Grace Menken as the stars, fared better for the same length of time, but "Apron Strings" with Eric Dressler and Dorothea Chard faded quickly.

Cleveland critics blame the excessive heat for the failure of the Hart company, which ran into the hottest weather the city had had in many years. It is significant that another company, commanded by Robert McLaughlin, which had played Cleveland successfully for several summers, closed up a week after Miss Hart ended her run.

Another German Film.

"The Fight for the Matterhorn," a German picture, will be shown at the Roof Garden of the Y. M. H. A. Y. W. H. A. Union and Entertainment by the Film Guild next Sunday evening, July 19, at 8:30. The entire picture was taken in the Swiss Alps. The cast consists of Swiss mountaineers in addition to the professional staff.

Gary to Do "Broken Wing."

"The Broken Wing," the stage's most ambitious venture into aviation subjects, has been purchased by Paramount for talking picture production and will be filmed with Gary Cooper in the stellar role as soon as the star returns from his present European vacation trip.

C. Aubrey Smith, William Haines and Irene Purcell in "Just a Gigolo," at the Fox.

The Week's New Films

By NIE

GANGSTER pictures of the underworld may be dying, but they are not giving up the ghost without a struggle for three of them—all on the bill at the cinema palaces this week. The best of these is "Smart Money" at the Ambassador.

In which Edward G. Robinson, the King of the screen's racketeers in a small town gambling barber who cleans up in the big city. Robinson is not really a gangster in this film although he has gang affiliations and goes to jail—betting two to one he'll be out in five years—for killing a pal by accident and carrying the sympathy of the entire audience with him as he starts for the big house. The story is all about a young fellow who can do anything with cards and dice, but who has trouble when it comes to women. A blonde causes his downfall, as blondes have a way of doing at times, but before the gambler topples over he furnishes a lot of excitement and good entertainment.

Another Underworld Hero.

OUT at the Missouri Theater Leo Carrillo is a cold-blooded tough boy who gets into trouble by the blonde route. In this case the gangster does not escape with a jail sentence, but is taken for a farewell ride by his rivals and goes to his death bravely to save the life of a nice gal. We understand that it doesn't really happen that way outside of the Hollywood studios, but it makes a swell picture. Gary Cooper, who seems to be fading away, is the star of the Missouri's other film, "I Take This Woman." The woman is Carole Lombard and she meets Gary, who is a big, handsome, honest cow hand, out on her father's ranch. She marries him, too, but he has to fall off a horse and break a leg or so before she really realizes that she loves him.

Regeneration.

JOAN BENNETT in an innocent young thing who gets all tangled up with a gang of high-class holdup gentlemen in "Hush Money" at Loews. Joan goes to jail for a year and comes out to marry Hardie Albright, a fine fellow who never dreamed that his wife had a past. Of course that past catches up with the future and Joan has a terrible time keeping the bad news from her husband but he never does find out and the picture ends happily and pleasantly.

Haines Comes Through.

WILLIAM HAINES, who has long been one of the minor pests of the screen comes to life suddenly with a fine picture called "Just a Gigolo" at the Fox. Haines, who always specialized in playing crude smart Ales has an entirely different sort of role in this one and with some excellent support makes "Just a Gigolo" a real show. His chief aids are C. Aubrey Smith and Irene Purcell and the dialogue is ultra-sophisticated but very smart. Haines plays a wild youth who pretends to be a gigolo in order to test the character

The Three Musketeers in this week's light opera on the Forest Park stage.

Saxophonists at Highlands.

With an entirely new routine of musical numbers and comedy bits, Swegles' Rainbow Sextette, an organization of male saxophonists every member of which was, at one time or another, with the well-known Tom Brown entertainers, remains over a second week as the free vaudeville feature at Forest Park Highlands. The six musicians scored with their solos, duets and ensemble numbers with the large crowds in the past week and beginning today they will appear in the Pagoda at 4, 8, 9 and 10:30 p. m.

Gary Cooper in "I Take This Woman," at the Missouri.

Eddie Peabody Big Hit With His Banjo In London Theaters

THE drama sections of the English newspapers attest the fact that Eddie Peabody, former master of ceremonies at the Missouri Theater, who later played an engagement with one of the Fanchon and Marco units at the Fox, is making a big hit in London. Eddie, who went directly from the Fox Theater here to England, has had a long run at the Paramount Plaza in London, being the first picture house M. C. to play in that country. As he did in this country Peabody features "St. Louis Blues" with his banjo and it has scored tremendously.

The London Graphic, in a column written by the Marquis of Donagall—they have lords and everything—writing pieces for the papers over there—had the following to say about a little dinner party given by Mrs. Woolley-Hart:

"After dinner Mr. Edgar Shelton, America's greatest exponent of Chopin, played to us. He is a young man with amazing technique and great modesty. He had an audience of real music lovers. "A short interval and then Mr. Eddie Peabody, who with his wife, was also a guest, took up his gold-inlaid banjo and rendered, among other things, the Rhapsody in Blue.

"I had to smile at the faces of the more highbrow section of the audience as they adjusted themselves from Chopin to 'Body and Soul'."

"But Mr. Peabody's undoubted talent won through, highbrow feet began to tap, and I heard remarks such as:

"My dear, I've always hated jazz, but, really, one must give genius its due!"

Barbara Stanwyck Finishes One.

Production has ended in Hollywood on Barbara Stanwyck's latest starring vehicle, "The Miracle Woman," an adaptation of the stage play "Bless You Sister," by R. R. Riskin and John Meehan.

Ethel Barrymore in Rehearsal.

Ethel Barrymore has begun rehearsal at "The School for Scandal" in New York, and will open at the Biltmore Theater in Los Angeles for an engagement of one week beginning Monday, Aug. 3, with San Francisco to follow.

Old Stars Beating Back

Jetta Goudal, Who Quit the Films Three Years Ago Over A Question of Temperament, to Make Another Picture, And Tom Mix and Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese Star, Have Resumed Work Before the Hollywood Cameras.

A LOT of old timers are finding their way back to the screens these days. Remember Jetta Goudal? Well, after three years of retirement she's in the movies again, which is just as well, for Jetta's a good actress even if she is a little temperamental. She doesn't call it temperament, however; "I want my own way," she says.

And usually Jetta gets it. It is said that she never was temperamental about trivial matters. When she argued with a director, it was because she didn't like the way a scene was written or the way it was played by some other member of the cast.

Three years ago, after completing her last starring picture, "The Forbidden Woman," Jetta's contract was broken by the De Mille company. She sued for $35,000 and won her case.

The De Mille company, in defending the suit, accused her of insubordination. Specifically, it was said she caused delay in making her pictures because she was continually at loggerheads with her director.

The Court agreed with the company that this was an economic sin, but that the company should have taken its star to task when she first committed it, rather than on the occasion which proved to be her last. The case was appealed after Jetta won, and it is still in court.

She says that if she wins she will get 7 per cent on her money for three years, which is much better than she would have done in the stock market.

When Hollywood heard about Jetta's temperament through testimony in the suit, it apparently decided not to hire her. Temperament is a costly thing to deal with.

So Jetta, who waited months for calls, finally embarked on another career, that of interior decorating. Through this new occupation she met Harold Grieve, another decorator, and a few months ago they were married.

Their film has prospered; they have built, decorated and furnished many Hollywood homes, including those of John Gilbert, Norma Shearer and Edmund Lowe, but the lure of the camera is as strong as ever and now she is making another picture.

Many stories are told about Jetta's origin. It has been said that she started her business life as a Brooklyn stenographer; another has it that she was born in Java. These, as well as others, she denies.

Her biography, which she once admitted was mostly fiction, says she was born in Versailles, France, the daughter of a French lawyer.

ANOTHER comeback is Tom Mix. The name which he has modestly kept in electric lights over his Beverly Hills home is soon to return to the movie marquee, and the fact heralds once more the complete triumph of the humble "Western."

Mix, at 53, still is Hollywood's high priest of the great outdoors, although for the past three years he has been circus-starring on tour.

A picturesque and ornate ambassador of adventure who dares to wear a ten-gallon hat with evening dress and gets away with it, he will return this autumn to begin production on the first of six pictures for Universal.

He will find, when he arrives with his celebrated horse, Tony, a group of fellow cowboys who have been carrying on nobly in his absence—Western stars who surmounted the early talkie hazards and went on demonstrating what producers have always known but for a while forgot; that the "Western" is unfailing box-office.

Back in 1928 and 1929 the "Westerns" were all but overlooked in the onrush of stage stars and stage plays.

TOM MIX, left virtually unwanted—at least at his price—and Hoot Gibson, Ken Maynard, Buck Jones, Buzz Barton and the rest faced a future dark and dreary.

Some of them stuck it out, others went into vaudeville or gave up pictures entirely. Those that stuck have been repaid. Gibson, Maynard, Jones, Barton—these seldom play the big-time houses, and they don't rate much attention in the fan magazines, but—their pictures make money. Almost infallibly.

The debut of Gary Cooper, Warner Baxter, Richard Arlen, and other "regular" actors as horseman heroes in super-special films like "The Virginian" gained new prestige for the outdoor drama, and the craze for "westerns" became so intense for a while that even our own master of ceremonies, Frank Fay, donned a sombrero and went galloping.

George O'Brien, who got his first movie chance through Tom Mix, has made his greatest success as a ranger hero, although he alternates such roles with other varieties.

Their "specials" play the big time and make money too, but even without them, the regulars, Gibson and Maynard and company, would have carried on for the open spaces, saving the day for many a small exhibitor whose patrons demand action and more action. And what movie fans don't?

STILL a third revivalist is Sessue Hayakawa, now entering a new phase of his varied dramatic career with his forthcoming talkie debut, who may be remembered in his native Japan as a breaker of traditions as much as for his acting which made him one.

Japan has its theatrical "royal families" as well as its imperial house, and the former are as convention-bound as the other in their exclusiveness. The right to be a leading actor is hereditary.

Hayakawa, son of a provincial governor, was not born to the stage, and to have essayed dramatics at home would have been futile.

He came to America at 19, spent three years at the University of Chicago, then began his theatrical career which led him to the movies and stardom by 1916—the first Oriental to attain that screen distinction.

Nine years ago he deserted Hollywood for the stage and European films. It was last year that he returned to the homeland and began his blasting of the hoary tradition.

He not only staged and acted in Occidental plays, which he translated, but in Japanese works, and became an outstanding idol of the theater.

Hayakawa's wife, with him now, will be remembered as Tsuna Aoki, who played opposite him in many of his starring films.

Hayakawa's wife, with him now, will be remembered as Tsuna Aoki, who played opposite him in many of his starring films.

Plymouth Runs
67.66 M. P. H.
In St. Louis Test Goes From Standing Start to 40 M. P. H. in 9 Seconds—
55 M. P. H. in Second Gear.
One of the new Plymouth four-door sedans was put through its paces Tuesday by newspapermen and George Weber Jr. of the Mound City Motors, distributor. Described by its maker, the Chrysler Corporation, as a four that runs as quietly as an eight, it justified the statement. The car did run as smoothly and quietly as an eight.
The Plymouth was taken to the Chain of Rocks Bridge test course, where it accelerated through the gears from a standing start to 40 miles per hour in only nine seconds.
It went from 10 to 30 m. p. h. in eight seconds; from 10 to 40 in 11.2 seconds; from 10 to 50 in 14.4 seconds and from 10 to 60 in 18.2 seconds.
It did 55 miles per hour in second gear.
In a speed test, the Plymouth made a measured half mile in 27 seconds one way and in 24.1 seconds the opposite way. This worked out for an average speed of 67.66 miles per hour.
On the hairpin turn hill in Chain of Rocks Park, the Plymouth rounded the curve at 70 miles per hour and went over the top at 29
m. p. h.
At top speed it ran with noticeable smoothness and quiet. Acceleration in passing other cars on the road was very swift and powerful.
Because of its constant mesh transmission and free wheeling, it was possible to shift back and forth between high and second gears at 45 and 50 miles per hour without clashing or grating, merely by removing one's foot from the accelerator for a second and moving the shifting lever, no use of the clutch being necessary. The brakes were smooth and positive, giving excellent control at all speeds.
As has been told, the new Plymouth has what is called "floating power." This means, in effect, that the engine has only two mountings, one in front, the other in the rear.
Both mountings are set in rubber, and the motor is hung in perfect balance. To hold the engine in alignment and keep its movement within prescribed limits, a cantilever spring is used between the rear of the motor and a frame side member. The built-up end of the spring is attached rigidly to the engine, and the other end is set in rubber in the side frame.

By this method of mounting, engine vibrations are absorbed and spent before they can be communicated to the frame or body of the car. Also, vibration due to sudden acceleration or deceleration is dissipated.
Cadillac-La Salle
Shipments Increase;
10,981 in 6 Months
Cadillac-La Salle shipments in June totaled 1409 units, an increase of 29 per cent over the number of cars shipped in the same month last year.
Total shipments in the first half of 1931 amounted to 10,981 Cadil-lacs and La Salles, which is 9 per cent more than the total number of cars shipped in the first half of 1930.
June's figures bring the second quarter of this year to 5793, which is slightly ahead of the 5762 cars shipped in the second quarter of 1930, and which is 11 per cent greater than the first quarter of this year, when 5183 units were shipped.
April was the best month, with 2607 shipments. March was second, with 2332. Each month this year, with the exception of May, has shown an increase over the corresponding month of last year.

Service Station
At New Location
The Wagner Electric Corporation has moved its brake service station to 2904 Washington boulevard, three blocks west of Jefferson avenue. The need of more floor space for a rapidly-growing brake service business was responsible for the removal from 3029 Locust.
The Wagner Electric Corporation is the world's largest brake service organization and has service branches and franchised service stations in several hundred cities in this country and Canada. The St. Louis service branch, like all other branches, is completely equipped with the latest machinery and devices for testing brakes, turning drums and relining brake shoes.
Although Wagner is the licensed manufacturer and national service organization for Lockheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes, which are manufactured in its plant at 6400 Plymouth avenue, St. Louis its brake service facilities are not confined to hydraulic brakes. All types of brakes are serviced for cars, trucks, trailers and busses.
The removal from Locust street to Washington boulevard involved no changes in the Wagner policy of inspecting brakes free.

7 REASONS —
WHY THE SYNCRO-MESH
TRANSMISSION MAKES
the NEW OLDSMOBILE
A GREAT CAR TO DRIVE

- 1 It eliminates gear clashing—You can shift through all gears . . . from low into second, from second to high, and from high back to second, quickly and silently.
- 2 It makes shifting easier—Every gear change can be made with a smooth, effortless movement of the gear-shift lever. There is no need for careful "timing."
- 3 It gives greater flexibility in traffic—You can shift quickly and silently from high back to second without reducing car speed—when you wish to gain the advantage of second gear acceleration.
- 4 It assures positive control of the car—With the Syncro-Mesh transmission the safety factor is constant, for your car is in gear and under control at all times—instantly subject to the braking power of the engine when you take your foot from the accelerator.
- 5 It gives extra protection on hills—When descending steep grades, you can shift immediately into "second" . . . to gain extra braking power.
- 6 It simplifies driving—You operate the clutch in the usual manner, shift quickly, easily, and silently, as the occasion requires, and keep your car in control with a minimum number of driving "motions."
- 7 It gives you, in Oldsmobile, a Quiet Second Gear—Oldsmobile has added to this transmission a Quiet Second Gear . . . assuring smooth, swift acceleration which rivals high gear performance in quietness.

Until you drive the new Oldsmobile, and actually experience these seven vital advantages of the Syncro-Mesh transmission, you can't appreciate how much this feature really adds to driving enjoyment.

Oakland Eight Does Real Stunt On Seckman Hill

Goes Over the Top at 28 M. P. H. in High Gear All the Way From Standing Start.

From a standing start in high gear at the bottom of Seckman Hill, up that steep grade in high all the way, and over the top at 28 miles per hour. Anyone who has driven Seckman Hill, that notorious test grade on the old gravel road to De Soto, Mo., will realize that this was a real test of the pulling power of a motor car.

The feat was performed Wednesday morning by an Oakland Eight driven by the writer. The car was brought to a dead stop at the bottom of the grade—not on the relatively level stretch before the bottom of the hill was reached, but at the point where the upward slant of the rather rough gravel road began. Then the car was started in high gear and held in that gear. Immediately the Oakland began to pick up speed. With in 200 feet it was going 20 miles per hour, and as it went up the steep grade, it gradually accelerated its pace to 26 and 27 miles an hour, at no time dropping below 25 m. p. h., and on the final stretch picked up to 28 m. p. h.

Again the Oakland was driven up the hill, this time starting at 35 miles per hour. It was necessary to ease up on the accelerator a number of times because speed rose to a point where there was danger of shooting into the ditch on the curves.

Antonio and Frisco hills on the same road were driven at such speed that it was continually necessary to hold the car down, lest it be ditched.

The car handled beautifully at high speed on the ordinary gravel roads. It seemed to have everything that makes a driver feel that he can do anything with his car. It clung to the road; the brakes were smooth and positive; springs and shock absorbers worked finely on the rough going; it was roomy, comfortable under all driving conditions.

In traffic it was a "performer." It got away with the "break" like a streak. Acceleration in second gear was so fast that the car fairly whizzed. Because of its synchromesh transmission, one could shift from second to first, or vice versa, at very high speed without any grating or clashing of gears.

On the paved highway it showed more speed than one had any right to use. Its acceleration in high gear, for passing, had the same "whizzing" quality that the car showed in second. When the driver ahead stopped suddenly, without any signal or rhyme or reason, the brakes brought it smoothly to a stop with plenty of margin of safety.

New Type Trunk For Use of Motorists

A new type "Auto Trip Trunk," made by the Mid-Continent Manufacturing Co., Columbia, Mo., is being introduced by Beck & Corbett Co., 1230 North Main street, St. Louis distributor. It is a combination suit case and trunk, metal covered with rustproof cadmium fittings. It may be placed or removed from car without the use of tools, and, when in use, is held securely by a simple flange and bolt which can be locked.

Although having the capacity of two ordinary suit cases, its compact construction enables it to be placed between the radiator and front bumper without any interference with the cooling system of the car. The Auto Trip Trunk is especially adapted to picnics, camping or shopping trips. Three models for Fords and Chevrolets are provided.

Chevrolet's June Production Larger Than It Was in 1930

Production of Chevrolet cars and trucks in June totaled 84,597 units, as against 78,472 in the same month of 1930. W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, announced. The June figure brought the output of the company for the first six months of the year to 522,232 units, Knudsen said.

Production in June compared with 113,552 cars and trucks built in May, which was the highest month's output since July, 1929. The decline in production from May to June this year, however, was 6000 units less than in the corresponding period last year, indicating a seasonal decline rather than the abrupt drop experienced last June, when the slump in general business first was felt by Chevrolet, Knudsen said.

In June, 78,734 units were built for the domestic market, as against 10,160 a year ago, which Knudsen interpreted as further evidence of improvement in the United States in retail buying over a year ago, at least as far as Chevrolet is concerned.

Dodge-Plymouth Dealer Appointed On Jefferson Avenue

The Milstrand Motor Co. has appointed the Bollwerk-Ferguson Motor Co., 2218 South Jefferson avenue, as a dealer for Dodge cars and trucks and Plymouth cars.

The company was incorporated July 6 by John J. Bollwerk and John M. Ferguson.

Ferguson at one time was shop superintendent for one of the large Ford dealers. In 1922 he was one of the organizers of the Big Four Chevrolet Co.

Precision Keynote In Building Engine Of Marmon Sixteen

The 200-horsepower, all-aluminum engine which powers the Marmon 16 is an example of precision craftsmanship.

More than 30,000 specifications are held to limit of at least two-thousandths of an inch and more than two-thirds of these are held to one-thousandth of an inch. Many specifications are held to an accuracy of five ten-thousandths of an inch, or approximately a fortieth the thickness of a human hair.

Although most persons regard a

POST-DISPATCH HIGHWAY MAPS AND AUTO TRAILS ATLAS

THE Resort and Travel Bureau of the Post-Dispatch has for distribution an excellent 60-page auto trails atlas of the United States and Eastern Canada, showing the condition and numbers of highways and mileage between towns. The price is 50 cents, or 60 cents if mailed.

St. Louis and vicinity maps show all towns, roads, rivers, streams, lakes and other details within a radius of 50 miles of St. Louis. They sell for 30 cents, 24 cents if mailed. Individual state maps are 10 cents and 12 cents mailed.

St. Louis guides, giving the location of streets and street car and bus lines, churches, hospitals, theaters, office buildings and containing a map of the city, sell for 25 and 30 cents.

May of St. Louis and the suburbs, showing the streets of St. Louis, East St. Louis, Madison, Venice, Clayton, Ferguson, University City sell for 40 cents, or 45 cents mailed.

16-cylinder engine as complicated, an average automobile mechanic can tear down and completely re-assemble the Marmon engine with only four end wrenches, two socket wrenches, a screw driver and a pair of pliers. It is possible, for example, to remove the connecting rods and pistons from the crankcase by merely removing the oil pan.

Baffle Plates Quiet Air Intake Noise on Nash 970

The whirlpool action of water draining from a bath tub led to development of the Maxim silencer and shell ejector for firearms and cannon. A similar principle quiets air intake sounds in the new down-draft carburetor system of the recently introduced Nash straight-eight 970 engine.

This "silence engineering" detail is accomplished by baffle plates inside the new air cleaner which prevents the entrance of dirt and abrasives into the carburetor and cylinders. The plates muffle sounds as the air enters the intake and silences the whistling noises common in some types of automobile carburetors.

Buick Cars Third In U. S. Registrations For First 5 Months

Registration figures for the first five months of the year, January to May, inclusive, show Buick holding third place for the entire country among all cars, regardless of price and model. Buick's five months' registrations amounted to 45,935 units, two makes of cars occupying the low-price field alone exceeding this figure.

Analysis of Buick sales by models shows a continued strong demand for the 8-50 series, which is the lowest priced model Buick has produced in many years. For the five months, registrations of this series amounted to 13,689. The 8-50 shows 12,512 registrations and the two larger cars, the 8-80 and 8-90, 14,434, combined.

Hudson and Essex Sales Gain Through Adding Free Wheeling

Sales of Hudson and Essex cars in the week ending July 4 showed an increase of 42 per cent over the same period a year ago, according to William J. McAneny, president and general manager. This also was a 12 per cent increase over the previous week.

"This increase substantiates the belief that the exceptional value offered in today's automobiles has appealed to vacationists who delayed buying in the spring and early summer months," says McAneny, who attributes Hudson's increase to this and to the fact that the company is steadily gaining wider distribution of cars equipped with selective free wheeling.

New Prest-O-Lite Battery on Packards

The new Prest-O-Lite Hi-Level battery is now standard equipment on new Packard cars, according to an announcement received by J. R. Medart, president of the S. G. Hoffman Magneto Co., distributor. The Hi-Level battery is so called because its deep cell construction permits 1 1/2 inches of electrolyte above the top of the battery plates, which are full size and as high as those in a standard battery, while the case and cells are deeper.

Under ordinary conditions this battery requires water only three times a year—once each in early fall, spring and midsummer.

Dodge Offers Option Of Free Wheeling on Both Six and Eight

Both the Dodge six and eight now have optional free wheeling on all models at slight extra cost.

The free wheeling control is on the dash of a Dodge car. When pushed "in" it indicates that the transmission is in free wheeling; when showing "out," the car is in conventional gear.

When the free wheeling button is "in" it is only necessary to use the clutch when shifting into low. Once the car is in low, shifting into second and high can be accomplished by merely lifting the foot from the accelerator. The same is true when shifting from high back into second or from second to low.

Contrary to the belief of many, reverse gear is not affected by free wheeling. The car can be made to back in free wheeling just as in conventional gear.

Aside from the fact that free wheeling provides easier driving in that it eliminates fully two-thirds of the de-clutching, and reduces the number of engine revolutions per mile, wear and strain on the propeller shaft, clutch and transmission are reduced. This is due to the fact that the car glides ahead during shifting, meeting with no resistance from the engine when the accelerator is closed.

Again, free wheeling is also economical. For when the car is progressing under its own momentum the engine is idling and using only an idling mixture of gasoline.

Bending the Right Point. One of the common causes of plug insulator failure is bending the center electrode in an effort to set the gap correctly. The shell electrode is the one made for adjustment. Incidentally, it takes a finer gauge than the average motorist possesses to check a plug gap setting these days.

Graham Now Offers Free Wheeling Units For Older Models

Modernized used cars, equipped with the latest free-wheeling drive, are made available through the Graham Co.'s decision to supply dealers everywhere with Graham improved free-wheeling units for installation in older models.

"Now that earlier models can be equipped with the Graham free-wheeling unit, many owners will wish to enjoy the advantages of the new drive. It can now be installed in most previous models exactly as in the current models," according to the Graham Motor Co.

"Used car buyers will be particularly interested. Free-wheeling is now so popular that everybody wants it, yet it is so recent a development that it will be two

Ford Convertible Cabriolet Model Is of Double Utility

A new convertible cabriolet, with slanting windshield, is announced by the Ford Motor Co. The new body type is of double utility. Its sloping top can be quickly lowered, converting it into a dashing open roadster. With the top up, the car becomes a snug chummy coupe.

The exposed bright metal parts of the car are of rustless steel. Seat cushions are upholstered in Bed-order.

ford cord or genuine leather, upholstery of the rumble seat is of artificial leather. The material is adjustable, permitting complete comfort. The top material is of rubberized material.

The wide rear window is fastened with metal sliding seams. It can be raised to permit contact with those riding in the rumble seat. The new type is supplied in a variety of attractive colors. The windshield is of safety glass, which safety glass may be obtained in doors and windows upon special order.

PERFECTED FREE WHEELING IN DE SOTO

A perfected form of Free Wheeling, designed and manufactured by Chrysler Motors, is now optional equipment on all De Soto cars.

The adoption of this improved engineering feature gives an even better performance, even greater economy and even greater driving ease to cars that have long been famous for these qualities.

In De Soto Free Wheeling you can shift between any and all of the forward speeds without using the clutch. When pressure on the accelerator is released, the car glides along free of all mechanical restraint, which means economy in fuel and oil and the reduction of engine wear.

There is nothing new to learn about driving with Free Wheeling. All operations are exactly the same as those you have become accustomed to. When you wish to drive in conventional gear, you merely pull a button on the dash and lock Free Wheeling out.

In addition to Free Wheeling, the entire De Soto line now is equipped with an Easy-Shift Transmission, which makes it possible to shift easily and noiselessly between second and high gears in either direction at car speeds up to 45 miles an hour even with Free Wheeling locked out.

The addition of Free Wheeling and the Easy-Shift Transmission to such distinctive De Soto features as smooth, powerful engines; all-steel bodies; low center of gravity; weatherproof internal hydraulic brakes; smart, sweeping lines and handsome upholstery and fittings marks a great achievement in value-giving.

Let us demonstrate a De Soto with Free Wheeling and Easy-Shift Transmission today. Even De Soto owners will be surprised to see how much these features add to motoring satisfaction.

Low Prices on Wheat Declared to Be Due to Farm Board Activities.

A. V. Imbs, president of the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange, said yesterday in a prepared statement that there was no short selling of wheat in the St. Louis market, such as was condemned in a statement issued Friday by President Hoover.

Imbs declared the present low prices to farmers were a result of the Farm Board law and that the law should be repealed at the next session of Congress. His statement follows:

"As far as the St. Louis market is concerned, there are no professional short sales, and the President's statement does not apply to the St. Louis market. If he has any evidence it is not of such sales in this market.

"The gigantic error in the law itself, as is evidenced by the fact that when it was enacted the American farmers were receiving 25 cents a bushel for their wheat while, today, they are receiving less than 60 cents.

"The law immediately brought retaliatory measures from the European importing countries; they not only increased their protection by raising import duties on wheat—as in the case of France, from 8 cents to 85 cents a bushel; Italy, from duty-free to 87 cents a bushel; Germany, from 45 cents to $1.62 a bushel—but they further brought about a decrease in the home consumption by milling regulations prohibiting the miller from using within 10 per cent as much wheat as the normal practice in the production of flour; and, in addition, they forced the German miller to use 80 per cent of home-grown grains, resulting in the bread containing a goodly mixture of barley and rye.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS NEGRO BOY SCOUTS TO LEAVE FOR CAMP

Two-Week Period to Open Tomorrow at Rivercliff, Near Bourbon, Mo.

A two-week camp for Negro Boy Scouts of St. Louis City and County will be opened by St. Louis Boy Scout Council tomorrow at Camp Rivercliff, seven miles from Bourbon, Mo., on the Meramec River.

The camp will be one of the first ever held exclusively for Negro Scouts of the council.

Modeled after the cabin camp at the Irondale reservation, regular summer camp of the council, Camp Rivercliff will be conducted along similar lines. The camp is similar in appearance to Irondale, the scouts occupying screened cabins for sleeping, but eating together in a large mess hall. The cabins accommodate eight scouts and one leader.

The Irondale program of scout instruction and tests, hikes, projects, scout games and campfire stunts also will be followed, under leadership of Negro scout officials.

S. Tanner Stafford, director of inter-racial activities for the council, will be in charge of the camp.

Special emphasis will be placed on swimming and life saving, instruction being given and tests conducted by Red Cross Life Savers.

The swimming pool is supplied with water by the Meramec River. Other water sports, such as rowing and canoeing, also will be on the program, with instructors in charge.

The scouts will leave Union Station tomorrow morning and return the evening of July 20.

Instructions list as necessary equipment two double blankets, change of underwear, sweater or sweat shirt, old trousers or overalls, handkerchiefs, flannellette pajamas, swimming suit, two towels, stockings, comb and brush and soap. A scout uniform should be taken if one is owned.

Troop Notes

West District.
Troop 30, Y. M. H. A., has started meeting in Forest Park for the summer months. The first outdoor program, held a week ago Thursday, included flashlight signaling, games, contests, and a patrol contest similar to the Campfire Mystery Contest. As is customary, Troop 30 will hold meetings all summer, although many troops have suspended activities during the hot months.

Six merit badges and two second-class badges were awarded at a Court of Honor held at the last meeting of Troop 94, Santa Barbara Catholic Church.

Scouts of Troop 120 are becoming interested in Indian relics and lore since being entertained by Herman Wohler, who is considering becoming a merit badge counselor in this subject. Members of the troop have been promised a week-end trip to the country estate of Dr. R. J. Payne. Dr. Payne is a collector.

Central District.
Troop 23, Gibson Heights United Presbyterian Church, pitched tents in Forest Park at the old Scout Camp, regardless of the rain July 4. Meals were prepared by the troop. Scoutmaster Usher and Committee-man Hall attended.

Plans for summer and fall were discussed at a meeting of the Deputy Commissioners and Court of Honor representatives of the Central District at Mission Inn, Grand boulevard and Magnolia avenue. This was the final meeting of the season.

Suburban District.
Four members of Troop Mount Pleasant No. 1 passed second-class tests at the Board of Review held at the New Overland School a week ago Tuesday. Walter Thorn, Lee Roy, Clyde Warren and Vebber Kilmer were passed into second class. This troop was organized only two months ago.

Under leadership of Scoutmaster Kirk, and Assistant Scoutmaster Flick, Troop Mount Pleasant No. 1 spent two days and nights at Meramec State Park, swimming, canoeing and hiking through the hills. The second night the troop was rained out and forced to seek shelter. The scouts also saw a deer swimming the river.

Two campfire patrols of Troop 7, Webster, Groves Presbyterian Church, held an encampment under direction of W. R. Stoble, outdoor member of the troop committee. The first patrol consists of four Eagle, two Life and two Star scouts. It is out to win the suburban district flag.

Campcraft, cooking and other handicrafts and activities were demonstrated by Troops Nos. 1 and 2, Overland, when they undertook the project of setting up a 20-tent camp American Legion day at Forest Park. The troops were entertained by the Legion afterward.

BOY SCOUTS TO HAVE PART ON TUBERCULOSIS DAY PROGRAM

Troops to Demonstrate Signaling, Model Camps, Pioneering and First Aid.

Boy Scouts of the St. Louis Scout Council have been asked to participate in the annual Tuberculosis day baseball game ceremonies at Sportsman's Park, July 22. This will be the eighth year the Scouts have had a place on the Tuberculosis day program.

Signaling, model camps, pioneering, first aid and Scout games will be among the events the troops will demonstrate. Troops desiring to take part in the program have been asked to get in touch with Field Executive C. H. Lamm at Scout headquarters, 505 Chemical Building.

FIRST TRAVEL PAY FOR TRAINING CAMP

Recruits to Get Half Allowance and to Begin Rifle Drill Tomorrow.

With a week of army life behind them the 1800 students in the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Jefferson Barracks will step out tomorrow with rifles on their shoulders, and pay in their pockets.

Although receiving no compensation for their time at camp, the youths receive five cents a mile travel pay to and from camp. They will receive half of this allowance tomorrow. Rifles also have been issued, and the first maneuvers under arms will be held in the morning.

Last week was a busy time for the students, leaving them somewhat bewildered. The trip to camp from rural homes, the march through the mill of physical examination, the laying aside of civilian customs for army uniforms, army food and army beds was new to the more than 800 first year students.

The athletic program, to which the afternoons are devoted, began Friday with teams from each company competing in baseball, basketball, volleyball, and indoor baseball. The competition is keen, as each member of a winning team will receive a trophy. In baseball an all-star team will be selected. Boxers are preparing for the first matches tomorrow evening in the new sports stadium, built recently to seat 3500 persons. The public is invited to the boxing and wrestling matches, which start at 7 o'clock.

The first dance for the students will be held Friday evening at the outdoor pavilion. Three hundred young women, supplied through the Y. W. C. A., Catholic Women's League and other organizations will be partners for the students. Each group of girls will be accompanied by several chaperones, and bus transportation to and from the barracks will be supplied. The dances, three of which will be held during the period of the camp, are under

Willys Six Runs At 70.29 M. P. H. For 500 Miles

Stock Car, Using 4.3 to 1 Gear Ratio, Sets 10 More Class
"C" Speed Records.

Speeding around a surveyed five-mile course on Muroc Dry Lake, a strictly stock Willys six roadster, driven by Ed Hughes, has added to its list 10 more class "C" American stock car records, ranging from 10 to 500 miles, under American Automobile Association supervision and timing.

The A. A. A. time sheet showed that:

The 500 miles were run in seven hours, 54 minutes and 45 seconds, at an average speed of 70.293 miles per hour, lowering the former record for cars selling under $1400 by 6.21 miles per hour. Other records officially recorded were:

Ten miles in eight minutes, 38.84 seconds, averaging 69.38 miles an hour.

Fifty miles in 42 minutes, 43.43 seconds, averaging 70.21 miles an hour.

One hundred miles in 85 minutes, 12.65 seconds, averaging 70.41 miles an hour.

Two hundred miles in 171 minutes, 6.13 seconds.

Three hundred miles in four hours, 16 minutes, 33.38 seconds.

70.30 miles in one hour.

209.11 miles in three hours.

419.89 miles in six hours.

These records are for American stock cars from 183 to 305 cubic inches of piston displacement. The Willys 6 piston displacement is 193 cubic inches.

Full factory equipment, such as bumpers and spare tire, was carried and the gear ratio of 4.3 to one was used.

The supervision of the Red Cross. Yesterday afternoon and today were holidays for the training camp. The students were permitted to visit St. Louis. This afternoon pilots of the Thirty-Fifth Division Air Service, National Guard, will visit Jefferson Barracks and give a demonstration of military air maneuvers.

Stutz Revives 'Bearcat' With a Guarantee of Speed of 100 M. P. H.

The Stutz "Bearcat" has been revived in a new line of Stutz "DV-32" eight-cylinder cars, which have dual valve, double-overhead camshaft and are said to have been developed only after two years of testing on tracks in this country and Europe, and on the desert roads of the West. A speed of 100 miles per hour is guaranteed for the "Bearcat." The new line includes all conventional body types.

In the new Stutz, the eight cylinders are said to do the work of 16.

Nash Vice President Addresses Meeting of Dealers in St. Louis

E. J. Hatfield, president of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co., local Nash distributor, presided at a dealer meeting and luncheon at the Coronado Hotel Friday noon.

E. H. McCarty, vice president and general manager of the Nash Motor Co., Kenosha, Wis., principal speaker, outlined the Nash policy and discussed the new series of Nash cars. McCarty was accompanied to St. Louis by C. L. Mason, assistant sales manager.

After the luncheon, Hatfield presented to each dealer tickets for the Friday afternoon game between the Cardinals and Cincinnati.

ESSEX Owners are Surprised at the Greater Value of the New Super-Six Selective FREE WHEELING is but one of its many Improvements

The New Essex Super-Six, which now includes Selective Free Wheeling, excites the enthusiasm of all. But its strongest appeal is to those who have owned Essex for years. They are the ones best qualified to judge it. And their spontaneous approval is convincing proof of its genuine fineness.

You'll find Essex owners are folks that like to tour. They think nothing of thousand-mile trips that call for two-day schedules, because they know that Essex is always ready to go when they are. Hence, they are the most severe critics of a car's performance, its year in and year out endurance, and low operating cost.

They expect and get a lot in Essex. And thus it is important that those who are most familiar with Essex are the most enthusiastic over the New Super-Six with Selective Free Wheeling. They say: "We didn't think it possible to make Essex finer or better—but you've certainly done it!"

Doesn't this loyalty to Essex stand as your most convincing proof of Essex quality and ability? If you want final proof, drive the new Essex Super-Six and experience its brilliant, nimble and smooth performance, made even more luxurious because of Selective Free Wheeling.

A CHALLENGE TO THE WORLD OF LOWEST-PRICED CARS

THE NEW PLYMOUTH is the challenge of Chrysler Motors engineering genius to the whole world of lowest-priced cars.

"Floating Power"—Plymouth's new, exclusive discovery which eliminates four-cylinder vibration—challenges all old-fashioned Fours and low-priced Sixes with its smooth power-flow.

So smooth is Floating Power that even experts could not tell how many cylinders were beneath the Plymouth hood; most of them guessed eight.

Floating Power truly gives the Smoothness of an Eight and the Economy of a Four.

Plymouth challenges with a 56 brake-test horsepower engine which gives actual stop-watch speeds of 65 to 70 miles an hour and pick-up from a standing start to 40 miles per hour in 9.7 seconds. Delivered with the Smoothness of an Eight.

Plymouth challenges with Free Wheeling—that thrilling feature of high-priced cars which makes it possible literally to glide through heavy traffic. You can shift between all forward speeds without declutching—easily, quickly and smoothly.

Plymouth challenges with a new, Easy-Shift transmission. You can shift quickly from second to high and back again at speeds of 35 and 45 miles an hour without clashing or grinding of gears, even with Free Wheeling locked out.

Plymouth challenges with weatherproof, internal, self-equalizing, hydraulic brakes—simplest and unexcelled for safety and smoothness.

Plymouth challenges with double-drop frame—a feature of high-priced cars that gives a much lower center of gravity for still greater safety and roadability.

Plymouth challenges with scientifically insulated Safety-Steel bodies—not only safest but free from vibration and permanently quiet.

Plymouth challenges with full size—the roomiest car in the field of lowest price.

Plymouth challenges with entirely new styling—an eye-compelling beauty of line and color.

Plymouth superiority challenges your attention. See it. Drive it. Ride in it. Prove to yourself that we state only the simple truth when we tell you the New Plymouth is the one car of lowest price with the Smoothness of an Eight, the Economy of a Four.

Newport Astir Over Visit of French Ships

Pageant Planned on Their Arrival — Engagement of Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church
Announced — News of
New England Resorts.

NEWPORT, July 11.
THE resorts in this neighborhood are in full operation, and the majority of the cottages and villas are daily adding their occupants to the numbers who are enjoying the yachting, the tennis, dancing and house parties.
Two announcements made last week are of interest to members of the summer colonies, not only Newport, but at Watch Hill, Mystic and the Pier. One is the announcement of the engagement of Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt
Church and Henry Delafield
Church. Mrs. Church is the daughter of William K. Vanderbilt, with whom she and Mr. Phelps spent the week end. The announcement was made by Mrs. Church's mother, Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt.
Mrs. Phelps is the younger daughter of Judge Edgar M. Phelps, a retired member of the bench of the Supreme Court, N. Y. For the last years he has been a gentleman farmer at State Hill Farm, Middlesex. Phelps' mother was Miss Marianne Hunter Kane of New-York and Newport, daughter of Mr. William E. Glyn by her first marriage. It is reported that the wedding will be celebrated at Dud-man's place, the Newport villa of Mrs. Church, late in August or early in September.

The other announcement is that the French warships will visit Newport before their participation in the sesquicentennial at Yorktown. The word was received by Mayor Sullivan, from Paris from Mayor Belmont who had suggested that the invitation be sent through the French Ambassador at Washington. It was at Newport that the first French soldiers, who came to assist the colonies during the revolution, landed. The authorities are planning an elaborate celebration of the historic event. They anticipate that the first landing shall be commemorated at the place it occurred, at King Park. Marshal Foch, the French World War hero, is expected to lead the army contingent that will come on the French war vessels.

A pageant and a parade are planned for the day of the celebration and at night a banquet in honor of Marshal Foch.

With these two social events so near in the season the Newport colony seems likely to make it an unusually long season.

NORTH SHORE, July 11.
FORMER PRESIDENT COOL-IDGE and Mrs. Coolidge were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burns at Little's Point, Swampscott, over the Fourth. They attended the Tabernacle Church service in Salem.

At Annisquam Mrs. Nathaniel L.

WATCH HILL, July 11.
THE Misquamicut Golf Club burfest luncheon began on Saturday with an Independence day luncheon, followed by another on Sunday, and will continue, as usually, every Sunday throughout the season.

Among those entertaining a luncheon party at the club this week was Mrs. Ernest Eden Norris of St. Louis, who had three guests during the yacht races of Herrshoff and Alden series.

At the Yacht Club dances will be held every other Friday evening until Labor day. On that day there will be a special tea at which prizes for the season's races will be awarded.

Newport Astir Over Visit of French Ships

Pageant Planned on Their Arrival — Engagement of Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church
Announced — News of
New England Resorts.

NEWPORT, July 11.
The resorts in this neighborhood are in full operation, and the majority of the cottages
and villas are daily adding their occupants to the numbers who,
with those registered at the hotels, are enjoying the yachting, the golf, tennis, dancing and house parties.

Two announcements made last week are of interest to members of the Newport society, not only at Newport, but at Watch Hill, Hampton and the Pier. One is the announcement of the engagement of Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt
Church and Henry Delafield
Paine. Mrs. Church is the daughter of William K. Vanderbilt, with whom she and Mr. Phelps spent the week end. The announcement was made by Mrs. Church's mother, Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, of New York. Paine is the younger son of Judge Edgar M. Phelps, a noted member of the bench of New Rochelle, N. Y. For the last 15 years he has been a gentleman farmer at State Hill Farm, Middlebury, Vt. Phelps' mother was Mrs.
Lindsey Hunter Kane of New York and Newport. Daughter of Mrs. William E. Glyn by her first marriage. It is reported that the wedding will be celebrated at Dud-man place, the Newport villa of Mrs. Church, late in August or early in September.

The other announcement is that
the French warships will visit
Newport before their participation in the bicentennial at Yorktown. The word was received by Mrs. Sullivan, from Paris from Pony Belmont who had suggested that the invitation be sent through
the French Ambassador at Washington. It was at Newport that the first French soldiers, who came to assist the colonies during the Revolution, landed. The authorities are planning an elaborate celebration of the historic event. They hope that the first landing shall be commemorated at the place it occurred, at Kittery Park. Marshal Pétain, the French World War hero, is expected to lead the army band that will come on the French war vessels.

A pageant and a parade are planned for the day of the celebration and at night a banquet in honor of Marshal Pétain.

With these two social events so near in the season the Newport society seems likely to make it an unusually busy season.

WORTHY SOCIETY, July 11.
The Newport Society of 1931 will meet at the Little Gray House at

Dr. Julius Klein on Radio.
An address by Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, on "Vacation Business," to be broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting System, will be heard locally through radio station KMOX at 5 o'clock this evening. The address is to deal with the American practice of vacation travel, with suggestions that the custom be more widely extended this year as a means of stimulating business.

TO TELL OF ST. LOUIS INDUSTRY

Series of Articles to Appear in Leading Export Publications.

Arrangements have been made by the Chamber of Commerce Foreign Trade Bureau with three export publications of world-wide circulation to run a series of articles on St. Louis and its industries with a view of influencing foreign merchants to buy in this market. The publication are the American Exporter, Commercial America and Exporters' Guide.

Arrangements have also been made for publication in the journals of articles describing new specialty items and products placed on the market by St. Louis firms. This work will be carried on in connection with the campaign advertising St. Louis market in foreign countries, which has been sponsored for the past two years by the Industrial Club and the Foreign Trade Bureau.

RECOMMENDS NEW MARINE HOSPITAL FOR ST. LOUIS

Surgeon-General Cumming Notifies Congressman Niedringhaus of His Proposal to Treasury.

A new and modern United States Marine Hospital building to replace the antiquated and overcrowded wooden structures now in use on the Government reservation at 3640 Marine avenue has been recommended to the Treasury Department by Surgeon-General H. S.
Cumming, Congressman H. F. Nied-ringhaus of St. Louis was notified yesterday.

Replying to a recent letter in which Congressman Niedringhaus had stressed the need for such a structure in St. Louis, the Surgeon-General wrote that the item had been included in the list of new construction projects submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury on July 1.

The United States Marine Hospital was established in St. Louis in 1856 and has no connection with the Veterans' Hospital at Jefferson Barracks. While beneficiaries of the United States Veterans Bureau are eligible to admittance, its facilities are devoted chiefly to the care of disabled merchant seamen and members of the Coast Guard, Lighthouse Service and Coast and Geodetic Survey. Its present capacity is 100 beds.

Calls Buildings Fire Traps.
Congressman Niedringhaus's appeal for a new building followed a recent tour of inspection in the course of which, he says, he found the wooden structures "fire traps" which are totally unfit for modern hospital use and which could not be used for hospital purposes if city building laws applied on a Government reservation." His letter to the Surgeon-General setting forth something of the institution's history and its present conditions follows in part:

"The original Marine Hospital here, a three-story brick building, was completed and occupied in 1856. It is still in an excellent state of preservation and houses the mess department of the present hospital being connected with the ward buildings by a covered runway.

"Sometime in the '70s the then hospital authorities reported to Washington that the hospital was infected with 'hospital gangrene' and recommended its evacuation.
The report further recommended that three temporary wooden buildings be erected to serve as wards.
It was said that these buildings would inevitably become infected, and when this occurred they could be burned and new wooden buildings erected as they were small cost. The terms of the report, being consonant with the medical beliefs of the time, were approved and the recommendations carried out.

Bed Capacity Now 100.

"The brilliant work of Pasteur exploded the hospital gangrene theory and consequently the temporary structures were never burned, but remain in use to this day for the purpose for which they were built. Owing, perhaps, to the superior material used at the time of their construction, they are in a state of fair preservation, but need constant repairs. But owing to niggardliness in the matter of providing paint, the buildings are at present an eyesore.

"The present bed capacity of the hospital is 100, 28 beds having been added during the last 15 months by use of various makeshifts. Even now the number of beds is inadequate to meet the year-around demands and the inadequacy will become acute in the comparatively near future. As this is written, the patient population is made up of 51 per cent merchant seamen, 23 per cent beneficiaries of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau and 16 per cent of beneficiaries of the U. S. Employees' Compensation Commission. These percentages naturally vary from time to time and the beneficiary class is augmented at intervals by members of the navy, coast guard, lighthouse service and coast and geodetic survey.

Need for Hospital Facilities.

"All indications point to a marked increase in inland water traffic in the near future. Every vessel or craft added to the trade means an increase in the number of merchant seamen who are entitled by law to treatment at Marine hospitals. And unless increased hospital facilities are provided there will not be a sufficient number of hospital beds, at this hospital, for sick and disabled seamen.

"Just now there are 30 beds allocated to the United States Veterans' Bureau. I am informed by the local representatives of that bureau that this number, plus those beds available at the Veterans' Hospital, Jefferson Barracks, are not nearly sufficient to provide hospitalization for disabled ex-service men in this region who need it. There can be no question that if they are permitted to do so, the St. Louis regional officials of the bureau will utilize at least 100 beds of a new Marine Hospital.

"All of which are arguments in favor of increasing the hospital facilities of the United States Public Health Service at St. Louis; and I don't think those facilities can be increased in any way except by building a new Marine hospital."

FOUR-HOUR AIR CIRCUS FOR TUBERCULOSIS DAY

To Be Held at Lambert-St. Louis Field Beginning at 2 O'Clock
This Afternoon.

A four-hour air circus in observance of Tuberculosis day will be held at Lambert-St. Louis Field this afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. Full facilities of the field and a squadron of planes of the Missouri National Guard air unit will be used in carrying out the program.

Features of the exhibition are aerial gunnery, acrobatic flying, a glider demonstration, flying of the new "Hell-Diver" planes of the United States Navy, formation flying and a parachute leap by Lieut.
Phil Brennan of the Missouri National Guard.

Speeches by representatives of the Tuberculosis Society and a pep meeting of 200 young men and women, who will distribute souvenir programs at the Sporen's Park at the Tuberculosis day hall game July 22, will be other features of the program. The celebration is an annual affair in behalf of the baseball game, receipts of which go to tuberculosis treatment.

ON GOOD WILL TOUR BY AIR

Kansas City Men to Arrive in St.
Louis Tomorrow

Two representatives of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce on a 17,000-mile good will tour of the United States by airplane will stop at Lambert-St. Louis Field tomorrow morning, where they will have breakfast with officers of the St.
Louis Chamber of Commerce.

The representatives are Dr. John D. Brock, director of aeronautics for the Kansas City Chamber, and Col. Ruby D. Garrett, its general counsel. Dr. Brock holds a record of having flown on 603 consecutive days. They will go from St.
Louis to Nashville, Tenn.

Ordered to Stop Misrepresenting.

ST. LOUIS DENTISTS TO GO TO PARIS FOR CONVENTION

Dr. J. D. White to Read Paper and Dr. G. B. Winter Will Hold Clinics.

Dean Walter M. Bartlett of Washington University Dental School and Dr. J. D. White and Dr. George B. Winter of the faculty will sail from New York Friday to attend the meeting of the Federation Dentaria International Aug. 3 in Paris. Dr. R. L. Johnson also is going to the meeting.

Dr. White is to read a paper on crown and bridge work, and Dr. Winter, honorary president for the United States and one of five official delegates from this country, will hold clinics at the congress and at the meeting of the American Dental Society of Europe in Paris for the week of July 27.

TO CELEBRATE NEW ST. LOUIS AIR-MAIL LINES ON JULY 20

Maj. Lambert Appoints Committee For Event at Lambert Field.

Inauguration of the new air-mail route between St. Louis and New Orleans and the new night air-mail service direct from St. Louis to New York will be celebrated by ceremonies at Lambert-St. Louis Field on July 20, Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, dean of St. Louis alrmen and chairman of the Air Board, announced yesterday. Maj. Lambert has appointed a committee to make plans for the celebration.

The new lines give St. Louis direct connection with New Orleans by air and expedite afternoon mail to New York, which now goes direct instead of by way of Chicago.

CITY'S TUBERCULOSIS DEATH RATE FALLS

Lower in 1930 Than Any Other Metropolis Except Chicago, Survey Shows.

The death rate from tuberculosis in St. Louis was lower in 1930 than that of any of the larger American cities other than Chicago, according to a report of pulmonary tuberculosis deaths in 347 American cities issued last week by the Spectator Company, an insurance statistical concern of New York City.

The 1930 rate in St. Louis, according to the report, was 59.1 deaths per 100,000 population. The figure for Chicago was 56.9 deaths per 100,000. A comparison of other cities as large as St. Louis or larger shows the following rates: For New York City 62.7, Philadelphia 71.4, Detroit 68.5, Los Angeles 104.2, Cleveland 73.6. St. Louis' deaths of 59.9 per 100,000 in 1929 had decreased to the 59.1 figure last year.

The lowest rates for the country were reported at El Paso, Tex., where the rate was 24.3, Little Rock, Ark., where it was 17.3, and Lexington, Ky., where it was 16.1. Other southern and western cities followed with high rates, the supposition being that the Negro population, highly susceptible to the disease, was responsible for the high average in the South and that health conditions caused many deaths in western cities.

The lowest figures were for Lakewood, O., with only 3.4; Cedar Rapids, Ia., with 3.9, and Williamsport, Pa., with 3.4. Lynn, Mass., with a rate of 13.7, and Grand Rapids, Mich., with 14.2, are lowest among cities with populations in excess of 100,000.

Local estimates of the tuberculosis death rate are considerably higher, the Tuberculosis and Health Society having announced the 1930 figure at 83.2 several months ago. The local organization, however, considers all types of tuberculosis, whereas the figures just quoted include only the major type, pulmonary tuberculosis.

Health authorities here have urged for some time that the disease may be treated as well at hospitals here as at sanitariums in the warmer climates, rest and proper diet being the principal factors in the treatment. About $77,500 was contributed here by public subscription for tuberculosis treatment in 1931.

NEW CARMELITE MONASTERY MEMORIAL ALTAR FINISHED

High Mass to Be Celebrated Before It; Gift of Miss Helen Healy.

Miss Helen Healy, 3118 Allen avenue, has given a marble altar to the Carmelite Monastery at Clayton and Price roads as a memorial to her mother, Mrs. Honora Lane Healy, and sister, Miss Kathryn C. Healy.

A high mass will be celebrated before the altar Thursday, the feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, as part of a novena which will begin at the monastery Wednesday. Novena services will be held each evening at 7:45 o'clock.

Sienna marble is used in most of the altar with panels of Venetian mosaic. Columns of dark red marble rise from a base of black and gold.

Novena at St. Ann's Shrine.

A novena will be conducted at St. Ann's Shrine, Page boulevard and Whittier street, beginning next Saturday by the Rev. Michael Pathe and the Rev. Donald Miller. Mass will be said each day at 5:45 o'clock, 7, 8:30 and 10, and there will be services at 3, 6 and 8 p. m.

Boy! Thanks to Double Enzymes

Ralph Redmond's mother found the secret in one of our frank advertisements. As she puts it: "Youngsters can't grow on air, nor merely on heavy meals. It's what they digest that counts." Read why your child should be getting the double enzymes of Thompson's "Double Malted" every day.

Perfect digestion is vital to children; they must eat and digest more than grown folks in order to grow. Thompson's "Double Malted" (with double enzymes) digests five times its own weight of other foods. This helps young, growing bodies to get full benefit from the food they eat. Then they eat more—hence gain in height, weight, energy. Thompson's practically doubles the food value of milk and is rich in the food elements that develop strong bones and teeth, firm flesh and sturdy muscles.

Resolve that your child shall have the advantage of a vigorous body. Order Thompson's "Double Malted" from your druggist or grocer now.

possibility of Return of Legal Beer Likely to Enhance Values, With Big Profits in Sight.

By BERRY MOORE.

Lively interest is reported in the buildings of the Independent Breweries, recently placed on the market through the real estate department of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., representing the Bondholders' Protective Committee.

It is understood offers have been submitted for several of the larger structures with some negotiations in an aggressive basis, notably for those plants with railroad facilities. All the buildings except three have been kept intact for the manufacture of beer, should the eighteenth amendment be modified. The structures would be available for other manufacturing purposes with slight alterations in several instances.

Some of the buildings. The buildings include those of the American Brewery at Broadway and Dorcas street, Columbia Brewery at Twentieth and Madison streets, Empire Brewery at Sarah street and Duncan avenue, Gast Brewery at Broadway and Hornsby street, Home Brewery at Wisconsin avenue and Salena street, National Brewery at Eighteenth and Gratiot streets, and the Central Brewery in East St. Louis. The Empire, Home and National have been dismantled.

The Central, National, American and Empire have track facilities in connection with the Terminal Railway, or leading railroads, which add vastly to their value for industrial purposes. Most of the buildings, it is said, may be had at prices less than the value of the sites, embracing considerable ground, estimated on a basis of prevailing market prices.

Speculative interest in these holdings is predicated on the possibility of the legal manufacture of light beer and wine, which would restore the former values of these buildings, with unprecedented profits to purchasers at present prices.

Organized in 1907 and refinanced in 1913, the independent breweries prospered until June, 1920, when the United States Supreme Court sustained the national prohibition act. At that time the company had assets of $1,000,000, consisting of Liberty bonds and money in the banks. The company manufactured 600,000 barrels of lager beer, which sold for more than $4,000,000, in one of its most prosperous years, 1916.

River Front Options. Obtaining of options on property in the downtown district east of Third street, in behalf of the proposed river front development, is being forwarded, but negotiations are expected to lag during the vacation season, owing to absence of owners from the city. As has been told, the options are being obtained by the Progress Council Option Corporation, of which Claude B. Rickerts is chairman, to determine at what price the property is available.

It is reported that much of the property sought has been optioned for around its assessed value, including several large holdings of estates as well as business interests, which have removed to other parts of the city and county, notably those firms requiring track facilities. Options on the entire holdings of the Henry Shaw estate in this section have been obtained at their assessed value by Cornet & Zebig.

It was stated that the option commissioners have been confronted in not a few instances with relatively high or rather advanced prices, as compared with figures at which the property was known to be formerly available. It is understood that it is not proposed to pay more than the assessed value of the property, and, where the improvements are of negligible value, less. Several owners who have declined to surrender their holdings have given options virtually based on prices approximating assessed values. Real estate agents are urging in this section to avail themselves of the opportunity of

Lively interest is reported in the buildings of the Independent Breweries, recently placed on the market through the real estate department of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., representing the Bondholders' Protective Committee.

It is understood that offers have been submitted for several of the larger structures with some negotiations on an aggressive basis, notably for those plants with railroad facilities. Prospective purchasers, it is said, include outside industrial interests, scheduled to establish quarters or plants here, as well as real estate speculators.

There are seven of these buildings in St. Louis and one in East St. Louis, all of the conventional brewery type, representing, with the sites, an original investment of about $4,000,000 in round figures. All the buildings except three have been kept intact for the manufacture of beer, should the eighteenth amendment be modified. The structures would be available for other manufacturing purposes with slight alterations in several instances, William R. Cady, real estate officer of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., pointed out.

Some of the buildings. The buildings include those of the American Brewery at Broadway and Dorcas street, Columbia Brewery at Twentieth and Madison streets, Empire Brewery, at Sarah street and Duncan avenue, East Brewery at Broadway and Hornsby street, Home Brewery at Wisconsin avenue and Salena street, National Brewery at Eighteenth and Gratiot streets, and the Central Brewery in East St. Louis. ## URGENT PROBLEMS FACE OWNERS OF BIG SKYSCRAPERS

To Be Discussed at Twenty-Fourth Annual Meeting of National Association.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 11.—The skyscraper men of the United States and Canada will meet here next week to consider many important problems confronting the office building industry. Overbuilding, mounting taxes, improved methods of management, new trends in office building construction and a multiplicity of other matters affecting the industry will be considered during the week of the twenty-fourth annual convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers.

"Never since the birth of the American skyscraper, nearly 40 years ago has the office building industry been confronted with such serious problems as we have before us today," said Charles F. Palmer of Atlanta, president of the national association. "Perhaps the reason why these problems loom so large is the fact that the industry has grown to such magnitude that our problems have grown with us. The fact that our great commercial properties employ more capital than the steel trade, the telephone business, or than is used in the manufacture of automobiles, indicates the way in which the skyscrapers have come to the front in the past decade.

"We have the largest percentage of vacant space in our history as dozens of skyscrapers, launched in the boom period, were completed after the stock market crash which marked the beginning of the period of depression. Business was not prepared to absorb the additional floor space which came onto the market. In a survey made of conditions throughout the nation as of May 1, we discovered that approximately 2,500,000 square feet of new space will come on the market on or before the end of 1931. This is not a large amount of space when considered nationally and, with the upturn in business, absorption of office space should increase rapidly. There is, however, an abundant supply of space on the market so that we cannot expect a revival of building of commercial structures for several years to come.

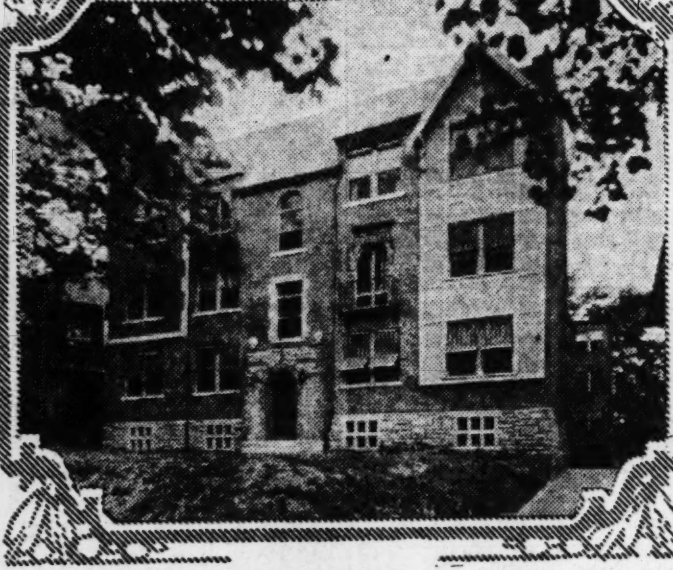

"It is often asked why there is not a universal reduction in rental rates throughout the country. The reply is self-evident. Office building expenses are very largely made up of fixed charges over which the owners and operators have no control. It is consequently impossible to cut costs materially to meet a temporary depression. The railroads have found this out to such an extent that they are asking for increased rates.

"Although we have seen commodity prices decline there is one heavy item in the budget of every commercial building which has not declined and that is taxation. Governments are constantly finding new ways to spend money, some of it wisely and some of it extravagantly. The mounting costs of government mean increased taxes.

"The Consolidation of Business Properties," which is a growing practice in view of the necessity for acquiring sites large enough to provide a base for the huge new structures, will be discussed in a paper presented Tuesday morning by J. Soule Waterfield of Starrett Bros. Inc., of Chicago. Buildings to house different types of occupancy will be the mode of new skyscraper construction.

Osgood E. Fifield, vice president of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Springfield, Mass., will address the convention Thursday morning on "Proper Financing of Income Producing Buildings."

"A Chemical View of Office Building Operation" is the subject of a paper by William E. Malm of Cleveland, who will speak Thursday afternoon. Another address is "Scientific Management of Business Properties," which will be given Friday morning by Murray E. Randall of Omaha.

VOLUME OF NEW REALTY SECURITIES DROPS SHARPLY

Residential Issues 34, Commercial 58, Hotels 79 and Miscellaneous 70 Pct. Below Record in Six Months of 1930.

The volume of new first mortgage bond, note and stock issues, publicly offered by investment houses during the first six months of 1931, aggregated but $58,544,850, a decrease of 51 per cent, compared with the total for the first six months of 1930, and the lowest volume for this period since 1922, according to the realty investment review of Nelson, Hunt & Co. of Chicago.

The review shows that all classifications of new issues, except for an increase of 12 per cent in financing of clubs, churches, colleges and hospitals, showed a drastic decline from the totals for the first six months of last year. The volume of residential issues dropped 34 per cent, office and commercial 58 per cent, hotels 79 per cent and financial and miscellaneous 70 per cent.

"New real estate bond and note financing during the first six months of the year," said the review, "declined 46 per cent, compared with the corresponding figures in 1930. Real estate stock financing, which has been steadily declining since 1929, totaled little more than $1,250,000, a decline of about 91 per cent from the total of $14,365,500 registered in the first half of last year."

Statistics showing the volume of months of 1930, as compared with that in the corresponding period a year ago, follows:

First Half of 1931	First Half of 1930
First Half of 1931	First Half of 1930
$58,544,850	$118,676,250
Residential	14,365,500
Commercial	14,365,500
Hotels	14,365,500
Miscellaneous	14,365,500

The volume of financing in June was the lowest in recent years, totaling only $5,870,000. This was a decrease of 68 per cent compared with that of June a year ago, and 13 per cent below the low total of $6,773,000 in May.

New York led the country with a total of $2,000,000, Los Angeles, Cal., was second with a total of $850,000, and Pittsburgh, Pa., was third with $550,000. Other cities which reported bond offerings were Minneapolis, Seattle, New Orleans, Denver, Indianapolis, Richmond and San Francisco.

The average yield of new real estate bond issues at their offering prices in June showed an increase compared with that of May this year and June, 1930. The index for June stood at 5.80 per cent, as against 5.59 per cent in May and 5.29 per cent in June, 1930.

This is one of the most important subjects on our agenda. It will be presented for our deliberation by one of the nation's foremost experts in taxation, Dr. Simeon D. Leland of the University of Chicago.

The program of the skyscraper men's convention includes addresses by many other outstanding men, such as Charles Donnelly of St. Paul, president of the Northern Pacific Railway, who will speak tomorrow morning on "The Business Outlook."

"The Consolidation of Business Properties," which is a growing practice in view of the necessity for acquiring sites large enough to provide a base for the huge new structures, will be discussed in a paper presented Tuesday morning by J. Soule Waterfield of Starrett Bros. Inc., of Chicago. Buildings to house different types of occupancy will be the mode of new skyscraper construction.

MOOLAH TEMPLE TO BE ENLARGED

Work Will Start Tomorrow on Addition to Building at 3821 Lindell.

Ground will be broken tomorrow for the $100,000 addition to the Moolah Temple Association Building, 3821 Lindell boulevard.

A 21 foot wide addition, full depth of lot, has been added on the east and west sides of the present existing buildings, resulting in doubling the organization's space of each individual organization of the Shrine, and further the rearrangement of the first story has brought the efficiency for social events to meet the present needs.

The auditorium will be equipped with a new ventilating system and the main dining room in the basement will be improved.

The work is being done under the direction of the Building Committee consisting of Judges John W. Calhoun, A. Donald Anderson, L. F. Turnbold and Jackson J. Hagen. Agester & Bailey are the architects.

H. A. O'Rourke Reports 15 Realty Transactions

5 NEW INDUSTRIES IN ST. LOUIS AREA IN MONTH OF JUNE

Four Others Expanded, Representing Total Investment of $118,000, According to Report.

95 MORE WORKERS TO BE EMPLOYED

Total Volume of Trade in City for 1929 Was $2,812,493,704—$983,823,009 in Manufactures.

Five new industries were established in the St. Louis industrial district during June and four existing industries undertook expansions. E. S. Tompkins, acting director of the Industrial Bureau, has announced in his monthly report.

These activities represent the absorption of 94,400 square feet of existing floor space, and will require 95 additional employees. The added industrial investment amounts to $118,000, the report states.

"The total volume of trade of the manufacturing and mercantile establishments in the city of St. Louis was $2,812,493,704 for 1929, based upon preliminary reports of wholesale and retail net sales as published in the Census of Distribution, and upon the total value of products of manufacturers as issued in the Census of Manufactures," Tompkins said in the report.

"Wholesale and retail sales amounted to $1,828,670,695, and the total value of products of manufacturing plants was $983,823,009. The total number of establishments doing this volume of business was 17,109, of which 2704 were manufacturing plants, 1777 wholesale, and 12,628 retail establishments. These figures include only establishments within the limits of St. Louis and do not include St. Louis County and important industrial plants and the livestock market on the East Side. Total figures for the entire St. Louis industrial district would be considerably higher."

The principal business barometers were summarized as follows for June, compared with the June averages for the preceding five-year period: Building permits decreased 70.41 per cent; bank clearings decreased 31.57 per cent; debts to individual accounts decreased 13.95 per cent; postoffice receipts decreased 6.19 per cent; loaded freight cars handled by the Terminal Railroad Association decreased 12.62 per cent; water consumption increased 11.73 per cent; barge line tonnage decreased 17.22 per cent.

For the month of May, 1931, compared with the May averages for the preceding five-year period the following figures were given in the report: Telephone calls de-

CHURCH BUYS HOUSE ON WEST PINE BL.

A deal has been concluded for the sale of a large three-story residence at 8712 West Pine boulevard to the St. Francis Xavier College Church. The house will be remodeled for a high school, scheduled to be opened this fall. It has 15 rooms and four baths. The lot is 100x130 feet. There is a garage for six cars in the rear of the premises.

The house has been occupied as quarters for the St. Louis Leather Club, which owned it. Negotiations were handled by the John S. Blake & Bro. Real Estate Co.

9-ROOM HOUSE ON BIG BEND AND KINGSBURY BL. SOLD

A residence recently completed at the northeast corner of Big Bend and Kingsbury boulevard, containing nine rooms and three baths, has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gibstine, through the Anderson-Stocks-Buermann Realty Co. The lot is 100 by 200 feet. Mr. and Mrs. Gibstine, who have gone to California for the summer, will occupy the house upon their return to the city about Sept. 1. The house was built by William Glicker, builder.

creased 12 per cent; revenue street car and bus passengers decreased 25.34 per cent on the lines of the St. Louis Public Service Co.; bus revenue passengers decreased 8.82 per cent on the lines of the People's Motorbus Co.; industrial gas consumption decreased 17.15 per cent; industrial electricity supplied by the Union Electric Light & Power Co. increased 26.03 per cent, and industrial electricity supplied by the Laclede Power & Light Co. increased 62.77 per cent.

Following are the new companies to enter the St. Louis industrial district during June:

Frost Electric Screen Manufacturing Co., 4485 Olive street and 2118 South Seventh boulevard, has been organized as a subsidiary of the Frost Electric Co. of Spokane, Wash. Tiffany Castings Co., Branch and Buchanan streets, has been organized by Zigman Chaplick, owner of the Chaplick Machine Works of Chicago.

California Spray Chemical Corporation of Berkeley, Cal., has opened a factory at National Stockyards, Ill., for the manufacture of insecticides used by fruit growers and horticulturists. Ice Cream Omelette Corporation, 3819 Cote Brillante avenue, has been organized for the manufacture of ice cream confections. Multi-Color Sign Co., Klen-ten and St. Louis avenues, has been organized for the manufacture of patented electric signs.

The following firms, expanded during the month of June: Midwest Upholstering Co., 3018 Locust street, has leased 15,000 additional square feet of floor space at 2015 Locust. Doane Carton Co., 312 North Market street, is erecting a one-story factory adjacent to its present plant. This addition increased the size of the factory from 40,000 to 44,800 square feet of floor space. Eskimo Refrigerator Co., 700 Franklin avenue, has leased larger quarters at 910 Mullanphy street. Floor-Shine Paint and Varnish Co. has moved from 3329 Easton avenue to larger quarters at 714 North Second street.

VE MATCHES IN MUNICIPAL INTERPARK
ENNIS LEAGUE TODAY

Five matches will be played afternoon in the men's and s divisions of the Municipal Park Tennis League.

Matches scheduled for the day are: Sherman at Concordia; Forest at Fairground at Oakland; at Kingshighway, and O'Neil Marquette.

Stearman's record-tying race threw the balance in his favor. Keller nevertheless got the award in the low hurdles by virtue of his victory at the N. C. A. A. meet, where Ernie Payne of Southern California tripped, as he led over the hurdle low hurdles. The unfortunate incident for Payne as his past performances, including 6:23.4 on two occasions, doubtless would have given him the edge in the fight for the team. Keller's time at the N. C. A. A. games was 6:23.8.

By DEAN B. CROMWELL,
Chairman All America Board of Track and Field.

THE distinction of retaining a place on the All America Track Team falls to five great college athletes this year as the result of deliberations by an able committee of nationally known track and field coaches. The team itself is as fine as any ever named, and it would be surprising to no one if many of its members are outstanding in the Olympic games at Los Angeles next year.

Among the 19 men who will receive diplomas in recognition of their membership on the All-America Track Team for 1931, Frank Wykoff, Kenneth Churchill, Frank Conner, Lee Sentman and Victor Williams are honored for the second time.

Wykoff of Southern California, Tolman of Michigan and Churchill of California were unanimous choices in the 100-yard-dash, 220-yard-dash and javelin throw, respectively. There were only two dissenting voices in the choice of Williams of Southern California for the quarter-mile run, but Sentman of Illinois, despite the fact that he equaled the world's record of 0:14.5 in the 150-yard high hurdles, found himself the center of a keen battle.

Sentman last year was chosen in the low hurdles. He was out of consideration in that event this year, and won only by a narrow margin over Jack Keller, Ohio State's amazing sophomore, in the high hurdles. Each has defeated the other once or twice, but Sentman reached his peak this year as a senior, while Keller is still coming along in his favor. Keller, national Collegiate A. A. meet on a bad day in 0:14.5, and he also touched 0:14.3 at the Ohio Relays.

Inasmuch as he knocked over a hurdle, Keller will not get credit for a world's record, whereas Sentman's record in the race was the balance in his favor. Keller, nevertheless got the award in the low hurdles by virtue of his victory at the N. C. A. A. meet, where Ernie Payne of Southern California tripped, as he led over the last hurdle—an unfortunate incident for Payne as his past performances, including 0:23.4 on two occasions, doubtless would have earned him the edge in the fight for the trophy. The N. C. A. A. games were 0:23.4, and it is a magnificent tribute to Wykoff and Tolman that they should be named unanimously in events where they have so many exceptional performances. Keller's record in his selection is backed by brilliant work. Wykoff defeated all

Letts Named in Half Mile, Carl Coan Failed Outdoors to Show Indoor Speed

Eastman again received consideration in the half-mile but was beaten out by Dale Letts of Chicago. The two have never met in the mile, but Putnam of Iowa won an outdoor race over Letts at the N. C. A. A. games in 1930. Letts, however, was one of the world's 14-foot vaulters when he cleared 14 feet 1 1/2 inch at the Philadelphia. That clinched his place, although the following week he was caught in a triple tie with Tommy Warner of Northwestern and Verne McDermott of Chicago at 13 feet 10 1/2 inches.

In addition to the three unanimous choices named, there was one other, Bill Graber, Southern California's sophomore pole-vaulter. Graber became one of the world's 14-foot vaulters when he cleared 14 feet 1 1/2 inch at the Philadelphia. That clinched his place, although the following week he was caught in a triple tie with Tommy Warner of Northwestern and Verne McDermott of Chicago at 13 feet 10 1/2 inches.

There were no marked differences of opinion—the broad jump and two-mile run, Clark Chamberlain of Michigan State, received the honor in the two-mile race for turning in faster time than Joe McCluskey of Fordham, both in dual meet and championship competition. McCluskey gave a fine exhibition of courage in winning at the N. C. A. A. games, but Chamberlain had fallen at the I. C. A. games. McCluskey defeated Chamberlain handsomely after the latter cracked under his own fast pace and placed fourth. Chamberlain, however, won a week later at the N. C. A. A. games in 15:18. McCluskey did better, but it was an indoor board track. Manning of Wichita, last year's choice, also was mentioned.

The astonishing consistency of Richard Barber, of Southern California, prevailed in his favor in the running broad jump. Never below 24 feet in college competition during the year, he reached 25 feet 3 1/2 inches at the I. C. A. A. meet. Edward Gordon of Iowa had a better jump, 25 feet 4 1/2 inches at the N. C. A. A. games, but even defeated Barber in a close contest at the N. C. A. A. games. Gordon, Lemoine Boyle of Penn, and Barber were one-two-three there, but a span of 2 1/2 inches separated them. Barber, in three jumps, with Gordon winning at 24 feet 1 1/2 inches and Barber again demonstrating his consistency with a leap of 24 feet 9 1/2 inches.

Churchill was far and away outstanding in the javelin throw, with several tosses above 220 feet. Bob Jones of Stanford, by virtue of a 159 feet 2 1/2 inch discus throw, at the I. C. A. A. meet, was only two votes short of being a unanimous choice. Frank Conner of Yale was almost a unanimous selection in the hammer throw. Bill O'Connor of Columbia, who cleared 6 feet 5 inches and has yet to be beaten in inter-collegiate competition, was picked by a large number in the high jump.

All in all, it is a strong team. The preponderance of Westerners appears especially significant for America is looking ahead to the Los Angeles Olympic games.

ETON BEATS HARROW IN ANNUAL CRICKET MATCH

LONDON, July 11.—Outplaying their opponents in every department of the game, Eton defeated Harrow in their annual cricket match at Lord's today.

Eton made 431 for five wickets and declared its first innings closed. Harrow could reply only with 245 and 170 and was therefor beaten by an innings and 16 runs.

GOLFERS IN NOVEL TOURNEY TODAY AT WESTBOROUGH

A field of more than 40 golfers composed of leading amateurs, professionals and women golfers will try out a new idea in the game in a tournament at Westborough this afternoon. With the thought of balancing the game somewhat the cups have been enlarged one inch in diameter on each green in order to make putting easier and to speed up play. It is the first time that such a group has been assembled in St. Louis.

Stuart Stickney, veteran golfer of the St. Louis Country Club, has long contended that putting was too big a factor in the game, pointing out that on the average par 71 course, 36 strokes are allowed for putting while only 35, theoretically, are left to be played with the other clubs in a golfer's bag. He believes the game is overvalued when one club is used oftener than all the other 11 clubs which the average golfer carries.

Stickney, believing that the tournament would prove the truth of his contention and at the same time show the effect of the larger cups on the new ball, arranged with Walter Pfeiffer, president of Westborough Country Club to hold the event.

Included in the field are Bryan Winter, North Hills, District and State amateur champion, Clarke Morse, Normandy, professional, who was the first St. Louisian in many years to qualify in the National Open championship held at Toledo, O., recently; Lester Slatery, Crystal Lake, amateur, who was runner-up to Winter in the District and State tournaments; Charley Collins, Algonquin, Western Junior title holder.

Mrs. I. S. Hynes, former St. Louis women's champion, and runner-up to Mrs. O. S. Hill in the Trans-Mississippi tournament this year and Virginia Pep, woman professional at the Municipal course, will play in the four foursomes composed of women.

The first foursome is scheduled to leave the first tee at 2 o'clock with others following at five-minute intervals. The score keepers have been instructed to keep track of the time it takes to get over the 18 holes and to count the number of putts which each player uses.

Elliot Whitbread and Dick Bockenkamp, former District and State champions, were late entrants and will be paired this afternoon. Pairings and starting times:

UNIVERSITY CITY CLINCHES COUNTY LEGION TITLE

As far as the final winner is concerned, the county legion baseball league season is as good as over, although there are two more games to be played. University City clinched its hold on the pennant for the second straight year by defeating the Shrewsbury 7 to 1, Sunday afternoon.

The dispute over the ineffectuality of a key on the University City squad was settled yesterday by L. L. Leach, sectional director of legion baseball activities. It was found that the boy was within the district, but it is expected that an appeal will be made for further investigation. In case University City ultimately should be disqualified, Overland will be given the title.

The county winner must be decided by next Saturday, when it will meet the city series winners for the Northeast Missouri title.

DR. MELLIES LEADER IN SHOOTING EVENTS

Dr. W. J. Mellies, member of the North St. Louis Revolver Club, and the St. Louis Pistol and Revolver Club, was the leader in both of the weekly meets held by these clubs, scoring 85 in the first club's meet, and 83 in the second, both scores being made out of a possible point total of 100. E. C. Frechman was second in Dr. Mellies in the St. Louis Pistol and Revolver Club's meet, with 82, while Dr. P. R. Hollingsworth followed him in the North St. Louis Revolver Club's weekly meet.

Plenty of Boxing Here, Little Profit, Official Figures Show; Nine Cards Average $767 Net

By W. J. McGoogan.

An examination of attendance and finance figures for boxing and wrestling shows which have been held here since June 1 leads one to wonder why promoters continue to operate.

Nine boxing programs attracted 10,025 persons, 1875 of whom were admitted free, making the gross receipts $7243.50, with a tax of $343.09, leaving the sum of $6895.41, with which to pay the performers, rent and all the other expenses which enter into the presentation of boxing.

Tom Packs, who handles the larger wrestling ventures, was somewhat better off for his two programs undoubtedly showed a profit for him, but the four wrestling shows taken in a group, counting the two by Packs and two of the rival promoters showed that $831 people attended, 1800 of whom were admitted free. There was a gross take of $7356.65, $351.20 tax, leaving $7005.45 net.

Boxing Promotions Lose.

With the possible exception of two boxing programs, none of the nine earned their promoters anything. One backer, Sam Slotkev, who handled the largest show, that with John Schwake and Angus Snyder, in the main event at the Winter Garden which netted $1361.25, was tickled pink when

Put Her Four-Year-Old Son in Jail Over Night

Drastic Measures Applied by Mrs. Dorothy Perry of Annapolis, Maryland, to Cure Young Roger of Wanderlust and the Sensation It Caused.

ANNAPOLIS, Maryland.
MRS. DOROTHY PERRY, wife of a naval officer, has been trying for almost a year to break her young son, now four and a half years old, of the habit of running away from home. She reasoned that even if his night of incarceration should prove to have cured the boy of his wanderlust, her troubles were far from over. The Police Commissioner gave her a stern scolding. The Mayor made an investigation of the case and said he would report it to the Governor. And a wave of indignation swept through the city against the mother who had recourse to such a drastic remedy for her son's misbehavior. In addition to the universal tendency to champion childhood, this is the capital of the Maryland Free State, which has elected as its Governor, four times in succession, a man who stands for the least possible interference of government in private affairs.

Mrs. Perry defends her action vigorously. She tells of young Roger's long series of runaways, which began one night when he slipped out of the house, clad in pajamas and provisioned with animal crackers; he was 3 then. She mentions recent expeditions, in one of which he climbed on a fishing boat and fell overboard. Just a few days before his night in jail he tried to get a ticket to New York at an interurban station, and when he failed, started to walk down the track toward Baltimore. With her husband, Lieutenant Roger Perry, away at sea and the responsibility for their son's safety resting on her, she feels she was justified in subjecting the boy to the unpleasant restraint of a cell in an effort to save him from the dangers to which continued straying would expose him.

The arrest was arranged with Chief of Police Richard Holliday. The child was allowed to board an interurban train, then was put off before it got out of Annapolis and was taken into custody by the Chief himself, who took the boy to the police station and had him locked in a cell. It was late afternoon. Roger, it was reported, threatened to blow up the police station, and then cried himself to sleep. Early in the evening his mother dropped in, left a blanket and pillow and something for him to eat.

ABOUT 8 o'clock the next morning Mrs. Perry and Police Commissioner R. Lee Waller called at the station and had Roger released. "This won't happen again," Waller declared. "There won't be any more little boys kept in cells all night just to frighten them." He said he had stopped at the station the previous night, but had been unable to learn why the boy was held; he left instructions that he be called if the child needed attention.

Freed from his cell, Roger went home with his mother. Quickly the news of the experiment in child guidance got out and criticism began. After a day or so of it, Mrs. Perry presented her side of the matter in a statement to the press. She said:

"To be inveigled against by the Police Commissioner, placarded on the front page of a half-dozen newspapers and investigated by the Mayor, was the surprising result of an effort to educate my 4-year-old son in the pitfalls that surround small boys when they leave home adventure-bound."

"Roger Perry Jr., 4 years and 5 months old, made his first foray into the unknown in August, 1930, when he got out of bed at 4 a. m., left the house silently and set out to find adventures, garbed in his pajamas and carrying a box of animal crackers as a thoughtful provision against contingencies of hunger.

"We were at Long Beach, Cal., at the time, and he was recovered from the police station at 7 a. m. After that, I provided a series of straps and padlocks to keep him within bounds, but he eluded constraint on numerous occasions and was in the habit of causing considerable trouble in the boulevard traffic, which he treaded precariously.

"He had a backyard to play in, toys of various sorts and he attended an excellent nursery school, where he was a model pupil. His excursions were never connected with fleeing from punishment or to escape home conditions, but were pure and simple wanderlust. He had crossed the continent three times before he was 2 years old and traveled on both coasts, and had, so far as I can fathom the matter, simply acquired a taste for travel, particularly by train or street car. . . . He always tried to board trains when he was on the loose.

"The discipline following these excursions was usually that of being put to bed for the remainder of the day. When he was smaller and climbed the backyard fence or ran away while out walking he had been spanked, but spanking seemed to have a slightly slight effect on him, so that system of discipline was abandoned.

"We have been in Annapolis four months, and until the middle of May there was no recurrence of the wanderlust urge. He has been continually under supervision, of course, by a nurse and members of the family. In May he ran away twice to the Naval Academy, was put to bed one time, with no effect, was caned the second time, equally with no effect.

"It will be understood that although I do not approve of corporal punishment, I was ready to try even discarded methods in an attempt to curb his going afieid when he was in danger of falling overboard or being run over.

"Shortly after that he ran away to Market Space, climbed on the fishing boats and was brought back to me by Chief of Police Holliday, dripping wet, because he had fallen overboard and had been pulled out by a larger boy.

"LAST Sunday he was playing out doors, ran away, and was brought back from the railroad trestle over College Creek, where he was blithely walking the track on the way to New York. At the Bladen street station I was told that he had come in and asked for a ticket, and that they had seen him walk away up the track when he was refused.

"Naturally, I cannot expect total strangers to nurse my child for me, but since grown people can calmly watch a 4-year-old walk away up railroad tracks it seems to me more than ever imperative that I find some way of teaching my child the dangers of running away.

"He has a sublime faith in the belief that everyone will always be good to him and that he is too clever to be injured in any way. For two years I have described the horrors of automobile accidents to a little boy who listened calmly and unbelievably.

"I will not allow him to be frightened by tales of policemen who cut off boys' hands, and other boggy tales sometimes volunteered by outsiders, and as a result he adores policemen and looks forward to the same cordial treatment from them that was accorded in the Long Beach Police Station, where he was fed apples and cookies.

"His Long Beach nursery school teacher, who has studied child psychology, advised me to arrange a fake kidnapping, have him picked up some time when he ran away and detained away from home for a few days, in order to give him some concrete idea of the definite results of his behavior.

"I was unable to arrange so elaborate a scene, but last Monday I went, in desperation, to Chief of Police Holliday and asked them to take the boy into custody, after a running away they would supervise, and keep him at the station all night. Chief Holliday was most reluctant to agree, because he felt that the experience would be too trying for a mere baby.

"I assured him that I would take all responsibilities for the effect on the child; and I did not feel that I was asking too much of the police, because if Roger could be cured of his habit they would be saved much trouble. They had already been sent out to search for him several times. Why should not police as well as doctors do preventive work as well as curative?"

"Chief Holliday agreed to take him, simply as a favor to me, and said that he preferred not to keep him all night, but that part was left open, to depend on Roger's reaction. This was scheduled for Wednesday. That afternoon, just before leaving the station house, Chief Holliday told Commissioner Waller about the plan to bring the boy to the station—no mention was made as to the length of time he was to be kept, which was not yet settled. Chief Holliday, acting on my request, gave his men instructions to pay no attention to Roger beyond the cursory official attention necessary. He was to be neither frightened nor coddled.

"He was taken off the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis train at West street station at 5 p. m. Chief Holliday told me he would attend to the matter personally, so the boy would not be frightened by harsh treatment.

"We arranged for him to get on the train at Maryland avenue, because we hoped to cure him of his idea that he could go to New York if he once boarded a train, and the conductor was schooled to ask for his ticket, then say children were not allowed to travel alone, and put him off at West street.

"AT 6:30 I went over to the station house, saw him asleep, and left a pillow and blanket and some bread. I was told that he had cried a little, talked about blowing up the station house, and then went to sleep. At 8 p. m. I telephoned Officer Virgil Linton, who told me that Roger had been awake, but was now asleep and all right.

"I do not believe that Roger cried his heart out in the cell, as some of the more sensational reports have had it, but I would be perfectly willing to have him weep all of several nights in order to insure his not being killed or maimed for life."

Whether his night behind bars has cured Roger remains to be seen. Shortly after the event Mrs. Perry said he had not made another attempt to run away. But she did not seem at all confident of a reformation. Evidence of this was her move to turn the case over to a professional psychologist. She has asked Dr. Esther L. Richards of the Phipps Psychiatric Clinic, Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, a national authority on child psychology, to examine Roger, in the hope that an analysis of the boy's roving propensities will lead to corrective measures which can be applied without arousing the citizenry's ire or disturbing governmental agencies.

JOE MAYOTT, a patient at the Soldier's Home here in Sawtelle, has come to the conclusion that he is headed wrong. Fifty-four years of age, he is not growing up.

He's growing down!

In 1922 Joe was 5 feet 7 inches tall. In 1928 he was exactly 5 feet.

Today, stretching a bit, he can measure 4 feet 9 inches.

Total loss in nine years, ten-twelfths of a foot.

"Look me over later on," Joseph suggests. "You may not know me."

Possessed of a sense of humor, a wife, a pension and a medal from the U. S. Government for work in the Canal Zone, Joseph also has one of the strangest afflictions known to medical science. He is sinking into his shoes.

His legs are growing shorter, yet his feet no larger. He is just slowly disappearing. Some day he may be no larger than the gnomes and elves which fancy says play about the lawns and gardens. But that seems hardly probable.

The plight of Joe Mayott is puzzling the physicians and surgeons from all over the country who come to visit him. Joe was born in the Catskills, near South Cairo, New York, a sturdy lad who tramped through the hills, faced with health. When war broke out in the Philippines, Joe was among those who went over to fight guerrillas, dysentery and starving mosquitoes. After he came back he enlisted for work as a heavy-timber carpenter in Panama, where he fought numerous engagements with fever and heat. He came out all together but not feeling very well. He had recurring pains in his back and legs and he found that his hat was getting too small.

"I wonder what the big idea is?" he pondered.

"Along about 1922," he says, "my pants started getting too long. I cut them off at the bottom. Presently I had 'em cut off at the top. 'Something's not right here!' I said to myself. 'I'm going to see a doctor.'

"An ARMY medical officer at Long Beach, California, looked me over. He called in a lot of physicians and surgeons. Eventually, he said:

"You are suffering from osteitis deformans. I don't think there is any doubt about it."

"That's terrible!" I replied. "And what's that? Must be something awful."

"Osteitis deformans," the doctor explained, "is the medical name for a disease first described by a man named Paget, and in medical circles is an affliction known as 'Pagets.' You have them, or it. Whichever it was.

"On the strength of this I got my pension increased from $6 to $12 a month. That was when I shrank from 5 feet 11-2 inches to five feet 1-2 inch. Later I was termed 'totally disabled' and my pension increased to $24 a month. I've been shrinking up ever since."

Mayott's condition slowly became intolerable. The coat which originally had fitted him nicely hung down to his knees. His shirt sleeves became flapping banners unless rolled and rolled and rolled. His pants legs lopped over the ends of his shoes. He reached the point where, if he sat at a dining table, he could not see if there was a thing remaining in the gravy bowl and if he wanted to have a second helping of anything else he had to stand up or ask somebody to take a look for him. All he could see was the outside of a dish.

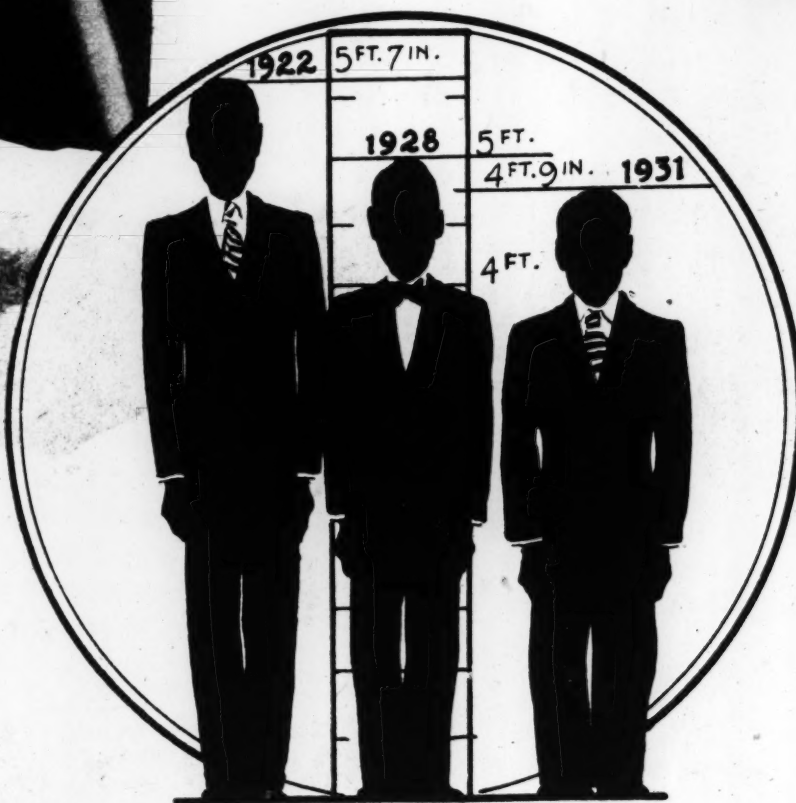

It was not until 1926 that the "Pagets" began bringing great pain and Mayott applied for admission to the Soldiers' Home. There he promptly was put in the hospital and there his size continued to shrink. From a normal weight of 165 pounds, he went down to 110. Lately, it has picked up a little while his stature continues to dwindle. In the meantime, the size of his hat has increased from 6 7-8 to 7 1-2.

Colonel J. A. Mattison, chief surgeon at the Sawtelle Home, says this of Joe's affliction:

"The etiology of osteitis deformans is unknown. Its progress ordinarily is slow and the bone changes are of a chronic, progressive, inflammatory nature. The weight-bearing bones are most frequently involved, resulting in a bowing somewhat similar to the bowing seen in rickets, and the absorption of cartilages in joints."

Which, in plain English means that the cartilages between ribs, between the vertebrae in the spinal column, between supporting joints in the legs, hips and so on are disappearing so that bones, from neck to feet, are resting on bones. Rib sits on rib, vertebra upon vertebra, hip joints and knee joints have no protecting "cushions" and the whole body has just let down with some of the weight-carrying bones bending. And the slight but continuous wearing of bone against bone has worn bone away as chalk wears away grating against another surface.

"Paget's disease," Colonel Mattison continued, "usually occurs after the third decade, or between the ages of 40 and 60. The skull frequently is involved and there is an enlargement between its inner and outer tables, resulting in increased size sometimes, which gives the head a triangular shape. The disease is extremely rare."

(This shrinkage is of different derivation than the "shrinking" in height found in old persons. They merely "bend over" from their years.)

No definite cure of Paget's disease has been established, the Colonel explains. It is not likely that Mayott will grow much shorter, he says, except from bowing of his lower limbs.

In the meantime, the veteran soldier, moving about on crutches a few feet at a time, has a twinkle in his eye. His sense of humor and his patience seem inexhaustible.

"I've got an occupation," he says. "I knit women's scarfs. Imagine that, will you! A timber-carpenter knitting! I don't make much money at it, but it gives me something to do—something to employ my mind. I built a whole town once in Chili, South America—the town of Caletones. The U. S. Government gave me a medal for my work on the Panama Canal, in 1911. And now I've got the 'something deformans,' or whatever it is. And they say it's pretty bad."

He paused for a moment to look out of the hospital window at the afternoon's glorious sunshine. Moving about below he saw countless veterans from the convalescent wards. A few were smiling, a few recounting their tales of woe and some just sitting and staring into space.

"My wife comes over from Hollywood right regularly to see me," Joe continued. "We have a boy we call our son, but he's not our real son. He's a relative, though, and looks after things at the house."

"WE'VE bought a little piece ground, 90x175 feet, near Van Nuys, California, and I may be able to spend my last days there. We've got three English walnut trees, two apricot trees, two peach trees and one each of orange, grapefruit, lemon and fig."

"If I don't keep on shrinking up so they'll have to hunt to find me. I may get out there some time."

"But the treatment for your pains?" he was asked. "What about that?"

A grim smile overspread his features.

"Oh!" he replied, "they don't count. They hurt, of course. But what of it, if they can't be stopped? They're just sort of like rheumatism and lots of people stand rheumatism."

He picked up an old brier pipe, filled it with some burley leaf and philosophized: "Life's funny, isn't it?"

The Pastor Who Stole the Automobiles in Which to Tend His Flock

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MOORELAND, Indiana.

THE REVEREND GEAN POER went to prison the other day for automobile theft. He had stolen three cars, and used them in his pastoral duties.

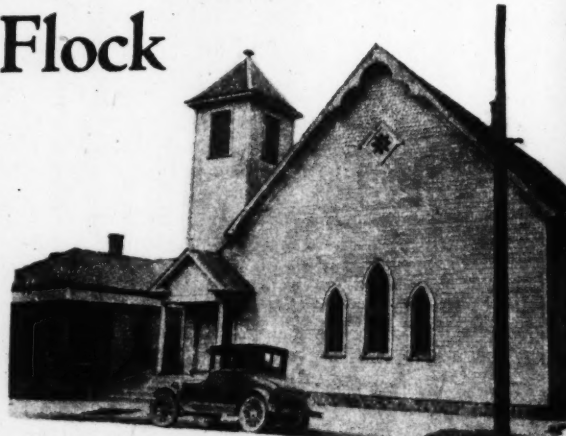

Admitting his guilt, he explained: "I couldn't afford to buy a car on my salary as a preacher. And the Lord's work had to go on."

That part of the Lord's work in charge of the Rev. Mr. Poer had been going on at a great rate when disaster overtook him. He had been pepping up his church until it fairly hummed with activity. In the three months he had been pastor here he had doubled the attendance of his Sunday school, increased the number of adults at regular services, boosted the collections. He had become popular with lively young people and staid oldsters alike. Such prominence had the hustling young preacher attained in a short time that he was chosen to be the chief speaker at the union Memorial Day services of the Mooreland churches. It looked as if he were destined for a brilliant career as a minister of the gospel.

Then came, suddenly and dramatically, the disclosure of the idol's feet of clay, manifested by a lightheartedness of the fingers in the matter of other people's automobiles. It was hard to believe, but there was nothing else to do when the preacher admitted it. Deacons and elders shook their heads.

"If he had taken just one car," one of them said, "and then had shown the proper remorse, we would have tried to get him off. But to steal three!"

The Disciples Church at Mooreland, Indiana.

Even the minister's father, himself a clergyman, said: "My son must suffer the penalty for his sins." The law took its course without hindrance from the people who had been the Rev. Mr. Poer's co-workers and admirers.

It was in the early part of last March that the Rev. Mr. Poer came to Mooreland, a town of 500 population, to revive a church that had languished for lack of a resident pastor—someone who would not only preach on Sunday but work during the week to stir up interest in the church's activities. The Disciples Church had tried the plan of having an out-of-town preacher come every other Sunday and deliver a sermon, and it hadn't worked well; the sermons were all right, but the members felt the need of religious leadership between the semi-monthly services. So they sent a call to church headquarters at Indianapolis for a resident pastor.

Young Gean Poer responded. He rattled into town in a dilapidated flivver—a tall, pale fellow of 24, fresh from a Bible Seminary at Cincinnati, Ohio, and with a course at Butler University behind him. He talked with leaders of the congregation, impressed them favorably and was accepted as pastor. He was to conduct Sunday school every Sunday, preach every other Sunday and handle other pastoral duties. It was impressed on him that there was need to get out and visit the members and potential members of the congregation.

His salary was fixed at $40 a month. To make up somewhat for its meagerness, Deacon Walter Murray agreed to let the minister stay at his house and charge him only $4 a week for room, board and laundry.

The new parson set to work with a will. He soon won the allegiance of the town's younger set by his youthful enthusiasm, and older people approved of his fervent prayers, his ability to recite long passages from the Scriptures and the industry he displayed in building up the church.

HE DIDN'T confine his labors within the limits of the town.

Almost daily he drove his shabby old car into the country and among the farming folk of the region, recruited members for the church or brought estranged members back into the fold. In a very short time the Rev. Mr. Poer had become a prominent figure in Mooreland, and a social favorite. He was invited out to meals. Almost everyone called him Gean.

In the meantime, the parson acquired a new car; that is, a different one; it was far from new, another flivver.

Melodrama Again Figures in the Affairs of the Countess Mercy-Argenteau

Six Years After Her Obscure Death in Tampa, Florida, the Courts Are Called Upon to Straighten Out Her Estate.

The Countess Louise Mercy-Argenteau, a famous Second Empire beauty and mother of the Countess Rosalie.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

ATAMPA, Florida. LAWSUIT instituted here the other day seems to be an appropriate aftermath to the life of Rosalie, Countess de Mercy-Argenteau. Both are of the stuff of melodrama.

The Countess, daughter of a famous beauty of the Second Empire and herself a woman exceptionally endowed with looks and charm, had a career that was shadowed with tragedy and romantic disillusionment. Forced to give up her youthful sweetheart, she entered a marriage whose unhappiness began on the honeymoon. Free at last to marry her first love, she surprised him in the arms of another woman a few days before the wedding was to take place. Her son was killed in an automobile accident. She traveled widely in search of her father's illegitimate son, of whose existence she had learned in a deathbed confession. A cousin fell dead while playing a piano duet with her. An artist who was painting her portrait committed suicide before it was finished. In her restless travels in the Orient she became a drug addict, and conquered the habit only after a terrific struggle. With such things was her life filled.

Now, six years after her death here, comes the lawsuit over her estate. And it involves a disputed will, the identity of a man of mysterious origin, the romance of a Count who won but did not wed an American girl, and a treasure of jewels and relics with the glamour of association with European royalty. The collection of relics, which is said to include a diary and letters written by Marie Antoinette, furniture used by Louis XIV of France, autographed photographs of royal personages, paintings, rare porcelains and tapestries, and a necklace presented by Edward VII of England, is in the possession of Mrs. Madeline B. Gill of Clearwater, Florida. Mrs. Gill says they were bequeathed by the Countess to the latter's half-brother, James H. Casey, and that he sold them to her about a year and a half after the Countess died.

Mrs. Gill's right to the property is disputed in petitions filed in the Hillsborough County Court here by Jean Van J. Blinck, Consul of The Netherlands and friend of the Countess, who says he represents heirs of hers in Belgium and France. He contends there is no record of a will conveying the estate to Casey, and, furthermore, that it has not been proved that the man known as Casey was the Countess' half-brother, an illegitimate son of her father by an American girl. He has petitioned for authority to administer the estate, and also asked the court to halt administration of the estate of Casey, who died in 1928.

A further complication in the case is the fact that the Countess took a pauper's oath in bankruptcy a few months before her death. There is now the prospect that creditors will intervene, alleging concealment of assets.

The last years of the Countess' life, when she was harassed with debts and lived obscurely, provided a depressing contrast to its promising beginning. The Countess was born July 18, 1862, at Argenteau, the family estate on the banks of the Meuse, near Liege, Belgium. Her father was the Count Eugene de Mercy-Argenteau, and her mother, the Countess Louise, had been born Princess de Caraman-Chimay.

THE mother was an important figure in the court of Napoleon III; in the volume of memoirs published after her death and entitled "The Last Love of an Emperor," she tells of Napoleon's affection for her and of their secret meetings—but insists she was not his mistress. Louise's grandmother also was a celebrated beauty and was one of the heroines of the French Revolution. She was the Marquise de Fontenay, who before her marriage was a Spanish Countess. Her husband, the Marquis de Fontenay, was guillotined early in the Revolution. She, after saving many persons from prison and death in those violent days, saved herself from the guillotine by marrying Citizen Tallien. Later she divorced him and married Count de Caraman, Prince de Chimay.

The Mercy-Argenteau family was old and illustrious. One of its members had been Austrian Ambassador to France and a favorite of Marie Antoinette. A Guillaume d'Argenteau had coined his own gold ducats in the fifteenth century and had been called the Prince of Montgion; Rosalie, the Countess whose estate is now in litigation at Tampa, was sometimes called Princess Montgion.

Rosalie was a disappointment to her parents. They had wanted a boy to carry on the family line, and she was their only child. It is said her mother never forgave her for being a girl.

The Countess told the story of her life in "The Last of a Race," published in 1925. It discloses that even as a young girl there was much unhappiness in her existence; she used to go to a little chapel in a forest to pray for deliverance from her sorrows.

But it seemed for a time that she was to find happiness in love. She loved and was loved by the youth who had been selected to be her husband. Fitz-James was his name, and he is described in her autobiography as "a distant cousin, a descendant of James the First of England."

Misfortune befell the romance. Fitz-James lost his money, and presently the girl who loved him was told he had married someone else. Other suitors satisfactory to her parents appeared. So little did they mean to her whose heart was with her first love, that when the time came to choose among four who were paying court to her, she left the choice to chance; she drew lots to decide which one she would marry.

It was a Frenchman, the Duke of Avaray, whom she thus selected. They were married and started on their honeymoon trip. But before they had gone his life. But this hope died, she related, when the youth suddenly departed with the wife of his tutor. Antoine, the young Duke of Avaray, served in the French Army in the World War. Some time afterward he was killed while testing a racing automobile.

After her divorce, the Countess met Fitz-James again, and learned that he still loved her. They arranged to marry. Fate, which for so long had dealt harshly with her, seemed to have relented at last. The Countess wrote: "I bubbled with happiness. . . . I had always lost, and now victory was at hand. The world spread radiant before me."

This was the situation when the Countess' maid became ill and a substitute was employed—a wild, pretty, little street girl of 16, whom the Countess called Gamin.

Two days before the date set for the wedding, Fitz-James was to dine with his fiancée in her apartment. She was not at home when he arrived, but returned about dusk. Going to her bedroom, she turned on the light—and discovered her fiancé and her maid there. Gamin had on a pair of red slippers belonging to the Countess.

The unhappy woman broke her walking cane over the back of the only man she had ever loved. And so ended ed their romance.

Disillusioned and bitter, the Countess sought forgetfulness in travel, gay society and adventure. She visited the underworld with the Prince of Wales, who became Edward VII. She journeyed to the Continent and was stricken with fever. Drugs saved her life, but she became enslaved to them. There followed a year of which the Countess, in her autobiography, chose to say little. But after a hard struggle she recovered from her addiction.

Seeking some fresh interest in her life, she determined at last to come to America and try to carry out a request her father had made as he lay dying. He had asked her to look for her half-brother, his illegitimate son. The Countess Eugene had then told his daughter of his American romance. Bitterly disappointed when he had learned that his wife would never be able to bear him a son, the Count had left his home and made a trip to America. In Boston he fell in love with a 16-year-old girl and won her affection. For a time they were happy together. Then the girl told him she was going to have a child, and he confessed that he was married. She sent him away. He heard that a boy was born to her, but what became of her or the child the Count did not know.

The Countess went to Toronto, Canada, then to Boston, in her quest. That was in 1900. In Boston she was told, as related in her autobiography, that the girl who had loved unwisely had tried to drown herself after the Count's departure, but had been rescued; that a Dr. Echs had attended her through her ordeal, and then had married her and adopted the child. The family had moved to North Carolina. So to North Carolina went the Countess. There she was informed that the doctor and his wife both were dead; that they had had a son of their own, and one of the boys had died and the other had gone away. No one seemed to know whether the adopted son or the other one had died.

HER mission apparently doomed to failure, the Countess went to Cuba. There, one day, she noticed an "As Mr. Foster" sign, marking one of a chain of agencies whose business it is to perform various and multitudinous services for patrons. She applied to the agency for help in her quest, and was directed to a man named Jones as a person who might be able to aid her. Jones professed to know nothing about the half-brother, but before long the Countess, observing his facial expressions as she told her story and noting his apparent recollection of certain names and places, decided he was the missing man.

The Countess and the man known as Jones—in her autobiography she intimates this was an assumed name, but uses no other—went to California, bought farms and settled down for several years, living apart. Then the Countess returned to Belgium. The war came on, and the castle of Argenteau was shelled and destroyed in the German invasion. "So we returned and took up the thread of life as best we could," she wrote.

Later she moved to Tampa, and lived quietly until her death on July 16, 1925. She is buried here in a simply marked grave. How much of an estate the Countess left and how it was disposed of are questions involved in the current litigation. Her property was once estimated to be worth $1,000,000, but she borrowed a good deal of money in her last year and the bankruptcy proceedings indicate straitened circumstances. Apparently the collection of relics was about all that remained at the time of her death. These valuables are supposed to have come into possession of James H. Casey at that time, and to have been turned over by him to Mrs. Gill for "$1 and other valuable considerations"; the "other considerations," it was reported, were that he was to be taken care of for the rest of his life.

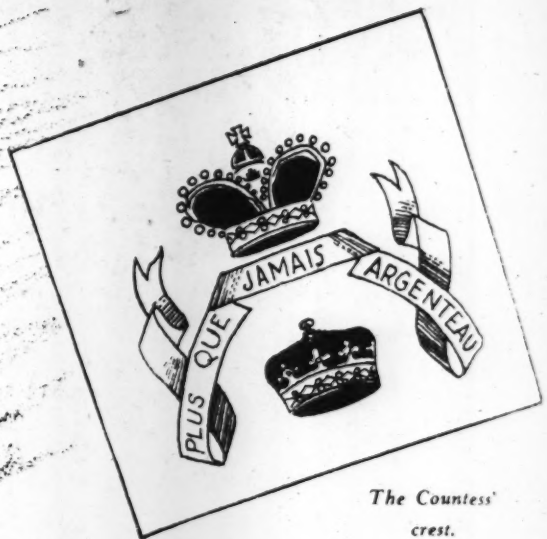

Casey presumably was the Jones mentioned in the Countess' autobiography, whom she accepted as her half-brother. But Consul Blinck, who says a Belgian investigator has been working with him on the case for three years, asserts he has evidence that the man died under the name of Worme.

MRS. GILL, who contends Casey was the Countess' half-brother, and that he was the beneficiary under a will made by the Countess which was never probated, declares she will oppose the Consul's suit vigorously.

"After the death of the Countess," she said, "I searched for heirs, appealing to Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, Countess Cunliff Owen of Riverside, New York, and others who had known the Countess. From records of her ancestors I obtained my knowledge of the relatives, and all have died."

In regard to the heirs whom Blinck says he represented, she said: "I am going to appeal to the French Ambassador and the Governor to find out who these mysterious persons are, as no one has yet mentioned their names. I am especially anxious to discover the 'investigator' who said he took an inventory shortly after the death of the Countess. I am prepared to show that no inventory was taken after the death of the Countess except the one the half-brother and I took together. I have papers of the parents and grandparents of the Countess to protect me if any false claimant to the estate appears."

As to the value of the relics she possesses, Mrs. Gill said: "In reply to claims that there should have been an inheritance tax paid on the collection, I can say that at the present time, after six years of research and restoring, the entire estate can be bought for $45,000."

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

SHORT little man with a bushy crown of now almost snow-white hair is to date the only Italian who, while still within the boundaries of Italy, has had the supreme audacity to defy Mussolini. Arturo Toscanini, according to word from abroad, has spent most of the time since his nerve-shattering clash with Fascism recuperating at St. Moritz, in Switzerland. And his way of recovering from any form of exhaustion or strain is to play the piano in unbroken seclusion, hour after hour, hour after hour.

In his own field of music Toscanini is as powerful a dictator as Mussolini. Baton in hand, and the 100 or more men of an orchestra before him, he is an absolute autocrat, an autocrat with steadfast ideals as to what he shall and shall not permit in his special province. It was when Premier Mussolini's Fascists told Toscanini he must play the "Giovinezza," or suffer the consequences of refusal, that the little conductor did what any native son of a shade less distinguished, a shade less renowned, would never have dared to do. It would have meant the wasting torture of confinement in the penal colony on the Island of Lipari. Or worse.

As it was, Maestro Toscanini, once the adored idol of all Italy, suffered not only humiliation, but actual blows, the Fascist "force majeure." Ordered out of Bologna, where he was to have directed the disputed concert, he retired to the seclusion of his lovely home in Milan. For several days his passport was suspended. As soon as it had been restored he made haste with his family to the border and the freedom of Switzerland. It is rumored now that he will become an American citizen.

But Toscanini says nothing. He sits all day and far into the night before the piano, wrestling with stubborn notes. At the end of this month he will go to Bayreuth, in Germany, to conduct in the Wagner Festspielhaus there a performance of the opera "Parsifal," and following that the opera "Tannhauser." And music devotees who have followed Toscanini's long career are making every possible effort to hear those performances. For they expect that he will emerge from his contemplative solitude with a new fire, a new zeal, a demonic energy that will drive him on to excel even his previous excellence. It has been like this in the past when the great conductor has emerged from emotional storms and rages against those who hold musical ideals less high than does he.

American dollars, the power of Mussolini, fame, adulation, the highest honors, nothing so far has been able to swerve him from service to his ideals. While the recent episode at Bologna was probably the most dangerous in the conductor's career, it was not the first clash of its kind. Nor will it likely be the last. Music possesses him when he conducts. He is transfigured. Read this description by his biographer, Tobia Nicotra:

"Observe Toscanini from a close vantage point while he conducts. His almost triangular face grows rigid in the hard grip of muscles under the pressure of his powerful jaws, with their expression of unshakable will. His distended forehead is moist with sweat, his chest swells, and he pants slightly. The two spread wings of his gray hair lie brushed smoothly back until the sudden nervous gesture of his hand over his head rumples them. Now a wave of tenderness sweeps up from the orchestra, moving from instrument to instrument with indefinable beat. His cheeks redden with excitement, his glance becomes brilliant and glowing, his forehead clears again, an inexpressible agitation stirs him, arouses him, alters his whole look.

"His mouth is never compressed; one almost expects a song or a cry of grief to escape from his half-opened lips. In all this he feels the supreme ecstasy of a flawless and absolute contact with the composer; the satisfying consciousness of expressing himself through others almost as though he would stamp his image in their minds."

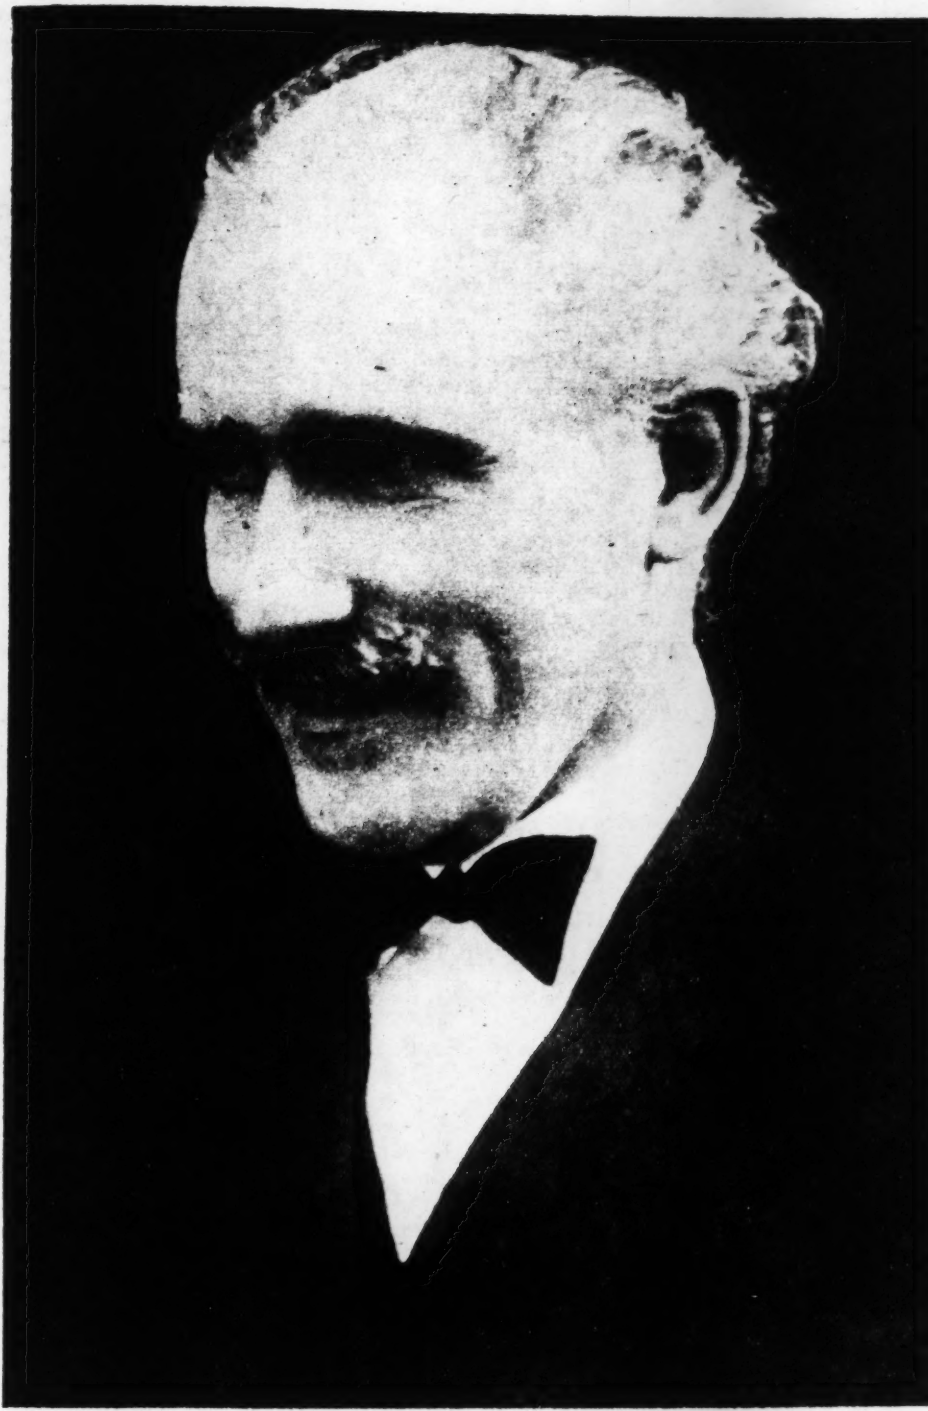

THE story of Toscanini's career is altogether fantastic. It would not make good fiction, it is too implausible. Take for instance how he got his first opportunity to conduct. Born in Parma, Italy, graduate of a good Italian conservatory of music, Toscanini, at 19, was playing a cello in an operatic orchestra in Rio de Janeiro, in Brazil. Most of the principals in the opera troupe and in the orchestra were Italians. But the conductor was a Brazilian. Just before the opening performance in Rio he quit in a towering rage, blamed the Italians for failure to co-operate with him, published his grievances in a letter to the newspapers.

The tickets were sold for the premiere that night—the opera was "Aida." The audience, it was soon to be seen, was in an ugly mood. The Italian, Maestro Superti, was sent on to take the Brazilian's place. Scarcely had he raised his baton before angry hisses and catcalls spread throughout the house. In desperation the chorus master was sent out to conduct. But he got only within sight of the audience when a bellowing roar broke out and he retreated.

"It was at that moment," writes Nicotra, "that the musicians of the orchestra acted. They knew that their 19-year-old 'cellist' had extraordinary talents; they divined the 'born conductor.' And when Toscanini seemed reluctant, they came forward and deposited him on the rostrum by main force. The sudden appearance of this boy and the utter novelty of the situation caught the audience. Their curiosity was pricked and silence descended as though by sorcery. An impressive silence—after that earlier hubbub. But was the audience really appeased or was this merely a pause for astonishment before a worse uproar?

"There stands young Toscanini on the conductor's dais, wearing somebody else's dress coat—which they have got him inside of without his being aware of it—holding a baton someone has managed to thrust between his fingers. He closes the score (for he is never during his whole career to conduct except by memory), lifts his baton, sends the familiar electric glance to left and right and gives the signal for attack. The prelude begins. Self-pledged, the orchestra makes its most heroic efforts to second this conductor in whose hands the fate of their season may possibly be saved.

"The opera closes; there is a delirium of applause. Disaster had been averted for the company; and Toscanini's ordination in the conductorship, accomplished by the luck that put him on the rostrum at the crucial moment, was attended by a tumult of praise. The season continued without break in success, and the youthful leader arranged and directed 18 operas during the company's tour. Luck had done better than the conservatory. Toscanini's fellow musicians had recognized intuitively qualities his teachers had overlooked. He had had to leave the school to find himself."

There was never a doubt from this time on as to his ultimate destiny, although occasionally he was to go back to the 'cello, without rebellion or resentment. From the first, too, he displayed that inflexible musical taste, that horror of distinguished music badly or carelessly played, the rejection of all but what he considered music.

It was about 20 years ago that he calmly walked out on the Metropolitan Opera when the board of directors failed to comply quickly enough with certain requests he had made. He wanted improvements that would raise the artistic standard of the performances. It would be impossible to continue without these changes, Toscanini intimated. The directors counted on his friendship with his co-worker at the Metropolitan, Gatti-Casazza, to keep him there as conductor.

WITHOUT previous warning, they had frantic word one day that Toscanini was on his way to the dock to take ship for Italy. The directors followed him there, prepared to hurl money-bags at his feet. But Toscanini made it plain that it was too late. He sailed for Italy. Again, when he was conductor at La Scala opera house in Milan, Italy, his artistic inflexibility caused the management much pain and anguish. For many weeks Toscanini had rehearsed with orchestra, singers and chorus Bellini's difficult opera "Norma." Tirelessly the rehearsals went on. At last came the final dress rehearsal. The manager and members of the board of directors sat in the rear of the opera house, delighted that La Scala should on the following night present this artistic triumph. But when the last note of the final chorus had died away, Toscanini shook his head and said, no, they would not do "Norma." The performance was not finished enough. The management, individually and collectively, raged and wept, implored and cursed. Toscanini went home to bed. The next night the performance was the familiar "Aida."

Often Toscanini grows impatient with individual musicians at rehearsal. On one occasion he struck a violinist's bow with his baton. The bow was broken and a silver of wood jabbed into the player's forehead. A lawsuit followed. But a distinguished Italian psychologist testified that Toscanini being a consummately great musician, was possessed when on the rostrum by the "musical sacro furore" and therefore could not be held accountable for his acts. The conductor was acquitted in short order.

This is Nicotra's picture of him during an intermission:

THEN a swift glance about. 'Are we ready?' 'The maestro is ready!' cries the stage manager. 'The maestro is ready!' repeat the call boys like sentinels at their posts. The second act opens. Toscanini is again swept into the intense round of activity."

It was not only at the Augusteo in Rome and at La Scala that great crowds gathered far in advance of the time for the concert or the opera when he conducted, but Toscanini's name on the posters of a provincial opera house was enough to draw hundreds from miles around. That was true before the war, and immediately afterward Toscanini was even more a national hero. For he played at hundreds of concerts for charity—once in the arena at Milan before 40,000 listeners. He played just behind the line of fire to give courage to the Italian soldiers. He was decorated for bravery. During and after the war he never hesitated to play the patriotic "Royal March." But Toscanini never kept his distrust of Fascism a secret. And when he was ordered to give good Fascists posts at La Scala, regardless of their artistic or technical ability, he openly rebelled. At this time, too, came his first refusal to play the Fascist marching song, "Giovinezza."

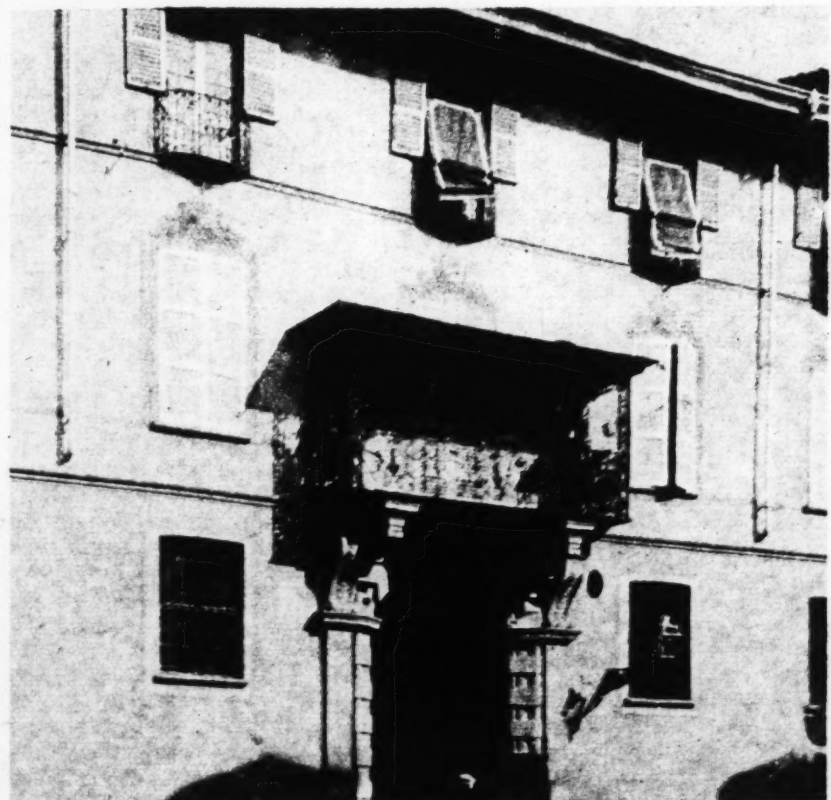

"I refuse to turn the Scala into a market place for Fascist demonstrations," Toscanini said. "Never will my feet cross the threshold of La Scala until Toscanini, the anti-Fascist, goes from there," said Mussolini.

Several times an open break was avoided. Once it was arranged to have a little band come on, preceding an orchestral concert, and play "Giovinezza." After this farce was over, the maestro appeared and conducted the concert. "Giovinezza" was miserable music and he wouldn't even listen to it, Toscanini frankly said.

And he is certainly not alone in his opinion. Aldous Huxley, the English novelist, poking fun at the song, said that only the Italians could have a patriotic song about springtime and beauty. In Italian the chorus of "Giovinezza" is as follows:

Giovinezza! Giovinezza!
Primavera di bellezza!
Nel Fascismo e la salvezza

IT WAS perhaps the most modest structure on a street of unpretentious houses, but it was unmistakably a home.

A tiny street car stopped impertinently at the corner where the big arc light glared, and a Gargantuan figure alighted. The tremendous bulk of human flesh stood uncertainly, and then accosted a couple of small boys.

"You kids know where Ed Burman lives?"

"Yeh, it's the fourth house on the right."

"Thanks, son," said the stranger, and waddled slowly into the shadows.

He sighed as he turned in at the Burman home. It was such a cozy place, and the glimpse he caught was one of superb serenity. Ed and Dot Gosh! . . . What a difference between this little $40-a-month cottage and the suite at the Ritz where he had last visited them. Jim shook his bulbous head as he crossed the veranda and rattled the screen door. "I'm a sentimental idiot," he announced to himself. "An' I'd sure rather be shot than go through with this."

Hanvey remembered him as one of the cleverest gentleman crooks in the country; a college-bred, suave, polished man of the world, who sought his prey in the best social circles. "Handsome Ed Burman," they had called him. He had been known for his expensive and immaculate wardrobe. Now he was dressed in old trousers, shoes which had been half-soled, a negligee shirt of inferior material, and a scarf which couldn't have cost more than 75 cents.

Ed stared through the screen door, endeavoring to identify his visitor in the gloom of late evening. Then he flung the door back and grabbed the fat arms of the detective in welcome.

"Well, I'm a sonovagun, if it ain't Jim Hanvey! Come on in, you big fat lummock. For the love of Mike!" He called back into the house: "Hey, Dot! Look who's here."

The door connecting dining room and kitchen opened and Mrs. Ed Burman appeared. Jim grinned and blinked. She, too, was changed. Still a beautiful woman—reckon Dot couldn't ever be anything else. But her regal blondness was softened by the bungalow apron, and tiny tendrils of the rich, golden hair lay damply against her forehead. This, then, was the Dot of ermine and silver fox and diamonds; this the Dot he had once known in the most extremely ultra circles of the half-world.

She, too, seemed delighted to see him. Her eyes widened, and she sped into the front hall to grab Jim's hand and hat.

"You sure are a sight for sore eyes." Hanvey smiled. "Always quick with compliments, ain't you, Dot?"

"AND a darn sight quicker with dinner. It's going on the table now, Jim. C'mon in, Ed, grab a chair."

Ed grabbed the chair and placed it at the tiny dining table, but Jim hung back. "I ain't hungry, Ed," he protested. "You and Dot go ahead."

The girl dived for the kitchen. "Sit on him Ed," she called, "while I open another can of beans."

Jim was ill at ease. He cleared his throat, looked into the kitchen, then, uneasily, at his host.

"I came for something else, Ed." "Never mind, Jim," Burman's pleasure at his friend's society was quieter than Dot's, but no less genuine. "We can talk better after we finish feeding."

Jim argued, but they didn't even listen to him. Within 10 minutes they had him seated at the table. Jim, munching placidly, despised himself more and more.

Ed and Dot at the Ritz! Ed and Dot on alatial liners! Ed and Dot looking like the millionaires they once had trimmed!

But now . . . just two suburbanites, living in a simple home, serving turnip greens and rather tough steak without apology; in fact, Jim was inclined to think that Ed was secretly proud. He even boasted complacently of Dot's cooking.

"She's a great girl, Jim. Believe me, I'm rather strong for her."

Dot flushed and looked down at her plate. Jim saw, without appearing to see. Dot was a marvel, and no mistake.

"What you workin' at now, Ed?" Jim asked.

"Shop foreman at the Downtown Garage." The ex-crook chuckled. "Quite a comedown Jim; but it was the only work I knew."

"Much money in it?" "Sixty a week. We manage to scrape along, don't we, Dot?"

She gave a forced smile. "After a fashion," she said. "I do all my own work except the heavy cleaning and the washing."

Their talk drifted to reminiscence of the old days. Ed talked frankly of his checkered past—spoke with a mixture of pride and regret.

After dinner Dot cleared the table and then joined Jim and her husband in the little living room. Jim seemed strangely quiet and ill at ease. Even after Dot joined them and sought to lead the conversation back to the old, luxurious days, Jim had little to say.

Yet it was Jim and not his hosts who brought the subject around to the real reason for his visit.

"I shouldn't have let your dinner, Ed."

Dot gave a gay little laugh. "Is my cooking so bad?"

"It ain't that, Dot. It's about my being here." Jim's hand clenched. "I'm on a plumb rotten mission."

"What is it?" inquired Ed Burman quietly.

"Don't you know, Ed?" "Certainly not." But the peaceful expression had fled from Burman's face.

Dot leaned forward tensely. "What is it, Jim? Out with it!" "I hate to . . . But I'm down here to take Ed in!"

Ed Burman sat very still. "You don't mean that, Jim?" "Yes, I do. Honest, I never had a job in my life that I hated worse."

"You under orders?" "No-o, Ed. I'm acting on my own." Dot's cheeks flamed. "Don't be a fool, Jim Hanvey! You know Ed is running straight."

"Is he?"

"Can't you see? Do you suppose he'd be working like a dog every day around filthy machines if he wasn't?"

"He might use that job as a cover, Dot."

Burman's voice came now with the crispness of snapping icicles. "What are you arresting me for, Jim?"

"If you'd give me all them MacArthur bonds, Ed, I might not have to take you in."

Burman gave a harsh, bitter laugh. "The MacArthur bonds? Me?"

Dot was on her feet. "Oh, Jim! What a fool you are! You know that Ed never!"

"Just a minute, honey. Let's don't get sore about this thing. Jim's wrong and I'll try to make him see it."

"I hope so, Ed," said Hanvey fervently.

"There isn't anything I can say, Jim; that is, by way of proof. I've run straight ever since I married Dot. We gave up a lot of money and luxury—for this. Sixty a week, and hard slogging at that."

Jim lighted a fresh cigar. "I know all about that, Ed. And I'm afraid I know what it means. You've put up a great fight, old kid; but you've lost. Gimme the bonds, Ed—and I'll forget the whole thing. Give me my word."

"I haven't the bonds." "Aw now, Ed!"

"I'm not a liar!" said Burman harshly. "And get this, Jim Hanvey: I've known you for a good many years. I never knew you to pull one like this before. You usually sit back until it's almost too late before you make a pinch. I've never before known you to arrest an innocent man. I reckon that's why all the crooks swear by you; if you've understood that you'd get 'em if you could . . . but there wasn't any railroad in your system."

"There isn't now."

"The thunder there isn't! You're sloughing me for something I didn't do. Can't you see what it means, Jim? It'll ruin me. I guess I'll come clear . . . but I'll be sunk just the same. In jail for a bond robbery."

Jim mopped his forehead. "It is rotten, Ed—my taking you down. But I got it to do."

Burman spoke gently. "I guess I know, Jim. I've got a hunch you really do like me pretty well—so well, perhaps, that your judgment is warped." He rose and faced the giant. "I'm ready, Jim. You wouldn't have carried things this far if you hadn't been all set in your mind."

Jim looked at him gratefully. "Thanks, Ed. That's mighty decent of you."

Dot planted herself in the path of the big man.

"I'd like to tell you what I think of you. I'd like!"

"Easy, Dot." Ed's voice was infinitely gentle. "I've known Jim Hanvey a long time and I know he's on the level."

"Ed Burman, don't you know what he's doing to you? He's railroaded you up the river. Can't you see it?"

"No, Dot, I can't. I think Jim believes I stole those bonds. I'm only sorry that he don't trust me enough to give me a chance." He turned to Jim, dignified, yet pleading: "Why not lay off for a while, Jim? Take a couple of days more to look things over. I tell you I didn't steal those bonds."

"Sorry, Ed. I simply can't do it." Ed Burman's eyes had narrowed. His loyalty was under a severe strain.

After all, Jim could give him a little leeway. There was more than a hint of acid in Ed's voice as he turned to the big detective:

"I've never known you to be pig-headed, either, Jim. But if you're set on making a showing!"

Hanvey winced. "That ain't nice, Ed—coming from you."

"And this arrest isn't very pleasant, Jim—coming from you." His tone was cuttingly formal. "So I guess we're quits."

They took their hats and started for the door. There Ed took his wife in his arms and begged her not to worry. "I'll come clear, kid; don't you fret."

The two men, friends of long ago—now captor and captive—walked into the night.

THEY reached headquarters, and Hanvey talked briefly with the desk sergeant. A special room, temporarily, for Burman; and no one was to be allowed to see him. The eyes of the detective showed suffering as he watched his friend march away behind the Warden, straight and tall and proud in his innocence.

Once the barred door had closed behind Burman, Jim turned back to the Sergeant. Much of the lethargy had fallen away.

"Who's on the job out yonder?" asked Hanvey.

"Raferty and Walcott."

"Good. Got a police car ready?" "Outside. Smith driving."

"Kay!" Jim waved a fleshy paw and waddled into the paved courtyard of police headquarters. A quiet voice hailed him and he climbed into a touring car beside an alert young man. Jim spoke briefly, giving the address of Ed Burman's home.

Hanvey ordered Smith to stop the car near the corner, where he alighted. And as he moved toward the Burman residence a figure detached itself from the shadows and accosted him.

"Chief!"

Jim peered through the gloom. "What's that?"

"Walcott."

"Where's Raferty?"

"Followed her."

"Mrs. Burman?"

"Yes."

"How long ago?"

"She left the house about 20 minutes after you did."

"How'd she go? Street car?"

"No, Chief. Taxi."

"Raferty followed?"

"Uh-huh. He had the fliv parked around the corner."

"Heard from him since?"

"Bout 15 minutes ago. We had framed for him to phone me at the corner drug store. Says we're to come to 891 Sycamore, Miramar Apartments. He's on the job there."

"Good work, Walcott. I'll get Smith to run me over."

Smith stopped his car a few doors from the gaudy apartments. Jim stepped out, ordered Smith to wait, and then walked slowly toward the Miramar.

The square-shouldered, heavy-set figure of plain-clothes-man Raferty approached. He jerked his thumb toward the brilliantly illuminated building.

"In yonder, Chief."

"What apartment?"

"Carson's, I suppose. I was scared to inquire before you got here and we was ready to go up. Afraid the phone boy might tip 'em off."

"Nice headwork, Mike. You stick around here."

Hanvey walked heavily into the lobby. The telephone boy looked up in unfriendly fashion.

"Whatcha want?" he inquired surlily.

"Nothin' special." Hanvey grinned broadly. "Otis Carson live here?"

"You a friend of his?"

"Yeh, I reckon."

The lad turned to the switchboard, but Hanvey's big fingers closed over his wrist.

"Never mind announcin' me," he suggested. "I'll get you to take me up."

The operator opened his lips to protest, and found himself gazing at a police badge.

As they stood outside the door of Otis Carson's apartment, Jim turned and spoke quietly to the boy.

"Forget this whole thing," he advised. "It ain't worth rememberin'." The lad disappeared. Hanvey waited for a moment, then pressed the buzzer.

The door of the apartment opened, and Jim found himself gazing into the steely gray eyes of a man taller than himself—a man who seemed not at all pleased to see him.

"Hello, Ote."

Carson's eyes narrowed, and he made no move to admit his caller.

"Well?" he asked coldly.

"Gosh, Ote, ain't you gonna ask me in?"

"No."

"That's too bad. Durned if it ain't because, Ote, I got to come in."

Carson's thin, sensitive lips curled with distaste.

"What do you want?"

"Oh, nothin'. Just aimin' to chat with you and Dot Burman a minute or two."

JIM was so easy of manner, so self-assured, that Carson was non-plussed. He thought swiftly, then stood aside.

"All right," he said ungraciously. "Come in."

Jim walked down the hallway, followed by Carson. He stepped into a gorgeous living room. A woman—slim and blond and exquisitely beautiful—sprang to her feet. Jim smiled cheerfully.

"Lo, Dot. How are you?"

One hand went to her breast. She stared at him with distended eyes and her terrified glance carried beyond Jim to Carson.

Sensing what was in the air, Jim said calmly. "I wouldn't do that, Carson."

Jim seated himself on an overstuffed couch.

"Swell dump, Ote. Good pickin' recently, I guess."

Carson bit his lower lip. He succeeded in keeping silent, as Hanvey turned his attention to the terrified Dot Burman.

"I don't hardly blame you, Dot," mused Hanvey. "This is the sort of stuff you was used to before you married Ed. It was awful tough on you for him to go so crazy about bein' honest. I guess every time you cooked a meal or washed a dish you was thinkin' of the old days when you had servants to do all that. Wasn't you?"

She was breathing audibly. Her eyes were fixed on his moon-like face.

"What do you mean, Jim?"

"Nothin'. Nothin' at all, Dot. I was just sayin' I don't blame you a bit. If Ed was fool enough to stay nuts about you, an' quit stealin' for you—then I guess it was all right for you to figure to throw him over."

"Who says I was going to ditch Ed?"

"We-e-e-ell, I sort of thought"

Carson planted himself squarely in front of the indifferent detective.

"What did you come here for?"

"Just to tell you and Dot good-by."

"Good-by?"

"SURE. Wasn't you plannin' to slope? Ain't you been crazy about her always, and haven't you been making a play for her ever since Ed Burman went straight and couldn't even afford to give her a cook? Ain't you been working on her love of luxury and pretty clothes, and didn't you have tickets bought to sail to Europe Saturday? You're all right, Ote. Sure you are. You're slick. You knew Ed would never figure on you to double-cross him; you knew Dot was getting sick of the gaff. You knew she didn't give a darn about her husband."

"That's not true, Jim!" The woman's voice broke in hysterically. "I'm crazy about Ed."

"Yeh? Well—maybe. And then again—maybe not. But anyway, Dot, you and Ote have got everything fixed fine. Ed's in jail, where he can't bother you. I'll see that he gets a 10-year stretch, and—"

"Jim, listen!" Dot Burman stood before him, slender and beautiful—and her eyes did not evade his. "I'm going to talk straight, and I think you know me well enough to know whether I'm lying or not. Will you listen?"

"Sure, I will. That's the best thing I do."

"You are right in most of what you say. I was gettin' awfully tired of this poor-but-honest stuff. It didn't seem to be getting us anywhere. Ote has been making a play for me, and I guess I can't blame him. I always told him, too, that I couldn't stand this poverty stuff much longer. He put it up to me as a sporting proposition: Ditch Ed and go with him. Big hotels, travel, money . . . jewelry. See how that got under my skin, Jim?"

"Yeh, Dot; I see."

"I was sick of gettin' up every morning at 6 to cook breakfast; of slaving all day—of having nothing. I was sure I could break away from Ed. And I'll be honest with you—if you hadn't shown up at our house tonight (concluded on next page.)"

AMANA, Iowa.

SOME villages looking like a region plucked from southern Germany and transplanted in the heart of the new world's agricultural midwest will lose another of their old world vestiges when the Amana Society reorganizes from a communistic order to a stock co-operative.

The reorganization has been authorized by a vote of the colonists, 77 percent favorable to a change. Determination of a definite plan may take six months, according to colony leaders. Some of them, shrugging, say there have been such agitations before and this may peter out if no specific project wins approval. But when pressed they admit that never before has a movement for change been so strong as the present one.

It is a struggle between an older generation born in Europe and a younger generation determined to compete with their fellow citizens of the United States on more equal terms. The outcome will determine the future of what is now the most successful and probably the oldest communistic society in the nation. The Amana Society has farmed its 26,000 Iowa acres for 77 years. For a decade before that its members had lived near Buffalo, N. Y., until their isolation was threatened by proximity to that growing city.

There seems little chance of a breakdown, every likelihood that the American born generation will take over the reins after next December.

In any case the Amana colonies seem likely to retain the essential identity which has made them a delightful break in Iowa's row of Main streets. In spite of heavy inroads made into their customs because of modern science and the World War, they preserve an air of peasant rusticity.

Homes are unpainted, except for the window shutters. Workers and families get their meals at community kitchens, where the women and girls take turns at the tasks incidental to cooking. Women wearing sunbonnets also work in the gardens and vineyards whose products help make the colonies famous, while the men work in the fields or with the dairy herds which provide milk and butter.

Each village has its butcher, its baker. Each has its general store where the colonists are allowed a small annual stipend in trade, their only wage. The general stores resemble those of a half century ago in many respects. There are tinmiths, sawmills, and hotels which thrive more on their quaint meals than on their sleeping accommodations, which include a feather bed if preferred.

UNLESS these men, and their fellows who cultivate the onions and cabbages—some of which are shipped out in carload lots—and grains are recognized in some way beyond those who do nothing at all, the incentive for progress will be lost, say champions of the new way.

Known as "the community of true inspiration" and in its roots an offshoot of the 18th century pietistic movement which produced Quakerism in England, the colony has always been regarded as essentially a religious experiment rather than an economic or social one.

But the advocates of change say that church and business—they might as well say church and state—should be separated. One cannot become elected as one of the 13 trustees who rule the Amanas without first being an elder in the church. Elders are appointed by the trustees from church members in good standing. The result is an oligarchy rather than a true communism, a self-perpetuating hierarchy.

Cleavage between old and new on the basis of age is evident all along the line. Members of the present board of trustees are all more than 60 years old. The president is 86 years old.

Contrasted with these men mostly in their seventies and eighties, is a comparable board of younger men, also 13 in number, whose task it will be to present a plan of reorganization acceptable to a majority of the trustees. The age maximum in this group is 45; the youngest member is a school teacher only 23 years old.

These young men want some recognition for ability. They want a distinction between those who work and those who do not, those who work well and hard, those who do not. They want a future to hold more than perpetual security from want. One of their complaints, in fact, is that the present system makes them help work for the dependents of the entire system, who are given food, shelter, clothing, and whatever medical or dental service they need.

And they say, too, that the aging rulers will have to change their business methods to continue making money. In fact, they need a little more communism! Co-operative buying for the seven general stores and for other portions of the colonies is one of the reforms urged.

As an example of the "unemployment" problem peculiar to the Amana Society, where everybody must suffer effects of the depression instead of the men who do not work, is cited the fact that 50 men had to be employed in a mill instead of as many colonists who were not in the mood for hard labor. Help has to be employed for some of the hotels and milk barns. Even farm hands are sometimes hired.

Resentment against such flaws in the status quo has smoldered for at least a year in an articulate form, for more than a decade before in less prevalent mutterings. Last September, without the neighboring regions of Iowa being any the wiser, the younger group put through an amendment to the constitution legalizing reorganization.

The amendment is specific enough to indicate the trend of affairs. It provides for the issuance of stock shares based on an appraisal of all property—including 26,000 acres of unencumbered farm and timber land. Members would receive a share for each year since, at 21, they signed the society's constitution or, if they joined at a later age, from the time of assuming membership.

This would provide for the older members who have worked to build the colony while leaving the future open to ambitious younger members who do not want to "share and share alike" any longer.

It is probable that ownership of land will continue to be in common, possible that individuals will rent tracts for cultivation, probable that wages will be paid for field work.

Some hold forth a scheme for management of the woolen mills which provides for outside control of 49 percent of the stock, outside direction of operations. They argue that no one within the Amanas is educated for the guidance of such an industry or for marketing of the finished products. They point out that few of the colonists have had more than an eighth grade education. Each village has a school teacher who has taken his normal training course in a nearby high school. Each has its university trained doctor, dentist, and pharmacist. Besides these few, usually from the leading families, higher education is rare.

It is from the World War that most of the other changes date. Before then trading with farmers and with villagers looking for novelty had been the chief contacts with the immediate outside world, although telephone and telegraph, automobiles, and newspapers and magazines had made their inroads.

ORIGINALLY 800, membership had increased to 1200 at the time of removal from Buffalo in 1855. By 1908, including 50 families of weavers imported from Saxony, the figure had swelled to 1500 and in 1920 the population was 1600. County officials estimate a shrinkage of 200 or 300 within the last 10 years.

On crude wooden benches in a plain, undecorated room church services are held, consisting of readings from the Bible or the writings of a "prophet" of the sect and comments by the elders. Their beliefs have also been reflected in their simple dress, their ban on theaters and band concerts, their sportless Sundays.

To some phases of this colony youth is less attentive, particularly in allegiance to the elders who form a ruling clique. And it is there that the old communism is challenged, at the core of a system which has come down from the Germany of 1714, when some pious separatists shook off Lutheranism, coming to a land of religious freedom and setting up an isolated community in their endeavor to preserve that faith unsullied.

The Pastor Who Stole

ver almost as bad as the one he had been driving. He returned from a trip to Indianapolis with it, and let it be understood that he had got it in a trade for his old automobile.

The second car didn't hold up long. On a trip to Newcastle, the county seat, it broke down and had to be towed in. Mooreland had a laugh on its popular parson. There were good-natured jokes about the preacher and his decrepit Glimmer.

Before long, then, the minister surprised his friends by returning from another trip to Newcastle with a shiny new Ford coach, maroon in color. They noticed that the identification certificate on the steering post bore the name of R. V. McGuire of Newcastle, and that the license number was different from the one the preacher had been using. He explained that he had made a deal with McGuire and had traded in his old car on the new one.

With the new machine he covered more territory than ever, calling on family after family in the rural districts near Mooreland and urging them to attend church and Sunday school. Members of his congregation observed his activity with approbation. "He's a real worker," they said.

The Memorial Day services probably marked the climax of the Rev. Mr. Poer's career here. They were held at the Friends' meeting house, and more than 300 persons were present. And the Disciples Church parson, despite his youth and short residence in the town, had the leading part in the services. He preached an eloquent sermon and offered an equally eloquent stirring prayer. His congregation was proud of him.

A short time later the annual State convention of the G. A. R. was held at Newcastle, and many people from all towns went there on the second day of the convention to see the parson. The Rev. Mr. Poer was one of the visitors. He drove to Newcastle in the shiny Ford coach, and with him was Mrs. Murray, wife of the deacon, who carried seven pounds of butter which she was taking to market.

The preacher parked the machine on a street and locked it, with the butter and Mrs. Murray's coat inside. Then he and Mrs. Murray went to see the deacon.

When it was time to start for home, the deacon said he would get his automobile and meet Mrs. Murray where she was shopping, and if Deacon Murray, who was expected to join them, did not show up he would take her back to Mooreland.

A few minutes later he appeared at the store where she was waiting and said: "My car has been stolen."

"Then my coat and my butter are gone, too," Mrs. Murray exclaimed.

Just then her husband arrived and heard the news. He thought there must be a mistake. "Nobody would steal a preacher's car," he said. "Maybe you forgot where you parked it. We'll look for it."

He took the minister in his machine and drove slowly about the streets. Mrs. Murray suddenly spied the Poer automobile. "It's right where you parked it," she told the clergyman.

"That's not my car," the latter said. Mrs. Murray looked closer. "Why of course it is," she declared. "There's my coat and the butter in it."

But Poer persisted in his denial of ownership. Murray then decided to report the matter to the police.

THE parson volunteered to stay and watch the parked machine while the police report was made. But as soon as the Murphys drove away he hurried off and got a lift from a friend back to Mooreland. He had noticed that someone else was keeping a watch on the car.

At police headquarters the officers displayed a good deal of interest in what Deacon Murray had to tell them. They accompanied him back to the parked car, and then disclosed that it had been stolen in Newcastle a few weeks before—just about the time the young Moorland parson appeared on the streets of his town driving a new automobile. They told the astounded Murphys that McGuire had recognized his car on the street and had notified the police. The latter had posted a watch on it in the hope of catching the thief when he returned.

It became evident that this trap had failed. Poer was nowhere in sight. So officers went home with the Murphys, thinking the man they sought might have gone back to his boarding place.

Near his home the deacon withdrew from the party. He had grown very fond of the young preacher and did not want to be present when he was arrested, if he should be found in the Murphys' home.

The officers rushed into the house,

The Rev. Mr. Poer was there. He started to climb through a window when he saw them, they later reported, but one of them drew a pistol and threatened to shoot. The minister surrendered. He was hurried into an automobile and taken back to Newcastle before the residents of Mooreland knew what had happened.

E. H. Yergin, Prosecuting Attorney for the county, interviewed the prisoner.

"Yes," Poer confessed, "I took McGuire's car. In fact, I have taken three cars. I couldn't afford to buy an automobile on my salary as a minister. And the Lord's work had to go on."

It was disclosed that the old machine in which the young clergyman had first appeared in Mooreland had been stolen in Indianapolis. The second automobile had been acquired in the same way. He had driven the first to Newcastle and abandoned it on the street, then gone by Interurban to Indianapolis and stolen another.

When the Rev. Mr. Poer was arraigned, he pleaded guilty and threw himself on the mercy of the Court. Circuit Judge John H. Morris sentenced him to from one to 10 years in the State Reformatory, but told him he would recommend a parole at the end of a year.

Della nostra liberta.

And in English:

Youth! Youth! Beauty's springtime station!

Ours, our souls in high elation!

In Fascismo is salvation

Of our liberty!

The verses extol the glories and grandeur of Fascist salvation in the same tone. The music has a swinging rhythm, and that is the most that can be said for it. At Bologna it was a question of play "Giovinezza" this time or we will call your bluff. And they did. A number of Fascists struck Toscanini as he was leaving the theater. His arm was injured, but, much more important, his feelings were deeply wounded. For at heart, his closest friends say, he is an Italian, with an abiding love for Italy.

I'd have gone through with it. Gone off with Ote—ruined everything."

"What do you mean, Dot, ruined everything?"

"I'd have been sorry inside of a week. And it would have been too late then." She took a step forward. "When you showed up tonight, Jim, and arrested Ed, then I knew what was right and what was wrong. It taught me, all of a sudden, that there ain't anything that means as much to me as Ed. Yes—and I'm not lying!—there ain't anything that means as much to me as keeping him straight. I came here right away to tell Ote it was all off; that he'd have to take his little tour all by himself. I've been straight, Jim; I swear I have. And now!"

JIM'S eyelids closed slowly. "I believe you, Dot." He gave a long yawn. "You reckon you'd be willing to go back to the sixty-a-week stuff if Ed was free?"

Her eyes blazed with wild hope. "Oh, Jim! I'd starve with Ed. That's what hurt so. It was because I knew he was straight. And then you come along and nab him for something he didn't do."

"Yeh. . . . And even with him in stir, you ain't goin' off with Ote?"

"No. He understands that."

"Zat so, Ote?"

The man's face was stony, his voice cold.

"Dot isn't a liar."

"Well. Then we've pretty near straightened out everything I came for. There's just one little detail missing." He grinned at Carson.

"S'pose you hand me them MacArthur bonds Ote—all of 'em."

Dot looked startled. Carson's eyes were mere slits. He knew when he was beaten.

"Suppose I do?" he inquired.

"Then I'll turn you loose—under certain conditions."

"What are they?"

"That you forget there's any such person in the world as Dot Burman. That you get out and stay out. Because if Ed ever finds out how close Dot was to leaving him . . . all I say is, Ote—God help you!"

Carson nodded. "It's a deal, Jim," he said crisply. He moved an oil painting which hung on the wall opposite Jim, whirled the dial of a tiny safe, and handed Hanvey a package of bonds. "Count 'em. They're all there."

Jim made a quick inspection, sighed with satisfaction, and put the bonds in his pocket.

"Kayo, Ote."

Dot Burman had seated herself. Her cheeks were dead white and her fingers were interlaced tightly.

"Jim?"

"Yes, Dot?"

"When you came up here tonight . . . you knew . . . everything?"

"Pretty near."

"You knew that Ote was the one who had stolen the bonds?"

"Sure. I knew that a couple of days ago."

"Do you think that I knew it?"

He shook his head. "No, Dot; I don't. I sure don't think you'd have pulled any such stunt as that. I reckon you was pretty well knocked in a heap, eh?"

"I was. And I've been thinking . . . Jim, if you knew all the time that Ote had those bonds, why did you arrest Ed?"

Hanvey rubbed the palms of his hands together. "Ain't that kind of obvious, Dot?"

"No."

"Well, it was this way: Ed is my friend and things were clouding up all around him. I didn't know if you'd go through with this; but if you didn't, I wanted to make sure Ed would never know what you'd been thinking of. Then I figured if you did go off with Ote, Ed would do something violent, and pretty soon be in for life on account of a woman who didn't give a darn about him. Any way I looked at it, Dot, it seemed that the only way to keep him out of trouble was to lock him up. As for the MacArthur bonds, we knew when Ote got 'em, and how. He's been trailed ever since. That's all, Dot, or nearly all."

She had crumpled into a pathetic little heap in the easy-chair. He stood over her and clumsily patted her shoulder.

"Forget it, kid. Play up; that's all you got to do, and it ought to be easy."

"It will, Jim. . . . I was crying—about you!"

"What about me?"

"What you've done; what you've saved me from . . . and what it'll mean to Ed. And something else. . . . I know that you've hurt Ed, that he'll most likely never feel the same to you again. And you were awfully fond of him."

"I RECKON," said Hanvey softly, "that I pretty nearly love Ed Burman. And that's why he mustn't ever know what has really happened. You promise, Dot?"

She nodded. "I promise."

"Good. Now beat it for home. I'm going down and turn Ed loose."

He waved one pudgy paw and waddled to the door. An hour later he stood outside the jail with Burman. Jim didn't dare look at his friend.

"This was a rotten mess, Ed. I was just a plumb fool—thinking you'd gone crooked again. There ain't anything I can do but apologize. I'm sorry."

The face of the tall, dignified man softened. A faint smile touched the corners of his lips. He put a friendly hand on Hanvey's shoulder.

"That's all right, Jim. It was a mistake . . . but I can't kick." He hesitated for a moment, and then: "The only thing that really hurt bad, Jim, was being misunderstood by a friend."

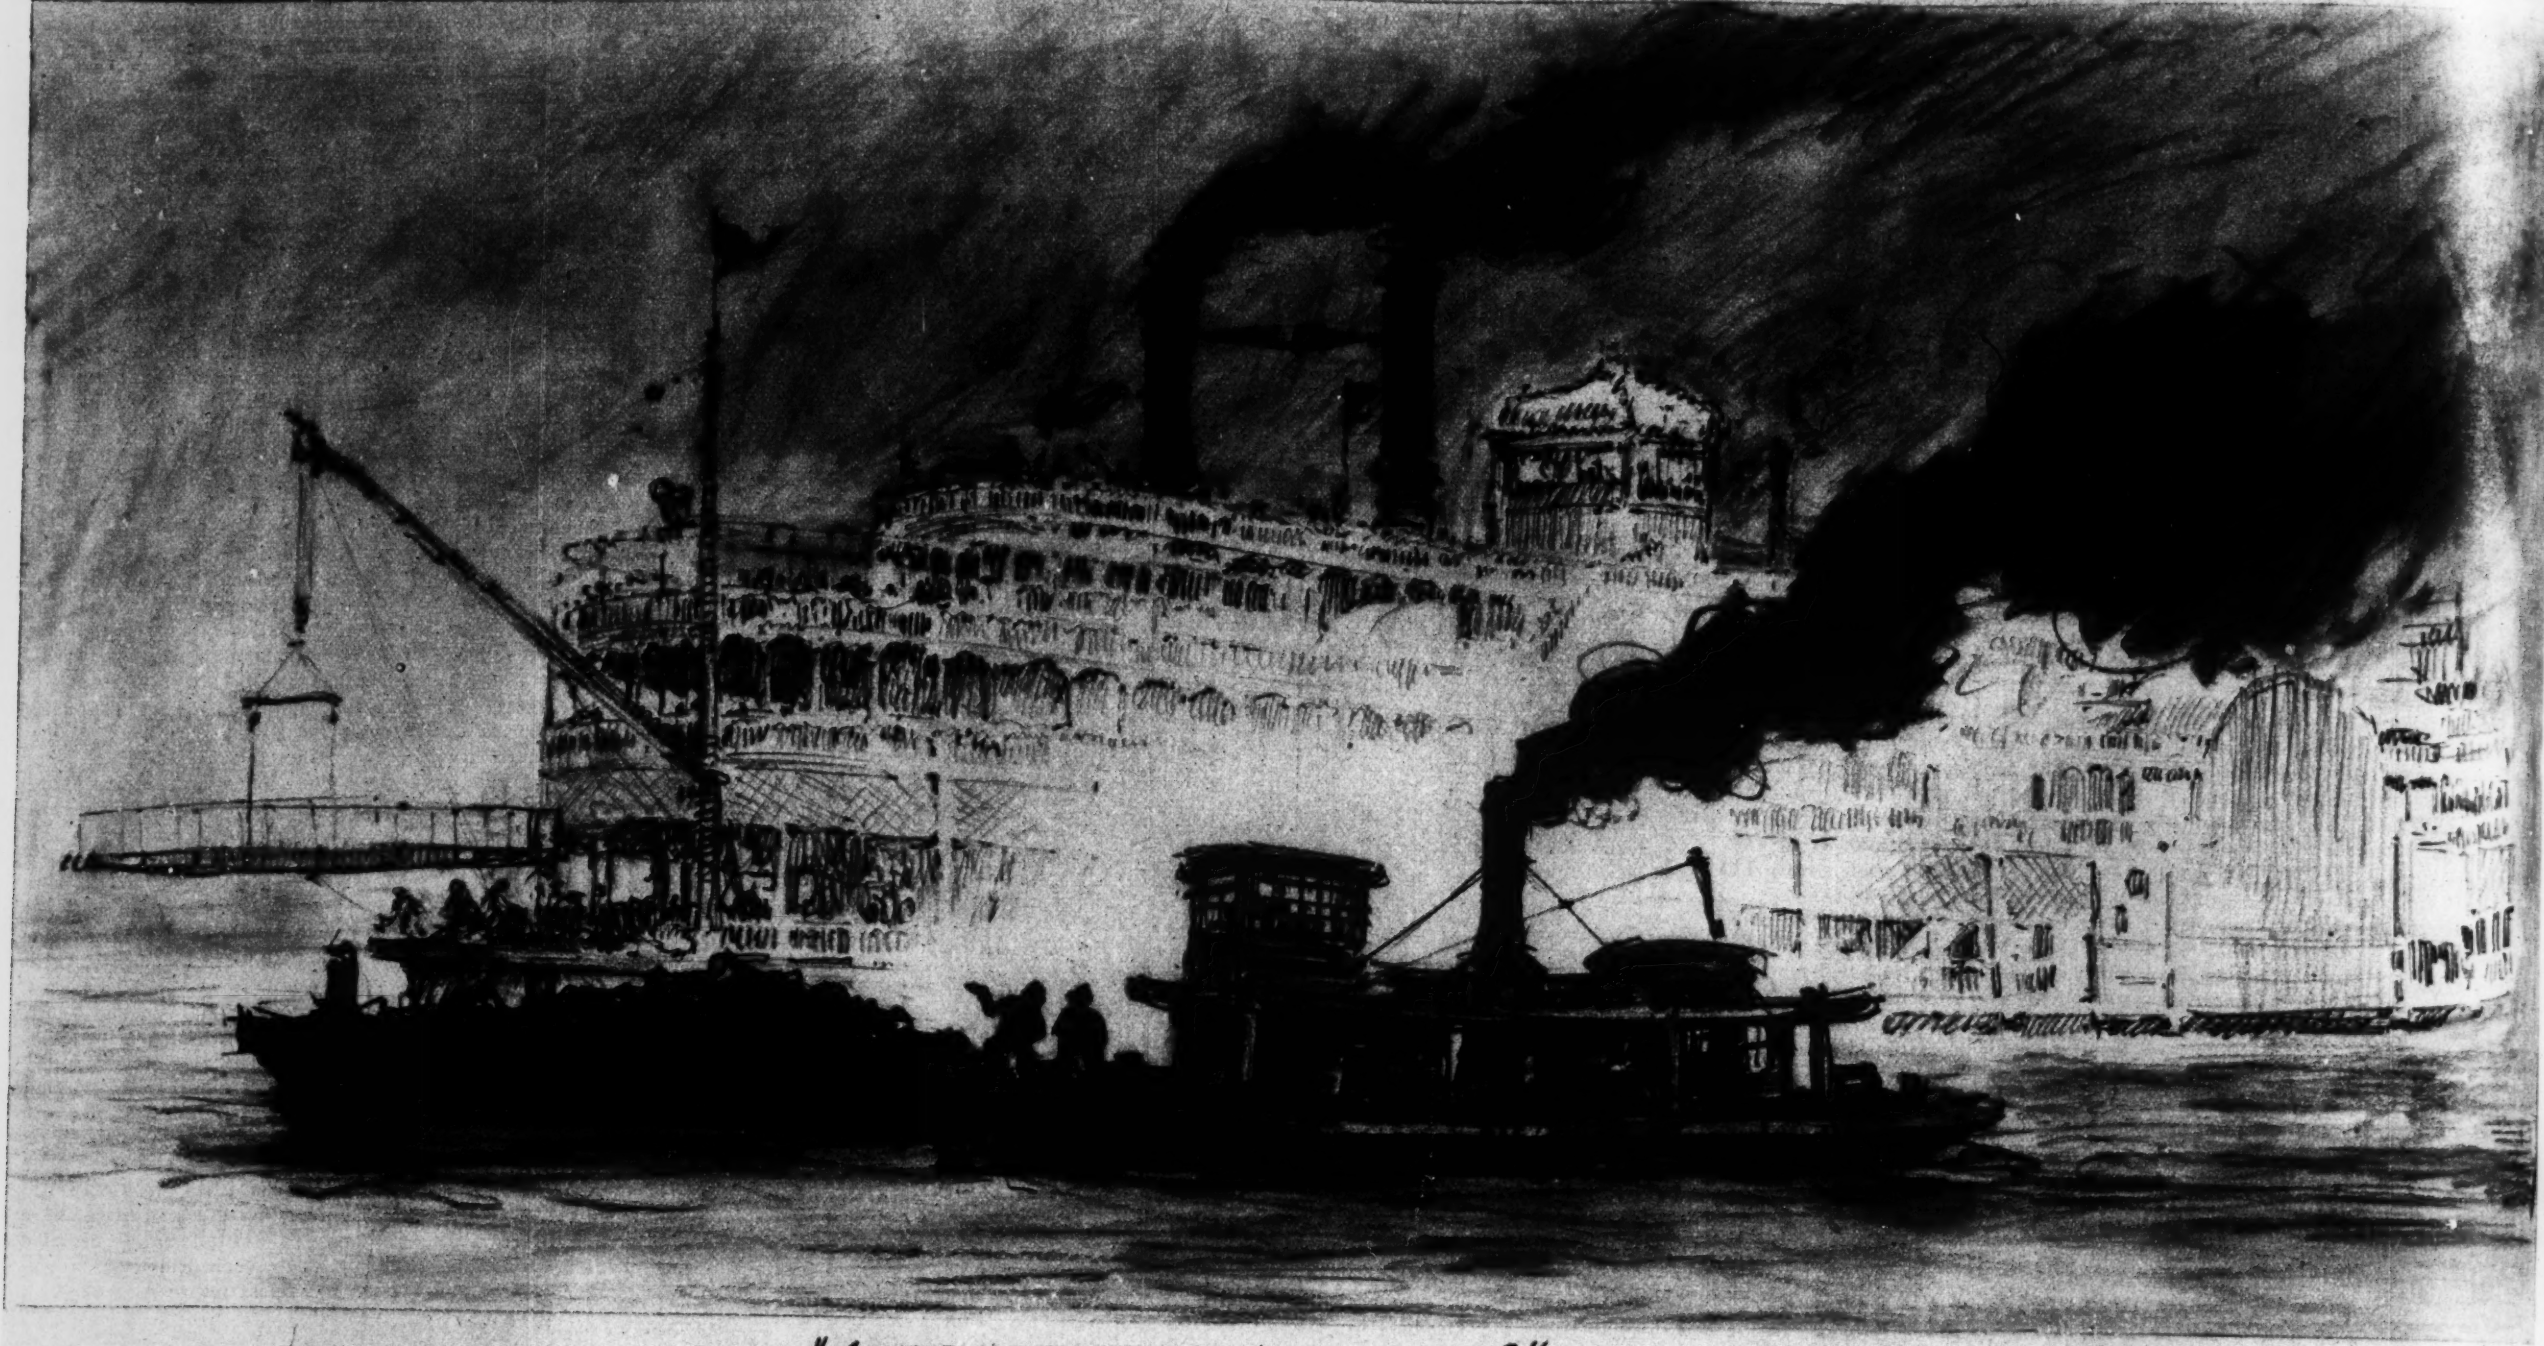

Jim Hanvey's eyes opened slowly and dwelt on Ed Burman's face.

"You're right, Ed," he whispered. "I sure can understand that!"

BROADWAY
TO GATTY AND POST, ROUND-THE-WORLD
FLYERS

Through a shower of ticker tape and torn scraps of paper—downtown New York paying its own kind of homage to the newest heroes of aviation.

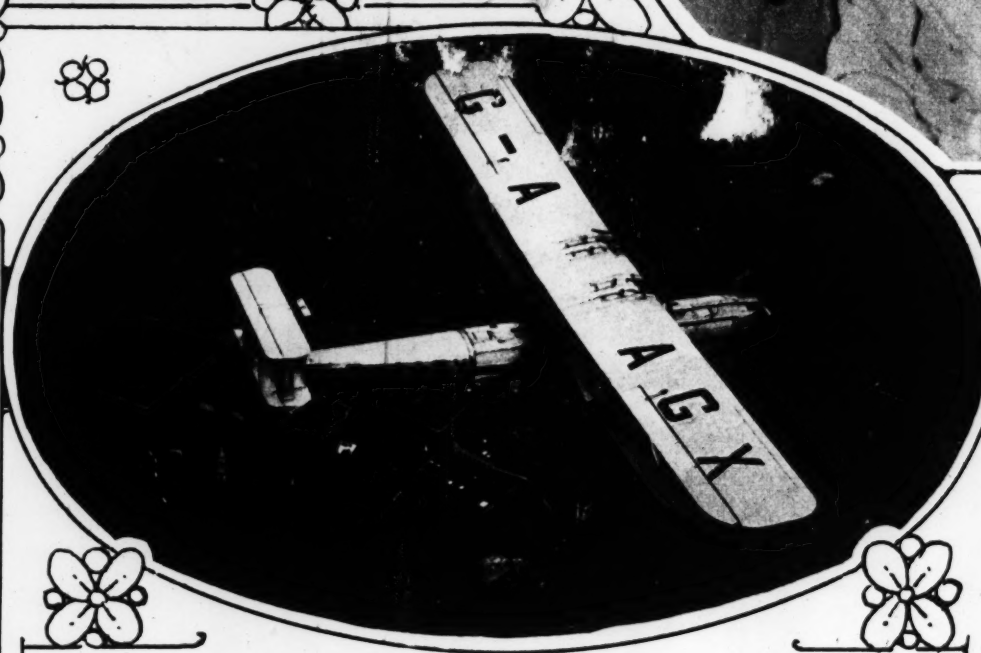

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gatty, on left, and Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Post, pose for the photographers before starting for their day of triumph in New York.

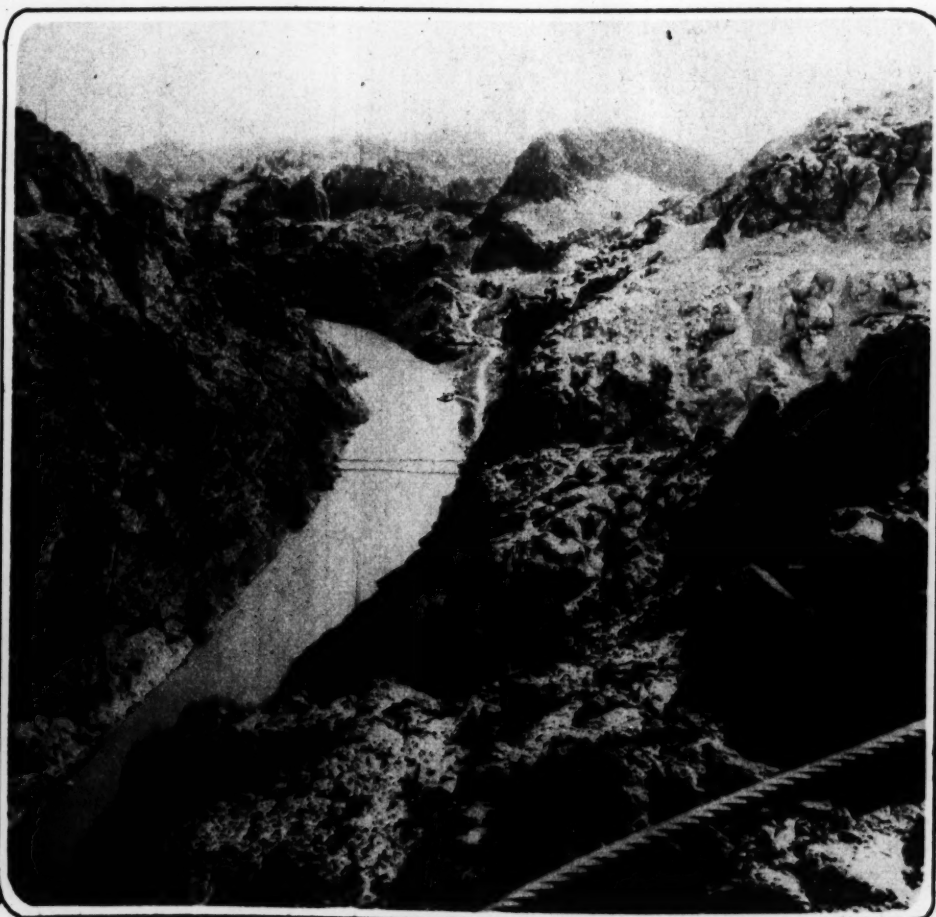

Triumphal procession from the Battery to City Hall, New York City, where navigator and pilot who circumnavigated the globe in the plane Winnie Mae in less than nine days were officially welcomed by the Mayor.

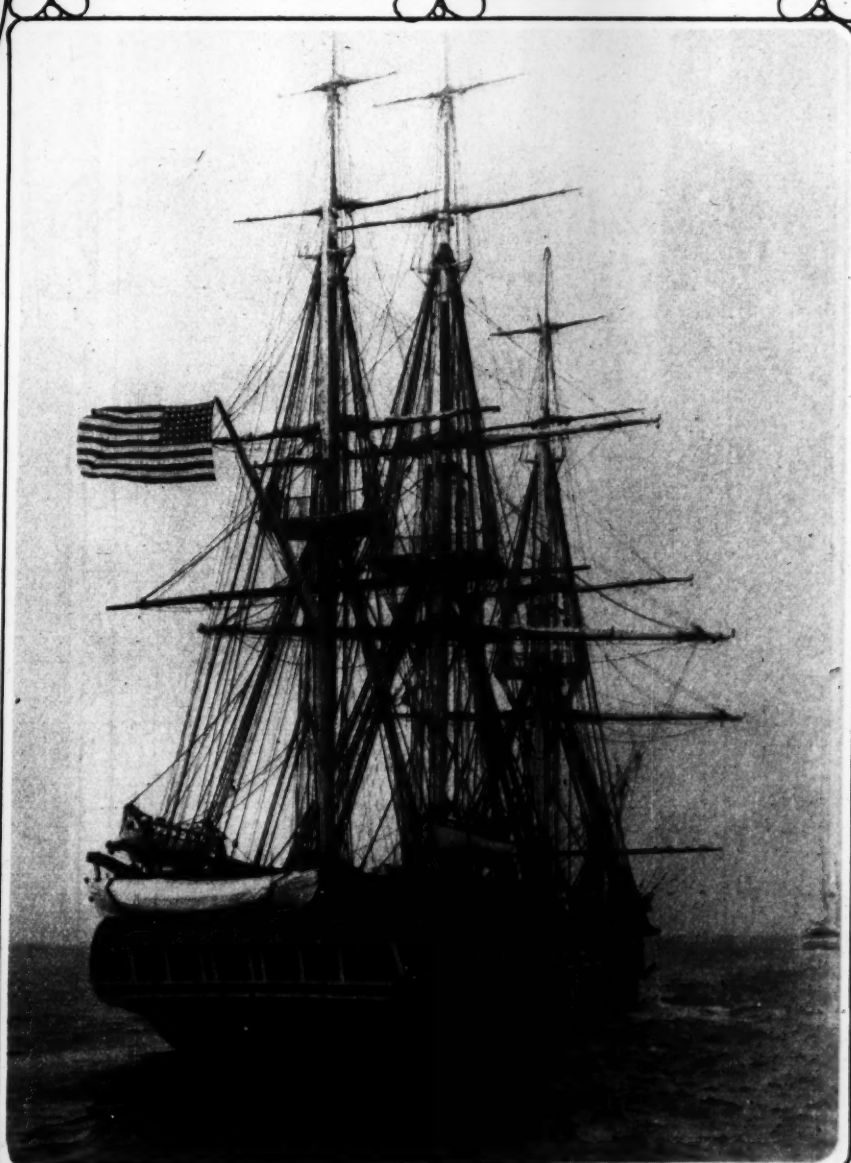

ENGLISH GIRLS AND THEIR SPORTS COSTUMES—Three misses watching the Walton regatta. Regulation trousers seem to have been adopted by the girls of the British Isles.

GIANT AIR LINER IN FLIGHT—The Hannibal, four-engine biplane built in England for passenger service, making trial journey over London. The craft weighs thirteen tons and can transport 40 passengers besides its crew.

WHERE HOOVER DAM IS BEING BUILT—Aerial view of the great gash in the continent where flows the Colorado River near Las Vegas, Nev.

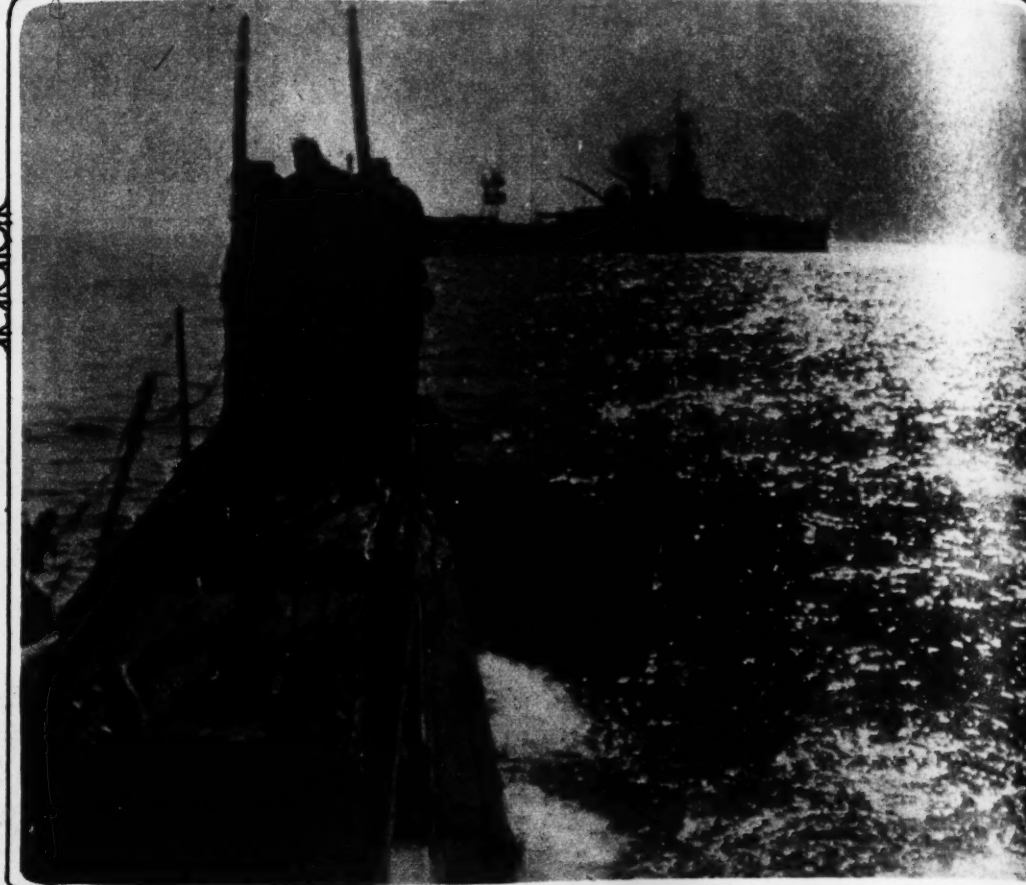

A PICTURE TO MAKE OLD SAILORS WEEP—Here is the reconditioned frigate Constitution being towed from Boston, Mass., to Portsmouth, N. H., on first leg of its journey along the Atlantic coast. It hasn't enough sails to go along under its own canvas, and there's doubt if the Navy has enough old-fashioned tars to handle them—hence the tug and the tow line.

THE DISABLED NAUTILUS IN MID-ATLANTIC—Photograph taken from the Wilkins submarine showing the battleship Wyoming in the distance. Alongside the sub is a boat's crew from the battleship ready to attach a tow line.

ANOTHER ROYAL BETROTHAL—Princess Ileana, youngest sister of King Carol of Rumania, who will wed the Archduke Anton of the Hapsburg dynasty, on July 25.

AERIAL VIEW OF THE NEW MOSCOW—What was formerly waste land, in the Dubrovka district, now filled with apartment houses for workers. Plenty of playground space adjoins each building.

A GLIDER COMES TO ENGLAND FROM FRANCE—Herr Kronfeld arriving over the Dover cliffs to finish the first stage of flight across the English channel. He later returned to France the same way, all in four hours.

HEELING OVER TO A STRONG BREEZE—Small boats racing off Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Josephine, daughter of Owen D. Young, noted industrialist leader, in wedding gown for her marriage to Everett Needham Case, at Van Hornesville, N. Y.

HIS HOBBY IS CARVING—Alexander E. Miller, 73 years old, of Los Angeles, has cut beautiful designs in wood ever since he was a boy. This is a specimen of his work.
